GDU schedules cleaning

PORT ST. LUCIE--Cleaning and flushing of water mains will be conducted on a regular schedule by General Development Utilities Corporation, according to an announcement made by the firm's financial director Jerry Mozian.

Mozian met Monday morning, as promised with the local representative group comprised of board members from the area's three homeowner associations and the Civic League to discuss the application item by item, for the proposed water and sewer rate hike.

GDU President Harold Schmidt has returned to Port St. Lucie last Wednesday to personally investigate some of the alleged problems about which the consumers have repeatedly complained and to take corrective measures to resolve these problems where possible. Major complaints aired by residents, particularly those of the River Park area included the discoloration, poor distribution, bad taste, low pressure and a considerable amount of sediment contained in the water.

Between the hours of 11 p.m. Wednesday until 4 a.m. Thursday, approximately one hundred hydrants were flushed out under the direction of Schmidt. The cleaning and flushing of the mains were conducted during the odd hours to prevent any inconvenience to the consumer.

At least one member of the representative group, Don White, noted the water pressure at his residence had improved considerably within the past week.

While Mozian was, in essence, able to substantiate the facts and figures favoring the GDU requested rate hike, the local group is still concerned over the efficiency of the firm's physical operation.

"We are interested in finding out whether or not the firm has twenty trucks in operation when possibly ten would be sufficient to handle the job at hand. The same applies to employees are they adequately staffed, or over staffed, for the local operation," one member of the board asked.

The group agreed to contact Gladys Lukes, consumer representative for the Public Service Commission requesting a qualified PSC representative to perform an operational efficiency check.

In view of GDU's reported losses over the past several years, one of the questions directed to Mozian during the morning session was whether or not the utility firm would consider selling out.

Mozian's answer was negative.

"Possibly this may be considered in the future, however such a sale would have to be made to a municipality rather than to an individual simply because of the number of committments which GDU has under contract," Mozian told his listeners.

He also pointed out that GDU paid $200,000 in Federal Property and Franchise taxes annually which a municipality would be exempt from.

At the same time, though, Mozian denied it would be advantageous for a municipality to take over the operation.

While the local group is hopeful the PSC will determine the efficiency of the physical operation of GDU as well, they did express displeasure over the in depth investigations now underway by the commission including an audit of the firm's books in both the Miami office and locally.

A public hearing on the proposed rate hike has been scheduled by the Public Service Commission for May 26 at the Port St. Lucie Community Center CESA. One day prior, the PSC will meet with the local representatives.

The decision on the proposed rate increase is expected sometime in August.

Under the proposed new rate structure, a family using 6,000 gallons of water per month will pay $7.90 compared to the $6.15 presently charged.

Sewer customers will pay $9.50 under the new rate structure instead of $5.65.

Senate representative will visit on April 28

PORT ST. LUCIE--Sen. Lawton Chiles announced that his District Assistant, Tom Hayes, will be visiting St. Lucie County on Wednesday, April 28. He will be available to meet with residents and local officials of the the county.

From 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. he will be in the Council Room at the Port St. Lucie City Hall, Morningside Boulevard.

"I know that many people are experiencing delays and other problems with social security, medicare, and other agencies, and we can sometimes help to cut the red tape involved in getting these cases handled," Chiles said.

"I hope people who are having problems with federal agencies will feel free to come by and discuss them with Mr. Hayes."

Civic League seeks action on charter

In a letter to the Port St. Lucie City Council, the Civic League went on record on a number of points having to do with the matter of the Revised City Charter.

The Civic League Board of Directors strongly recommended that the Revised Charter, as delivered by the Charter Revision Committee, be presented to the voters without changes or amendment of any kind, stating that the committee deserves to have the product of its work judged by the electorate.

Publication of the draft of the proposed Charter was urged and that public hearings be scheduled immediately, including at least one evening meeting, and that the meetings be well publicized.

The League reminds that drafting of a new Charter came about not as a personal whim, but as a state-mandated action. It feels the Charter to be a most important document for the future of the city and that completion and acceptance of a new Charter is a matter in which all citizens will feel sincere personal involvement.

The letter stresses the League's belief that among the most significant and important recommendations are these:

That the city should have a City Manager type of government, and that minimum qualifications should be written into the charter.

That Council members should be elected for two-year terms.

That Council members should be elected by district and that each should reside in the district being represented (only the voters within each district will choose their representatives.

That the restrictions in disposition of surplus city funds are a proper safeguard for city funds.

That the restrictions placed on the height of residential buildings and on population density are important for proper growth of the city.

Discussion of the letter and of the Charter at Tuesday's workshop session evoked the possibility that two charters will be presented to the voters, published and discussed at public meetings to be scheduled sometime before mid-June.

P&Z board seeks ground rules

PORT ST. LUCIE--Vaughn Lewis, acting chairman of the city's Planning and Zoning Board, laid the cards on the line during what was intended to be the board's re-organizational meeting Monday afternoon.

With seven of the ten members present, Lewis told his listeners a meeting between the board and the city council was imperative, claiming that five resignations from the Planning and Zoning Board at the end of one year was indicative that an unhealthy situation exists.

Lewis said the P&Z Board could be a very useful part of the city, but the first step must be a meeting with the City Council to have the ground rules spelled out and a list of priorities furnished.

Such a meeting was confirmed Tuesday morning by the City Council and a tentative date scheduled for the May 4 workshop.

The P&Z Board favors having a council member serve as liaison.

The selection of a president, vice president and secretary for the P&Z Board was postponed until such time as the fifth replacement has been appointed to the board.

As a final action, the P&Z Board has agreed to go over the proposed zoning ordinance (76-1) still another time as per the Council's recent recommendations.

Daylight saving to begin

It's that time again. The nation goes on Daylight Savings Time this Sunday morning at 2 a.m.

Turn clocks ahead one hour.

Better yet, turn them ahead Saturday night when you retire.

Support urged for library

PORT ST. LUCIE--"I have attended wakes that were by far more cheerful than the quarterly meeting of the public library," said Councilman Larry Kimmel during the Tuesday workshop session.

Kimmel, who said the library is starved for funds, noted the price of a hardback reference book is now just short of $20.

"Aside from that, the library must compete in the labor market just like everyone else," he said, adding volunteers are "mighty hard to come by."

Kimmel said the library was underfunded to begin with and, when the City of Fort Pierce cut their funding back, the problem was multiplied.

The Council had just reviewed a resolution requestion the St. Lucie County Board of County Commissioners assume full responsibility for financing the library services and to raise support at least to the state average of per capita costs.

Kimmel said that, unless something is done, the only alternative will be for the library to purchase fewer books.

Desirous of helping the library through this period, Kimmel said he intends to contact residents of the area to see what can be done to prevent the library from slowly dying.

The resolution will be place on next Tuesday's agenda and it is expected the city will forward its check in the amount of $2,500 to the library at that time. The city budgeted this amount last October but, Councilman McChesney reminded, the check has not been forwarded.

Bruce Delancy captures player of the week honors

JENSEN BEACH—As the first half draws to a close, we thought it might be appropriate to give the Player of the Week award to a player who has been consistent throughout the entire season, not just hot in one week.

That player has got to be Bruce Delancy of Rio Civic, in the Bronco League. Through the first four weeks of the season, Delancy has smashed nine extra-base hits, including four home runs, four doubles, and a triple.

Therefore, for his performance throughout the year, The Mirror honors Bruce Delancy as "Player of the Week," from April 12-17. Last week, he hit two doubles, as his team split a pair of games.

Others who stood out last week were Eric Price, Kent Hughes, David Pearl, Wilfred Wiley, Gordon Staley, Ricky Rhodes, Derick Jochem, Brad Larson, and Pop Delancy.

Price, playing for VFW, the last place team in the Bronco League, has been winning praise from his coach, Joel Dramis, all season long. Last week, he smashed two doubles against Jensen Bank as VFW almost upset the Bankers, but lost in the long run, 18-17. When not pitching, as he was doing against Bank, Price has been a permanent resident at shortstop, a position which he plays better than anyone else in the Bronco League.

Hughes and Pearl both play for Man From Kirk of the Mustang League. Hughes stood out most in his game last Tuesday, when he smacked a home run and a double to propell Kirk to an 18-4 win over Tri-County Gas.

Pearl waited until Friday night to make himself known. In a losing cause, he smacked a grand slam home run to give Kirk a big fourth inning. Kirk lost to Rick Carroll, 15-10.

Wiley continued to dominate the league by hitting three doubles and a home run in two games, as Aycock's Gang clinched the first half title. Staley, meanwhile, cracked two doubles for the week, while his teammate Rhodes, also connected for a pair of doubles.

Jochem, meanwhile, had a triple and two doubles in Aycock's title-clinching victory over Ray Cooke, 19-18. Finally, Larsen and Pop Delancy excelled against the Lions Club, as Larsen went 3 for 5, knocking in four runs and scoring four himself. Delancy pitched well and scored five runs. Mosley won the game, 23-5.

There were two other outstanding performers, both in the Pony League, who receive special attention this week. David Bocchino and Darryl Delancy pitched extraordinarily well against each other Thursday night, as the Elks downed Kiwanis, 5-3. Bocchino struck out 13, while Delancy had care of 11. Each pitcher went the innings, and provided everyone with the most enjoyable game of season.

Youth's license is suspended

JENSEN BEACH—The 17-year-old driver of a pickup truck that overturned Halloween night in Jensen Beach, killed three youths and injured seven others, was found guilty of an act of juvenile delinquency last week, and had his driver's license suspended for one year.

Daniel R. Hassinger, of Jensen Beach, appeared in Juvenile Court with Attorney Raymond Ford, to plead no contest to one count of vehicular homicide.

The State Attorney's office dropped two other counts in exchange for the plea.

Hassinger was the driver of the pickup truck that overturned on SR 723, killing Jay Steven Hassinger, 15, instantly.

Two others, Paul Bellas and William DeLoach, died later in Martin Memorial Hospital.

And Warner Biekkola of Lakehurst Drive flew to Detroit last week to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, Carl Noreus. Our condolences to both the Pughs and Biekkolas.

Helvie and Warner Biekkola entertained several house guests this past week. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Fobis, N. Miami; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leinonen from Red Bank, N.J.; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ouderkirk, Algonac, Mich.; Mrs. Eva Wanska and Mr. and Mrs. Eino Tuomela, from Marquette, Mic. They all had a great time together and thoroughly enjoyed Florida.

Bob and I had guests over the Easter weekend from Naples, Florida. Peg and Dee Harris moved to Naples from Itasca, Ill. They owned an insurance agency there and I was their secretary for several years before we moved to Florida.

Since none of our family were able to come for the holidays, we enjoyed being together. We weren't able to go all because of my old arthritic toe, but Bob and Dee got in a golf game. Peg was a great heid to Bob getting records while I just sat and was waited on. But I'd much rather "do it myself."

Thelma Peterson of Festivo Ct. recently had a visit from two sisters-in-law from Maryland. Edith Hall from Brandywine, Md. and Sally Peterson from Rivr Dale, Md. Thelma had a great time taking the two to Musicana and the Outrigger. On the way home they visited Disney World. A snow storm slowed them up a little before they got back to Maryland.

Dorotha and Glenn Shaffer of Willie Lane had a great visit with their daughter, Mrs. Robert Heth, and her son Robbie who live in Macon, Ga. The Shaffers also enjoyed a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wineman from Greensburg, Pa. All thoroughly enjoyed their Florida vacation.

Another classmate, Mrs. George Delaplane from Lake Worth, visited with Dorothy and Beulah. Talking over old times and enjoying Florida were the highlights of being together.

Bob and Maimie Gordon, Arbor Avenue, have their granddaughter Vickie Radoye and her friend Lorell Rickey, from Detroit, Mich., for the Easter holidays. Both are teachers in the Detroit schools. They have enjoyed swimming in the ocean, playing tennis, dog races, Disney World and, of course, being with Grandma and Grandpa Gordon.

Marion and Jud Thurston of Ravenswood Lane had a family reunion over Easter. Their daughter Sandra and her husband Richard K. Hartman, their children Richard, Dora Lynn and Julie from Wilmington, Delaware, and Thurston's other daughter Joan, her husband Merle Wood and their children Bradford and Wendy from Ft. Lauderdale, filled their home with happy times. They all enjoyed swimming and just being together.

Roger Dabler, who teaches school in Webster, N.Y., spent his Easter vacation with his parents Ruth and Bob Dabler of Byron Avenue. Roger hadn't vacationed with Ruth and Bob for two years and was mightly glad to see his folks. He enjoyed swimming and getting some Florida sunshine.

Reva and Jack Tyner of Floresta Drive are happy to be entertaining their two high school student granddaughters for a few weeks. Michelle and Wendy Jackson from Saginaw, Mich. The girls have been swimming and playing shuffleboard, which they thoroughly enjoyed. Jack and Reva also took the girls to the west coast to show them that part of Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Anthony Scorsone also visited the Tyners.

The Forlenzas, [illegible] Kasper Drive, recently had a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCallum from Middletown, N.J. and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blasi from S. Orange, N.J.

Mr. McCallum is a retired postal inspector and Mr. Blasi a retired supervisor, both from the Newark, N.J. P.O., and enjoyed talking over old times with Ben.

Both couples thought Port St. Lucie was a great place.

For Easter week, Mary and Ben had a great visit with their daughter Jean and her husband, Edward Brower, and their daughter Bette Anne from Union, N.J. Their son Wallis and his wife Lori and children Kim and Larry Matlock from Maitland, Florida, were also here. The family reunion was to celebrate Mary's birthday. Your 39th, Mary!

A dog run or a fence?

PORT ST. LUCIE–A good portion of time was once again devoted to Port St. Lucie canines when the Council met for Tuesday's workshop session.

This time it was the head of the city's building department, Ralph LaChance, who brought up the subject by asking whether or not dog runs were to be considered fences.

"I don't think it is the intention of the Council to prohibit the residents of this city from having a little dog. However, do you wish to consider the dog runs as fences?" LaChance asked the Council.

Fences within the city are prohibited by ordinance.

Then came the question of the dog house or shelter, should they be attached to the residence?

Before the discussion ended, a resident and president of the PSL Homeowners Assoc., Vern Forrar, recommended the city consider employing a dog catcher, claiming the fines imposed on the owners of stray animals would more than pay his salary.

The Council agreed the problems posed by local canines had gone the limit and promised further study of the matter.

Jim Waldie shoots spectacular round

PORT ST. LUCIE–Jim Waldie and Dick Lundin made a runaway of Thursday's golf tournament of the Sandpiper Men's Golf Association on the Saints Course, sparked by Waldie's best round ever, a spectacular 78 against his 21 handicap.

For Waldie, every post was a winning post. Although his previous all time low was an 88, Thursday he could do no wrong, making the turn in 42, and then blistering the back nine with two bogies, two birdies and seven pars for an even par 36. His 78 and Lundin's 87 gave the two mid-handicappers a combined Stableford partnership total of 92 points, far ahead of the runner-up duo of Al Jones and John Prinkey.

Leading teams Thursday: Waldie and Lundin, 92; Jones and Prinkey, 80; Al Bowman and Jack Radcliffe, 78; Tom Chapman and Duke Evans, 77; Frank O'Beirne and Don Estes, Dan Smozanek and Oscar Rurett, and Vern Forrar and Virg Somsel, 76; Roy Hannum and Cy Edwards, 75.

Players breaking 80 were: Chapman, 74; Joe Chappelle and Bill Coane, 77; Don McConnell, Sam Dewhirst, Waldie and Smozanek, 78; Ken Pagel.

In a side event Thursday, George Mood, Frank Gaskill and Augie Hofmeister held an 18 hole playoff to determine the Third Flight champion for the club's annual gross score 54 hole tournament concluded last week. The three wound up a stroke apart after the 72 holes, but Mood's 97 in the playoff gave him the title over his competitors' 98's.

This Thursday it's two best ball of foursome, played from the red, white and blue tees.

AND SOON THERE WILL BE LIGHT–With a tentative completion date of mid-May, the D.J. Harmon Company is wasting no time in getting the lights at Sportsman Park wired. The city is hopeful the lights will be working in time for the opening of the Little League season.

Langdon wins

PORT ST. LUCIE–Liz Langdon won championship flight honors in the low gross tournament played Tuesday, April 13, on the back nine of the Saints Course at Sandpiper Bay for the PSL Nine Hole Women's Golf Association.

1:30 P.M. parade

Fourth of July events planned

JENSEN BEACH–The Bicenten[nial] Fourth of July Celebration in [Jensen] Beach will include the [Grand] Annual Parade and the [traditional] finale climaxed by Bill [Stokes'] annual fireworks display.

Plans for the Bicentennial Fourth of July celebration were discussed last night by a special meeting of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors and represen[tatives] from various organizations [who] are involved in the activities.

The Second Annual Parade [will be] on the Fourth of July with Optimist [Mary] Andrea Webb chairman.

It starts the day's activities at 1:30 p.m.

It was suggested at the chamber session by Father Frank Alvarez, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church that a three-day celebration be held with the parade on Saturday, church services with combined services on Sunday, and the causeway celebration on Monday.

Father Alvarez called for a community-wide celebration noting that the Bicentennial has been celebrated for the entire year, not just one day.

He said he personally would be eliminated from the parade because of the conflict with church.

Others disagreed with his sugges[tion] with Bicentennial Committee chairman Barbara Torow pointing out that she would attend church prior to the parade, and Yurillo noting the difficulties with getting help to stage his fireworks display on any other day.

Also Chamber President L. D. Kirkpatrick noted that in his discussion with ministers there weren't any objections to the Sunday activities as long as they occurred after noon.

Kirk also noted that Saturday was still a workday for many merchants.

"I believe we'll have a smooth working event," Kirk said.

"We'll have parade marshals and keep people from parking cars in the parade staging area near the Post Office."

Mrs. Webb, who also was chairman of the first Fourth of July parade, said she expects more than 100 units in this year's parade.

We need bands and musical groups," Mrs. Webb said.

Entry forms will be sent out soon to organizations, she said. "We hope to make the parade traditional."

Density at issue

New causeway, roads top planning meeting

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–Realignment of the Jensen Beach Causeway into Commercial Street, a massive Jensen public marina, and a continuation of the Jensen Causeway road over the hill at Skyline Drive were among suggested traffic circulation ideas in the first phase of the new county county planning meeting last Wednesday.

The plan detailed on page 8-A of the Mirror this week, outlines the various zoning areas with density control uppermost in the minds of the planners. Many are being considered.

Chris Schenk, Martin County planner, met with residents last Wednesday night to present the ideas and get further input into the plan from the community.

Ideas include an extension of the Jensen Causeway road over the hill, down Zelda Drive and west to one of two points, a point just west of the Port Pape property where it would swing south to Commercial Street behind the Jensen Shopping Plaza and a point west of the mid-point between U.S. 1 and the Indian Shopping area.

Savannas progress is reported

JENSEN BEACH–Progress in the [illegible] purchase of the savannas was reported after a state official met with property owners in the vast wetlands of Martin and St. Lucie counties.

"McMillan-Sorrman left here with the feeling that the state has advanced far enough for tentative agreements and contracts. Dr. Walter Stokes said.

"We are in the final stages of [illegible] contracts. Dr. Stokes said.

McMillan, state purchasing agent [illegible] the Bureau of Land Acquisition [illegible] Department of Natural Resources (DNR), met with property owners at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce for the two-day session.

Dr. Stokes, leader in the save the savannas project, said [illegible] expects to hear the end of [illegible] before the State Cabinet [illegible] to approve the [illegible] contracts.

"So far most of the large [illegible] have been contacted but [illegible] vote of the smaller property [illegible] has not been found.

"There are some absentee land [illegible] in other parts of the [illegible] and they haven't been [illegible] Dr. Stokes said.

Dr. Stokes said he understands [illegible] Universal Adams is making [illegible] efforts to make its savannas [illegible] property available to a national [illegible] trust for Public Land.

Earlier this year, the trust for [illegible] Land announced it has [illegible] to purchase the General [illegible] Development Corp. (GDC) land in the savannas.

Trust official Joel Ruperfierg told of the GDC plan at a meeting of the Conservation Alliance.

The trust uses profits from resale to acquire and conserve land for open space needs of the public. Resale of savannas to the state according to the plans would be contingent on the state's acceptance of certain conditions, including a proposed land management plan.

The management plan would be developed jointly by the trust, DNR and local conservationists.

The savannas has been set marked by the state as a high priority purchase in its environmentally endangered lands program passed by the State Legislature in 1972.

More than $9 million of a $200 million bond issue was set aside for the state for purchase of the savannas.

Lake discharge report asked

JENSEN BEACH–Proposed regu[lations] governing the water level of [Lake] Okeechobee should be more [detailed] and specific in order to [control] discharges of silt into the St [Lucie] River, the Martin County [Conservation] Alliance said.

In a letter to the Army Corps of [Engineers] the Alliance said it was [pleased] with proposals to allow [higher] level of water to be stored in [Lake] Okeechobee. It also favored [provisions] to discharge water from [Lake] St. Lucie spillway at reduced [rates of] flow.

But the Corps proposals, the Alliance [said] would help prevent serious [damage] accompanying higher rates [of] water discharge.

But the Alliance said the Corps [should] be more precise in spelling [out] what actual flows are to be used [for] various lake levels.

Jensen Beach precinct split okayed

JENSEN BEACH–Martin County Commission Tuesday approved splitting Precinct 1, Jensen Beach area, into two voting precincts.

Supervisor of Elections Sandra Randolph said the new precinct will be 1A, everything north of Commercial Street and the Jensen Beach Cutoff Road, SR 707A, and Hutchinson Island.

Voting in Precinct 1A will be at the Jensen Beach Community Church.

Everything south of Commercial Street will continue to vote at Langford Park as they have done in the past, Mrs. Randolph said.

We will notify everyone in the new voting district telling them of their new voting location.

There are about 3,000 registered voters in Precinct 1, the largest precinct in the county. About a year ago Mrs. Randolph recommended dividing the precinct.

She also noted in the past that only six voting machine could be used at Langford Park Fieldhouse.

More witnesses

JENSEN BEACH–More witnesses will be called this week to testify in the Martin County Grand Jury drug investigation, according to the State Attorney's Office.

Assistant State Attorney Bruce Colton said the witnesses will be subpoenaed for questioning Thursday, the same day the jury is expected to make its report to Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge.

The five persons arrested so far in the drug probe include two former sheriff's deputies, Gerald Brown and John Roberts, who have been in charge of anti-smuggling operations in the Martin Sheriff's Department.

Paula Cromwell, Vance Thomas and John Leighton are the others who were arrested.

REGATTA QUEEN–Bonnie Epstein will reign over all activities of the Ninth Stuart Sailfish Regatta, May 8-9 at the Stuart Causeway. Miss Epstein is owner and manager of Neptune Casual Shoppe in Jensen Beach.

Ambulance building bid is OK

JENSEN BEACH–A $32,741 bid for construction of a Jensen Beach Samaritans Inc. Ambulance Building was approved Tuesday by the Martin County Commission.

Bolk Construction, Inc. of Stuart was the successful bidder for the new building on South Savanna Road.

Delivery date for the building, which will include a squad room, utility room, garage to house the ambulances, and kitchen is 100 days.

Jensen Beach Realtor Ransom Tilton offered the property to the county with "no strings attached."

The location of the building will be adjacent to Pinelake Village.

Five bids were received for the project, including Moseley and Son Construction, Inc., Stuart, $36,466.

G.A. Construction, Stuart, $39,466.

County Purchasing Agent Paul Penrod said Bolk bid was "in line with the anticipated cost."

Samaritans have repeatedly pointed out that is is difficult to get volunteers to serve without a place for them to stay while on duty.

Solar, wind power are lecture topics

JENSEN BEACH—James De Meo will be the speaker at a free lecture Friday, April 22, in the F.I.T. Science Building, beginning at 7:45 p.m.

A graduate of Environmental Science from Florida International University, De Meo is president of the Natural Energy Company in Delray, and an instructor of courses in natural energy.

His illustrated lecture on wind and solar power will evaluate means now available in wind and director solar power and will stress the need for specific legislation in the solar field, the lack of which now holds back development and use of this power.

Sponsored by CURE (Citizens United against Radioactive Environment), Friday's program is part of the continuing lecture series devoted to development of alternative energy sources which are safe and nonpolluting.

A CURE spokesman says, "With accepted energy resources dwindling, new power sources must be found and an informed citizenry is essential to the creation and utilization of alternatives."

Fourth of July events planned

PARADE CHAT—Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce president J. D. Kirkpatrick and Andrea Webb, chairman of the organized Auxiliars Fourth of July parade, discuss the parade route and timing at Monday night's special chamber meeting.

JENSEN BEACH—The Bicentennial Fourth of July Celebration in Jensen Beach will include the annual Parade and the festivities will be climaxed by Bill Smith's annual fireworks display.

Plans for the Bicentennial Fourth of July celebration were discussed Monday night by a special meeting of Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors and representatives from various organizations who are involved in the activities.

The Second Annual Parade [illegible] 76 with Optimist Secretary Andrea Webb chairman, starts the day's activities at 1:30 p.m.

It was suggested at the chamber session by Father Frank Alvarez, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church that a three-day celebration be held with the parade on Saturday, church services with combined services on Sunday, and the causeway celebration on Monday.

Father Alvarez called for a community-wide celebration, noting that the Bicentennial has been celebrated for the entire year, not just one day.

He said he personally would be eliminated from the parade because of the conflict with church.

Others disagreed with his suggestions with Bicentennial Committee chairman Barbara Toros pointing out that she would attend church prior to the parade, and Yurilla noting the difficulties with getting help to stage his fireworks display on any other day.

Also, Chamber President J. D. Kirkpatrick noted that in his discussion with ministers there weren't any objections to the Sunday activities, as long as they occurred after noon.

Kirk also noted that Saturday was still a workday for many merchants.

I believe we'll have a smooth working event, Kirk said.

We'll have parade marshals and keep people from parking cars in the parade staging area near the Post Office.

Mrs. Webb, who also was chairman of the first Fourth of July parade, said she expects more than 100 units in this year's parade.

We need bands and musical groups, Mrs. Webb said.

Entry forms will be sent out soon to organizations, she said. We hope to make the parade traditional.

Density at issue

New causeway, roads top planning meeting

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH—Realignment of the Jensen Beach Causeway into Commercial Street at the Island Jensen public marina and a continuation of the Jensen Causeway road over the hill at Skyline Drive were among suggested traffic control ideas in the first phase of the new north county planning meeting last Wednesday.

The plan printed on page 8 of The Mirror this week outlines the various zoning areas with density control uppermost in the minds of the planners that are being considered.

Chris Schenk, Martin County planner, met with residents last Wednesday night to present the ideas and get further input into the plan from the community.

Ideas include an extension of the Jensen Causeway road over the hill down Zelda Drive and west to one of two points, a point just west of the Fort Pipe property where it would swing south to Commercial Street behind the Jensen Shopping Plaza and a point west to the middle [illegible] shopping area.

Another proposal would [illegible] suggested [illegible] north south road [illegible] Skyline.

Inlet meeting is tonight

JENSEN BEACH—Army Engineers will hold a public meeting in Stuart on Wednesday, April 28, concerning preconstruction planning for federal improvement of St. Lucie Inlet for navigation, beach erosion control and recreation purposes.

The Jacksonville District Engineer, Col. Donald A. Wisdom said the public meeting will be conducted in the Stuart Women's Club, 725 East Ocean Blvd., at 7 p.m., to present updated information concerning the authorized plan and the requirements of local cooperation.

The plan appearing to best satisfy the needs at the inlet consists of extending the existing north jetty 300 feet and modifying it to provide a sand bypass weir section; excavating a sand impoundment basin south of the weir section; and constructing a south jetty which initially will extend 1200 feet into the ocean to control shoaling from a northerly movement during seasonal reversals of littoral drift. Also excavated sand will be placed on the beach south of the inlet. Other benefits will include a walkway on top of the south jetty to allow recreation fishing and periodic maintenance of the channel and basin with suitable material being used to nourish the south beach.

Purpose of the meeting, Col. Wisdom said, is to give all interested parties an opportunity to express their views and furnish specific data on matters pertinent to the study. All statements will become part of the official written record on this plan and will be made available for public examination.

Breakfast Club meets Tuesday

JENSEN BEACH—The Jensen Beach Breakfast Club will meet Tuesday, May 4, at 7:30 a.m. at the Holiday Inn Oceanside.

BY DOROTHY BRESTON

Mice and Charles Goddard of Abeto Lane had quite a family reunion recently. Their son Donald, his wife Dorothy and their four children, Eric, Bethany, Keith and Craig came from Brandon, Mass. The Goddard's daughter Jean, who is a Wycliffe Bible Translator on a Sabbatical from New Guinea was also in Port St. Lucie. Jean went back to Massachusetts with her brother and his family, then will return here before going back to her post. It was the first time in 16 years [illegible] had been together and a great time for the grandkids.

Jean and Dorothy Kaiser of Lewis Avenue, spent part of last week in Miami visiting the Harold Tolbert's. The Harold Tolberts recently moved to Florida from the Highlands of New Jersey to be near their great grandchildren, Stacie, Harold, Lauren of age, Keith [illegible] in Miami Tolbert, Jr. The Harold Tolberts are now in Florida to stay.

Jo and Walt Walker of Essex Drive had a visit from his brother, brother-in-law and son, Al and Grace Marinich and Mike from Wadsworth, Ohio. Another friend to entertain Broadwick from Silver Springs, Md. Elizabeth and she worked together at the Naval Space Center in Cleveland. The Walkers daughter, Judi Yeager from S. Miami was also in Port St. Lucie and although it was a houseful all enjoyed being together and spent most of their time swimming in the pool.

Loretta and Bob Getz of Electra Avenue entertained her sister, Margaret Weltmire and son Jerry from North Braddock, Pa. and their daughter, Cecelia Budak from Sharonville, Ohio and their grandson Robert Donaches from Swissvale, Pa. The guests main point of interest was the ocean where they enjoyed swimming almost every day.

Carl Maggard from Prospect, Ky. visited with his parents, Harold and Catherine Maggard of Beach Avenue. A friend of Carl's, Ronnie McGlynn of Long Island was also a guest here.

Last Wednesday, Carl, Ronnie, Harold, John Jankowski of Port St. Lucie, Eric Erickson of Port St. Lucie, and Joe Najemki of Peppet Lake, Florida went deep sea fishing on the Little George in Fort Pierce. Ken Moore is the Skipper on the Little George. Carl reported that Ken was most helpful to the fishermen.

An event occurred that is most rare, both Carl and Eric caught a sailfish at the same time. Carl's was 6 ft. 4 in. and Eric's was 6 ft. Both men kept the sails and are having [illegible]

Barbara Bonner was a happy mom, as she hosted a 12th birthday party. I should say it was quite a successful day and the wives of many fishermen who go after the sails and other game fish were happy, too.

Lee and Vonnie Metzger of Harbor View Drive had a visit from their daughter Pat, her husband Bob Slade and their three teenage daughters, Sharon, Cindy and Kim from South Miami. Their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kowalchek of Steubenville, Ohio were also guests. Frank and Vonnie worked together before retirement. Boating, swimming, golf and shopping were on the schedule for the guests. Mrs. Kowalchek had never been to West Palm and had a great time shopping.

My apologies to Dorothy Bunker Hunt and Bob Hosher and Jack and Rena Tyler and any others I may have overlooked for having their names misspelled in last week's column. I have been sending in my news hand written instead of being typed and I guess my handwriting was not as plain as it should have been. Please forgive me. Better still, forgive dumb Arlene who can't see as good as more.

Flo and John Schwartz of Calmoso Drive had a visit from John's sister and her husband Mr. and Mrs. John McCrea and son Jack from Dayton, Ohio. The McCreas have spent the winter in Ft. Myers Beach and visited on Port St. Lucie before returning north.

Mike and Lee Reeb of Calmoso Drive recently visited old friends in Sarasota, Florida, then had a visit here with Mike's brother Jim and his wife Louise, who live in Brighton, Michigan. Lee said they all did the usual boating and seeing our part of Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Loyd from Houston, Texas, and their two children Alexandra, 3 years old and son Ian 10 weeks old, visited Mrs. Loyd's parents, Harold and Faye Thomson of Harborview Drive. Beside deep sea fishing, boating and enjoying Florida, the family were all happy being together.

PINE LAKE VILLAGE

Pine Cones

BY BOB RAMSEY

Were you there? Just when everyone had reached the conclusion that the social season was at an end, one of the nicest occasions this has happened.

Our pool party, starting in the early afternoon and running far into the night, was well attended by park residents.

Our thanks go to Rita and Bob Palmer, Ray Garlicki, Gerri and Howard Arkins and Irene and Larry O'Donnell, who were out on their feet at the end of the night.

It is delightful to sit down and enjoy just an outing, but also well to recognize the hard work that goes into it. So, we had games such as shuffleboard, horse shoes and pool games, and no one got thrown into the pool, and everyone parted friends.

Now, get yourselves ready for our Bicentennial Fourth of July celebration. Bet you didn't know that, patterned along the same lines as the pool party, Pinelake will be having a parade and pet show. We're not even going to tell you yet who will be taking the parts of Betsy Ross and the Statue of Liberty.

If you've got any ideas or suggestions you would like to see implemented, sound off while there is plenty of time.

Still trying to get a large number of participants for our card night or game night, if you prefer, every Friday. Try to come up to the clubhouse about 7 p.m. on Friday and there is little doubt that you will find a group ready and eager to play any type of game you mention. If the column doesn't reach some of your neighbors, pass the word.

Glad to see the Tranthams back from Michigan.

See you next week.

Meet the Hornes: Edna and George.

Edna was born in New Haven, Conn., went to school in the area and at the Conn. State Teachers was lucky enough to be with the class that finished four years at that institution. Previously it had only been three, and received her Bachelor of Ed degree.

First job was in a two room country school in Hebron, Conn., ten miles from the nearest town. Second year to Stratford, where she met George. Three weeks, an engagement ring, and four months later they were married in Athens, Ga. (A whirlwind, and that holds the track record for Pinelake so far.)

After serving with the First Army for three years and being in such places as the Battle of the Bulge, George returned, and they started their family. Edna gave up teaching to raise two boys but returned to teaching in Shelton where she continued until retirement after 26 years of elementary teaching in those grades.

Her hobby is music and, down through the years she has been a soloist in college churches, directed choruses, sang leads in operettas and even played in mortuaries. Love to bake, knits, crochets and embroiders. Played basketball, raced and swam. Tomboy you know. Pitched pennies, but the cops got her.

George was born in Haverhill, Mass. Came to Conn. when he was two, and lived on the borders of Housatonic River in Stratford. His sports included fishing, hunting and swimming.

In adult life, he learned many trades such as machinist and boring mill operator. During his time in the service, he served on radar crew of anti-aircraft 90 mm guns, earning five battle stars for five campaigns.

Forgot to mention that they were given a full military wedding in Athens, Ga., crossed swords you know, the whole bit.

George then started in the elevator trade, returning several years later to boring mill trade to settle in one place and continue raising his family. This was at Avco Lycoming in Stratford. He was a Boy Scout leader, Master of Masonic Lodge and High Priest of Royal Arch Masons.

In 1968 he suffered a stroke but, with a lot of determination and hard work, is making a great recovery.

Edna and George have two sons, Stephen and Dan. Dan was married to Sarah McAllister on April 24, 1976. Steve is still serving in the Navy, good boy. He has already completed eight years. Previously he was aboard the nuclear cruiser Long Beach and did the orient and Viet Nam twice.

Dan was with the Air Force for four years, working in electronics and attending night school for his E.E. He received several commendation in service and apparently Edna has kept a scrap book on both of them.

Sounds real good folks. Do I hear any more volunteers?

Venture Out

BY JACKIE PHILLIPS

Mary Ellyn Meachum, chairman of the recreation committee, gave the following informal report: "Jean's Kitchen" netted $307.33 on the luncheons served during the Easter holiday. She thanks all those good people who donated baked beans and those who helped Jean in the kitchen. All who visited the kitchen thought it was a wonderful idea and hope it can be duplicated next year.

The recreation has earned over $1,300 since November. They bought four new tables and 80 chairs for the rec hall, and have a balance of approximately $800 - a nice start for next fall.

Swordfish Lane said "goodbye" to Marmie and Curt Paynter on Sunday, and to May and Earl Eisenhard on Monday. We had no sooner said "hello" to the Shanes and they left.

It's that time of year!

Mary Ellyn Meachum is enjoying the visit of her grandson, B.J. Kyle, granddaughter Kelly Kyle, and her friend Kellie Orr - all of them fron Bartonville, Illinois.

Your reporter bids au revoir, arivederci 'til fall. We feel confident that Willard Auch will keep us informed through the summer months. He will appreciate news from all of you "out there" - keep those letters coming.

Keep well, take care.

BY JESSE SHAVER

Each week we say "Goodbye, have a nice summer...we'll see you in the fall" to a few more of our neighbors. Thelma and Max Dickey, Jean and Gil VanWilligen, Alice and Art Baumann are the latest ones.

However, we do have a few returnees.

Helen Frederickson is back from her tour.

Don and Faye Smith flew in Saturday to spend the weekend here. They say they have been having Florida weather in West Virginia, but with a lot of storms.

The Grovers are here for a few weeks, taking care of the final details of getting their new mobile home completely finished, moving in and getting their landscaping started before they have to go back home by May first. Welcome to Venture Harbour!

Fran Tener flew to Washington to spend the weekend and visit friends. She and Dick will be staying in Venture Harbour all summer.

Bobbi and Andre Girard had a phone call this last week that has set them into a happy spin. Although it will cause some changes in their plan for a European trip this summer, they are very happy to learn from daughter Gail that she and Mike Corcoran have found out that the baby that is due in July is, in fact, twins and the delivery may be sooner.

Betty and Paul Drinkard had as their guests for a few days Betty's parents, Evelyn and Clarence Arnold of Ft. Lauderdale.

Yvonne and Bud Wieneke are very happily entertaining their son James, daughter-in-law Patty, and grandchildren Packy Lynn, Debbie, and Timmie of Shelton, Conn.

Last week's bowling scores: Bill Thompson, 446; Al Suckow, 406; Marion Asline, 387; John Callahan, 380; Edna Wilston, 379; Irene Callahan, 287.

This is the end of bowling for this year.

BY JANE NOLAN

The last pool tournament was won by Andy Weston.

Things are quiet -- most of the owners and long term residents have left, or are making plans to leave, with regrets.

Jane Nolan's nieces Mary Kay and Jane Ann Ward of Lockport, N.Y., spent a short vacation with Jane and Frank. Their first visit to Florida, and they were very busy and interested in everything.

Leo and Lucille Robitaille of Tyngaboro, Mass., arrived home safely after spending two months with us. They are planning on returning next year.

Joe and Dot Herzog left last week for their home in New Jersey. On their way they stopped at Cape Canaveral to see the space shot. It was also visible at Venture Out.

John and Ruth Balash will be leaving in a week to visit Ruth's mother and family in Ohio.

Roger and Mildred Fortin are with us for a week, busy working on their lawn and garden.

Carl and Katie Schroeder were at Ft. Lauderdale for a few days visiting Katie's sister. They will be leaving here in a week. They expect to spend this summer traveling around the west and northwest.

Frank and Jane Nolan will be leaving the first of May to return to Lockport, New York.

Since this is my final column, I would like to thank all who helped by bringing news to me. Also, I personally am most appreciative to all those who have made this park a pleasant place to live. The men who have done so much to keep things going well here. Both men and ladies for keeping up the lovely flowers. People who have kept up our pot luck dinners, bingo, shuffleboard, card games, printing, hobbies, art, hymn sing and Bible class.

The raising of our flag so faithfully is worthy of much praise. Those that work on setting up the program for the month and to the lady who takes care of blood pressure check.

Also, to all our officers who try to keep things running smoothly. Many thanks to those who set up special dinners and parties. It has all been great.

Please give your next correspondent even more cooperation than you gave me.

As I was triking one day, I stopped to talk to Teresa Shoup as she was washing her car. Her son Charles and his family have been visiting her and the day before had been out on their large boat. They had caught a 35-pound wahoo, some dolphin and a sailfish.

I leave you with this – all the good you send out into the lives of others comes back to be your own.

Happy traveling to those who are.

Take care and help keep peace.

Venture Out

BY JACKIE PHILLIPS

Mary Ellyn Meachum, chairman of the recreation committee, gave the following informal report: "Jean's Kitchen" netted $307.33 on the luncheons served during the Easter holiday. She thanks all those good people who donated baked beans and those who helped Jean in the kitchen. All who visited the kitchen thought it was a wonderful idea and hope it can be duplicated next year.

The recreation has earned over $1,300 since November. They bought four new tables and 32 chairs for the rec hall, and have a balance of approximately $800 - a nice start for next fall.

Swordfish Lane said "goodbye" to Marmie and Curt Payntor on Sunday, and to May and Earl Eisenhard on Monday. We had no sooner said "hello" to the Shanes and they left.

It's that time of year!

Mary Ellyn Meachum is enjoying the visit of her grandson, B.J. Kyle, granddaughter Kelly Kyle, and her friend Kellie Orr - all of them from Bartonville, Illinois.

Your reporter bids au revoir, arivederci til fall. We feel confident that Willard Auch will keep us informed through the summer months. He will appreciate news from all of you "out there" – keep those letters coming.

Keep well, take care.

BY JESSE SHAVER

Each week we say "Goodbye, have a nice summer - we'll see you in the fall" to a few more of our neighbors. Thelma and Max Dickey, Jean and Gil VanWilligen, Alice and Art Baumann are the latest ones.

However, we do have a few returnees.

Helen Frederickson is back from her tour.

Don and Faye Smith flew in Saturday to spend the weekend here. They say they have been having Florida weather in West Virginia, but with a lot of storms.

The Grovers are here for a few weeks, taking care of the final details of getting their new mobile home completely finished, moving in and getting their landscaping started before they have to go back home by May first. Welcome to Venture Harbour.

Fran Tener flew to Washington to spend the weekend and visit friends. She and Dick will be staying in Venture Harbour all summer.

Bobbi and Andre Girard had a phone call this last week that has set them into a happy spin. Although it will cause some changes in their plan for a European trip this summer, they are very happy to learn from daughter Gail that she and Mike Corcoran have found out that the baby that is due in July is, in fact, twins and the delivery may be sooner.

Betty and Paul Drinkard had as their guests for a few days Betty's parents, Evelyn and Clarence Arnold of Ft. Lauderdale.

Yvonne and Bud Wieneke are very happily entertaining their son James, daughter-in-law Patty, and grandchildren Packy Lynn, Debbie, and Timmie of Shelton, Conn.

Last week's bowling scores: Bill Thompson, 446; Al Suckow, 406; Marion Asline, 387; John Callahan, 380; Edna Wilston, 379; Irene Callahan, 287.

This is the end of bowling for this year.

BY JANE NOLAN

The last pool tournament was won by Andy Weston.

Things are quiet – most of the owners and long term residents have left, or are making plans to leave with regrets.

Jane Nolan's nieces Mary Kay and Jane Ann Ward of Lockport, N.Y. spent a short vacation with Jane and Frank. Their first visit to Florida, and they were very busy and interested in everything.

Leo and Lucille Robitaille of Tyngsboro, Mass., arrived home safely after spending two months with us. They are planning on returning next year.

Joe and Dot Herzog left last week for their home in New Jersey. On their way they stopped at Cape Canaveral to see the space shot. It was also visible at Venture Out.

John and Ruth Balash will be leaving in a week to visit Ruth's mother and family in Ohio.

Roger and Mildred Fortin are with us for a week, busy working on their lawn and garden.

Carl and Katie Schroeder were at Ft. Lauderdale for a few days visiting Katie's sister. They will be leaving here in a week. They expect to spend this summer traveling around the west and northwest.

Frank and Jane Nolan will be leaving the first of May to return to Lockport, New York.

Grid coaches at Fronton

JENSEN BEACH—Which high school football coach in the tri-county area is the best jai alai player?

That question will be answered Sunday afternoon, May 2, when Fort Pierce Central High School coach Phil Farinella, Vero Beach High's coach Wayne Griffith and Martin County High School coach Wayne Bowling square off against each other on the court at the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton.

The battle of the coaches will be part of Fort Pierce Jai Alai's exhibition series which allows youngsters to witness the world's fastest and toughest sport. Since there is no betting during the Sunday afternoon contests, there are no age restrictions.

Neither coach has ever played jai alai before, but they will be given expert instruction about an hour and a half before the 2 p.m. event. The coaches will be teamed up with regular players from the Fort Pierce roster. The coaches will play front court, the professionals will be in the back court in the seven point triple partido.

Coach Bowling will be teamed up with Echane who is considered a wizard with his outstanding catches.

Coach Farinella's partner will be Fausto who is a very consistent player.

Coach Griffith will have as his teammate Junio, one of the fastest men on the court.

To encourage the coaches to put forth their finest effort there will be an award for the best cheerleading team as determined by a vote from the audience.

Students from the three schools are encouraged to turn out in force to root for their favorite coach and vote for their favorite cheerleaders.

Grid coaches at Fronton

JENSEN BEACH—Which high school football coach in the tri-county area is the best Jai alai player?

That question will be answered Sunday afternoon, May 2, when Fort Pierce Central High School coach Phil Farinella, Vero Beach High's coach Wayne Griffith and Martin County High School coach Wayne Bowling square off against each other on the court at the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton.

The battle of the coaches will be part of Fort Pierce Jai Alai's exhibition series which allows youngsters to witness the world's fastest and toughest sport. Since there is no betting during the Sunday afternoon contests, there are no age restrictions.

Neither coach has ever played jai alai before, but they will be given expert instruction about an hour and a half before the 2 p.m. event. The coaches will be teamed up with regular players from the Fort Pierce roster. The coaches will play front court, the professionals will be in the back court in the seven point triple partido.

Coach Bowling will be teamed up with Echano, who is considered a wizard with his outstanding catches.

Coach Farinella's partner will be Fausto, who is a very consistent player.

Coach Griffith will have as his teammate Julio, one of the fastest men on the court.

To encourage the coaches to put forth their finest effort, the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton is inviting the cheerleaders from the three schools to whoop it up for their respective high schools and coaches.

To encourage the cheerleaders to put forth their finest effort, there will be an award for the best cheerleading team, as determined by a vote from the audience.

Students from the three schools are encouraged to turn out in force to root for their favorite coach and vote for their favorite cheerleaders.

Grid coaches at Fronton

JENSEN BEACH—Which high school football coach in the tri-county area is the best jai alai player?

That question will be answered Sunday afternoon, May 2, when Fort Pierce Central High School coach Phil Farinella, Vero Beach High's coach Wayne Griffith and Martin County High School coach Wayne Bowling square off against each other on the court at the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton.

The battle of the coaches will be part of Fort Pierce Jai Alai's exhibition series which allows youngsters to witness the world's fastest and toughest sport. Since there is no betting during the Sunday afternoon contests there are no age restrictions.

Neither coach has ever played jai alai before, but they will be given expert instruction about an hour and a half before the 2 p.m. event. The coaches will be teamed up with regular players from the Fort Pierce roster. The coaches will play front court, the professionals will be in the back court in the seven point triple partido.

Coach Bowling will be teamed up with Echano, who is considered a wizard with his outstanding catches.

Coach Farinella's partner will be Rausito who is a very consistent player.

Coach Griffith will have as his teammate Julio, one of the fastest men on the court.

To encourage the coaches to put forth their finest effort the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton is inviting the cheerleaders from the three schools to whoop it up for their respective high schools and coaches.

To encourage the cheerleaders to put forth their finest effort there will be an award for the best cheerleading team as determined by a vote from the audience.

Students from the three schools are encouraged to turn out in force to root for their favorite coach and vote for their favorite cheerleaders.

It's now time to be aware of the dangerous conditions that have existed in the ocean for past week. The strong rip tide took many swimmers out farther than they were aware and many had to be rescued.

We were all saddened and much alarmed by the one drowning that occurred. Ken Hoar, who was vacationing with his wife Marilyn and four children in the resort, was reportedly seen diving into a wave and didn't come back up. His body was spotted a bit later by a lifeguard who aided by others brought him to shore where artificial respiration was administered until help arrived. We have to commend all who worked so hard to try and save his life.

Later that day an elderly gentleman was seen in trouble. Jimmy Brown a member of our security force, was swimming nearby and immediately went to his aid. He brought him in part way and called to John Wilson to help him out. John immediately went to help along with Gill Perreau who is staying on lot 151 for a two weeks' vacation.

Joe McDermott followed Gill out without hesitation, only to find he wasn't able to make it himself. Seeing Joe in trouble, Al Koffler, an attorney from New York and Joe Lucci, a winter resident from Youngstown, Ohio, went to his aid.

Everyone involved deserves a great deal of thanks for their bravery and participation.

Harriet and Marlin Marquardt still haven't quite gotten over a narrow escape they had. They recently moved to Beach Colony and while swimming in the ocean over there Easter Sunday they drifted out with the tides & found they were unable to swim back in. They seldom find anyone else on the beach over there but some miracle, a very strong swimmer came to their aid, brought Harriet in and sending two more out to get Marlin.

They were so sure this was the end for each other, they were even there final goodbyes and prayers.

The Shore Patrol from Fort Pierce administered oxygen to them & they are most grateful to the strong swimmer and surfers who came to their rescue.

Planning meeting is May 10

...SEN BEACH–A final public ...g on the north Martin County ...ehensive plan is slated for ... Monday, May 10, at Jensen ... First Federal Savings and ... Building on Commercial ...

...ty Planning Director Kris ... said the next step for the north county area plan will be a public hearing before the Planning Commission at the courthouse on May 20 at 7:30 p.m.

"There may be some minor changes for the north area, some road changes," Schenk said. "But I believe the people are pretty well aware of the plan."

Schenk and his staff have held public meetings in North River Shores, Rio and Jensen Beach.

The planning map for the area appeared in the April 28 issue of The Mirror. Residents may check the map and make any suggestions for changes at the May 10 meeting.

Neighborhood meetings "grass roots hearings" have been held for the past several weeks in various sections of the county by Schenk and his staff in an attempt to develop a county-wide comprehensive plan.

Meetings were held in the Port Salerno and Rocky Point area and Palm City area before the staff came to Jensen Beach.

Last week the County Commission approved the Palm City plan.

The planning staff will go to Hobe Sound, south Stuart area, and then to Indiantown area, and then to the South County area.

The state has mandated that each county develop a comprehensive plan.

$6.2 million

Inlet work is outlined

JENSEN BEACH–Plans for improving the St. Lucie Inlet were outlined at a public meeting last week.

Work on the $6.2 million project is expected to begin late in 1977, according to Jacksonville District Engineer Col. Donald Wilson of the Army Corps of Engineers.

Spokesmen for conservation groups, fishing groups, Chamber of Commerce groups and the general public welcomed the project in comments during the session.

It was noted by one spokesman that there have been 11 deaths in the inlet since 1960. And Jack Sherlin of the Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 14 said auxiliary members have rescued 20 boats with 50 persons aboard that experienced trouble with inlet hazards the first 90 days of this year.

Planned improvements in the inlet include extension of the north jetty, which now lies out of southeasterly direction, and modification of the existing jetty to provide a sand bypass through it, about 300 feet long.

Other improvements planned include:

1. Excavation of a sand impoundment basin next to the bypass in the jetty, capable of holding 240,000 cubic yards of sand that would drift through the bypass.

2. Construction of a jetty south of the inlet 1,200 feet long initially with the possibility of doubling the length in the future, if necessary.

3. Construction of a walkway for fishermen on top of the south jetty.

4. Excavation of a channel 500 feet wide and 10 feet deep through the bar at the entrance to the inlet, tapering to a width of 150 feet through the inlet and 100 feet wide and seven feet deep in the Intracoastal Waterway.

5. Transfer of 100,000 cubic yards of sand from the inlet to the beach south of the inlet during each two-year maintenance period.

6. State development and maintenance of a public park on the inlet's south shore at the north end of Jupiter Island.

House of Refuge opening is May 15

...SEN BEACH–The House of ...ge will be reopened with a brief ...mony at 11 a.m. Saturday, May ...

...remodeling of the historic ...chinson Island museum has been ... way for the past few months to ... it back to its original condition.

The $100,000 restoration project was financed by gifts from local residents, grants from the county, the Florida Bicentennial Committee and Historical Society with matching funds from the federal government.

The restored island landmark now contains four rooms on the main floor furnished as living quarters for the keeper.

Many of the authentic furnishings downstairs and in an upstairs dormitory have come from local sources. The three-story chimney serving the kitchen fireplace was made with old bricks from an old estate on the St. Lucie River.

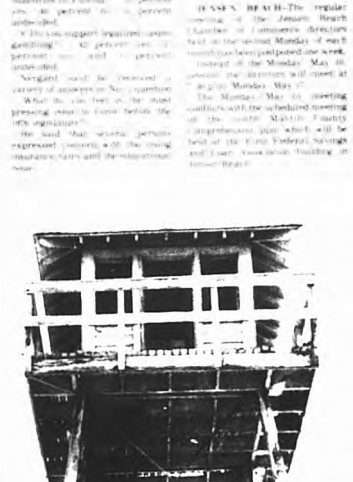
The 45-foot flagpole installed on the ocean side of the house was designed and entirely hand-hewn by Pat Kenny, a local artist.

Construction of the House of Refuge was authorized by the federal government in 1875, one of nine on Florida's east coast.

Remodeling of the structure was done to bring it back to its original condition when it served as a United States Lifesaving Service.

During its 100-year history, the installation was converted to U.S. Navy and Coast Guard use, with active service in World War I and World War II. It was decommissioned in 1945 and opened as a museum in 1955.

The House of Refuge's 100th anniversary was observed Saturday, October 18, 1975, and one of the activities during the celebration was the firing of the Lyle gun. It will be fired again May 15.



TOWER TOIL: A workman near the top of the House of Refuge light tower is installing new steps. Work on the tower is part of the remodeling of the museum on Hutchinson Island. Reopening of the House of Refuge is set for May 15.

The shelter house

For good kids with bad parents

BY RICHARD CAMPBELL

A child claims she was raped twice once by her father when she was eight, and the other time by her step-father when she was twelve.

"No one can prove it, as it's the child's word against her family. However, the child was returned to her parents by the Florida Division of Family Services."

Jensen Kiwanians sat in uncomfortable silence.

The woman talked in almost a monotone, explaining what a "shelter housemother" faces in handling children who are not bad but have parents who are.

Her story must be anonymous, as the parents of child abuse victims might then know where their children are and that could lead to harassment of the woman and her family.

"They would know where their children are, and they would come to my house to get them, or to threaten me," she said.

She handles children who are victims of their parents parents who drink too much, beat their children, or don't care enough for them to stay at home and care for the children's problems.

She operates the only "shelter house" in five counties for children who come under the DPS program.

The retired nurse who has had seven years of psychiatric experience and retired as administrator of a nursing home up north, brings the children into her home for care until they are either returned to their homes or are placed in foster homes.

Her home is licensed to handle twelve children. She said that it is difficult to find persons willing to open shelter houses as the problems with the children entail much understanding.

Though she is supposed to keep the children only two weeks, she has had one child nine months. Because he is black, wets the bed and lies. He has lied for so long he doesn't know what truth is. And he wets the bed because he feels that a monster will come in his room while he goes to the bathroom in the middle of the night, so he just stays in bed, rather than going to the bathroom.

There have been 95 children through her home since last September.

"They don't know how to eat. They don't know how to sit at tables. Some don't even know how to go to the bathroom.

"They come in wearing rags and have low I. Q.'s! Big for clothing for the children, but even buying from thrift stores, I can't get them much with that.

"One child goes to school without shoes because I can't find the right size shoes and can't afford new ones," she said.

The children are not all from the other side of the tracks. Many are from prominent families.

One child asked, "What corner can I sleep in?" The child had never slept in a bed before.

She has had one little twelve-year old girl three times. Her mother beat her and hit her, but the courts always returned the girl to her mother after a few weeks.

The shelter mother asked the Kiwanians to open their eyes to the public. The children need help.

She said that the children need love and understanding. They could use some hard hugs so they can play outside on mixed yards.

"Little things mean a lot to kids: a comic book, brush, a pet that carries notebook paper or a pencil that has a point and an eraser.

All it takes is patience and they will work out okay.

She told of one little boy who has a hearing problem.

I can't get a doctor to look at the child. I know that he just needs care for his ears. He is withdrawn, sits in class and doesn't study because he can't hear and won't tell anyone he has a problem.

The Kiwanians sat in absolute silence as the story unfolded. Visibly moved when the woman finished the speech, the Kiwanians offered their help.

Dr. Richard Pennick offered to look at the child with the hearing problem. Several others offered money, and the Kiwanis Club plans to hold a Christmas party for the children; others plan programs of individual assistance to the shelter home.

Perhaps, with the help planned by the Jensen Kiwanis Club, the children will find their stay at the shelter house more comfortable.

"It's a story we don't like to hear," said Dr. Pennick, "but a story that must be told again and again."

This bill, if it would allow Congress and change the countless and counterproductive regulations which federal have devised over the would require either a simple resolution by approval by one all by the other member of Congress could introduce a bill to veto a regulation. The veto resolution would go to the committee with oversight and legislative responsibility over the agency in question.

But, it would be more difficult for the committee to bottle up a veto resolution. Under this bill, a discharge petition -- which normally requires a full-scale majority of the House membership in order to pull a bill from committee -- could be used to release a veto resolution from committee with just one-fifth of the membership.

And, the veto authority would apply to all federal agencies -- the independent regulatory agencies such as the Federal Communications Commission and the Civil Aeronautics Board and the major executive departments such as HEW, HUD or Transportation.

There are those, both in the Congress and the bureaucracy, who are adamantly opposed to any such legislation, contending it would destroy the doctrine of separation of powers between the executive and legislative branches.

However, so long as the agencies in question -- created as they were by the Congress -- write rules and regulations in accord with the legislative intent of the law creating them, there will be no veto attempt.

Only when the bureaucrats -- as they have done so often in the past -- go far beyond what Congress intended -- would the veto come into play.

And then it would be justified.

The issue is simple. As one Congressman put it, "Are we going to pass the laws governing the people in America or are we going to turn the law-making function over to people who have never been elected by anybody?"

Right now, the Congress has abdicated a great deal of its responsibility in this regard.

So it is high time the Congress put this entire regulation business back in perspective. The Congress sets the basic policy; the bureaucrats implement the policy.

But the Congress sets the limits. That's what this bill would do.

And that's what is so desperately needed.

Plaza name is changed

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County Commissioners voted 3-2 last week to change the name of the Executive Plaza building to the Martin County Administrative Center.

Commissioners Rosa Philbrick and Tom Higgins voted against the change. It will inconvenience the private companies that are subleasing office space from the county, they said.

However, Commission Chairman John Kiernan and Commissioners Maggie Hurchalla and Tymes Powers noted that the name should reflect governmental usage of the building.

Drug traffic high in county

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County is a center of activity for multi-million dollar drug smuggling operations, a Grand Jury reported last week after a five-week probe of drug activities.

The jury presented its report to Circuit Court Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge.

Fifty-one witnesses had been questioned by the panel by last week, and the jury reported, "It has been made clear to this Grand Jury that drug smuggling is a multi-million-dollar business which is presently flourishing in this area."

The Grand Jury report "found Martin County to be a prime location for drug smuggling because it has so many waterways and the vast number of unsupervised aircraft landing strips."

Although the bulk of the evidence presented to the Grand Jury was in regard to marijuana," the report continued, "it has also been shown that other drugs such as heroin and especially cocaine are imported to this country, with much of it going through the state of Florida."

The Grand Jury found that "until recently the two-man vice and narcotics squad of the Martin Sheriff's Department had too much freedom and too little supervision."

Sheriff James Holt agreed with this finding, after it was published, and said he has taken corrective steps.

The two men who manned the vice and narcotics squad were Gerald Brown and John Roberts, both of whom have been indicted on charges of conspiring to steal drugs being held for evidence, stealing the drugs, delivering them and official misconduct.

The jury also found that inadequate records were kept of persons who visited the county jail where marijuana to be used as evidence was kept.

Based on these findings the jury recommended:

1. Better record keeping of persons who enter the jail and those who work in the jail.

2. Closer supervision by the sheriff of the daily activities of the vice and narcotics investigations.

3. That vice and narcotics investigators be periodically rotated.

4. That Martin law enforcement officers receive more training in drugs and drug investigations.

5. That sheriff's deputies work only within Martin County unless otherwise requested by a state or federal agency or with the knowledge and permission of the chief law enforcement officer of any other county to which an investigation might lead.

6. That a more efficient and accurate system be devised for dispensing and accounting for money used for confidential investigations.

The Grand Jury also recommended that federal law agencies work harder in Martin County and that federal officers pay close attention to the care and custody of drugs taken as evidence.

Besides indicting Brown and Roberts, the jury has indicted Vance Thomas and Paula Cromwell on drug related charges and has charged John Leighton with helping alleged drug traffickers avoid arrest.

Judge Trowbridge called the report very constructive and praised the jury members for the work they have done and are continuing to do.

Golden Gloves history recalled

JENSEN BEACH--Ray Bates, retired writer and newsman, addressed the Jensen Beach Lions Club members during a dinner meeting and rendered an interesting discourse on the creation and history of the Golden Gloves, an outstanding amateur boxing tournament which he referred to as the "Cradle of Champions."

Bates who was a member of the New York Daily News sports staff for 13 years and served as newsman and political writer for the Lowell, Mass., Sun for another 25 years, told of the inequities of amateur boxing in New York City in the early 1920's and how the later Capt. Joseph M. Patterson, then publisher of the Daily News, summoned Paul Gallico, his sports editor, into his office.

Patterson knew that in 1923 the Chicago Tribune had conducted an amateur boxing tournament to test a state law prohibiting boxing in Illinois, said Bates, and suggested Gallico conduct a boxing tournament along the same lines as a Silver Skates tournament the New York Daily News was conducting. Experienced competitors were to meet equally experienced competitors, while beginners were pitted against beginners.

"The names of these two tournaments, throughout the years, were to become universally famous," said the speaker. "Golden Gloves, particularly," said Bates, "skyrocketed to the top of amateur sports events in short order."

In March, 1927, the first New York Golden Gloves champions were inaugurated, the speaker said. Then, in 1928, the Chicago Tribune conducted a Golden Gloves tournament and the later Don Maxwell, the Chicago Tribune's sports editor, issued a challenge in which 16 bouts, featuring Chicago's champions in all eight weights from flyweight to heavyweight and eight more bouts featuring the next-best boxer in each division were to meet. The team scoring the most number of points (one for each bout won) would win the tournament.

Gallico readily accepted, and thus began the most bitterly-fought series of amateur bouts ever. However, the experience gained by boxers of both teams later enabled many to go on to win world titles as professionals.

"Mr. Boxing himself, none other than Ray Robinson, sprung up from the New York Golden Gloves ranks," said Bates. "Barney Ross was the first Gloves to win a professional crown," said Bates. "Then came many others. Among them were Bob Olin, 175-pounds; Joe Louis, heavyweight, then in rapid succession Solly Krieger, middleweight; Pete Scalzo, featherweight; Melio Bettina, lightheavy; Tony Zale, middleweight; Gus Lesnevich, lightheavy; Phil Terranova and Sal Bartolo, featherweights; and Harold Dade, bantam.

"One of the latest to win a professional title was Rocky Marciano," added Bates. "Small wonder the Golden Gloves became known as the Cradle of Champions," concluded Bates.

Met winners are announced

JENSEN BEACH--Gary Peacock of Miami caught and released 583 game fish during the four-month Metropolitan South Florida Fishing Tournament to win the Daiwa All-Release Trophy. Competition ended April 18, and final standings were released last week.

The Daiwa award is considered one of the three most highly competitive in the Met -- the others being the Shakespeare Master Angler Trophy and the Siren Junior Master Angler Trophy. Both of the latter are judgment awards and will be announced following the final meeting of the Met judges on May 13.

One of the closest races in years has developed for the Master Angler honors. Both Kenny Bittner of Miami, last year's winner, and Martha Fraschi of Easton, Conn., posted a pair of world record catches among numerous topflight entries. Several other anglers also met the basic requirements -- four outstanding catches in different divisions.

Peacock not only posted the most releases but also compiled the highest total poundage of shark to win that trophy as well. He is one of five contestants who will receive at least two major Met awards.

Midge Daly of Yarmouth Port, Ma., won the Rod and Reel Club Sailfish Release Trophy with 42 and the Billfish Master Trophy with a 74-pound white marlin and a 63-pound sailfish.

Jay Wright, Mr. of Miami took the Tarpon Release Trophy with 80 and the 6-Pound Division Championship with two winning catches.

Arletta Wehlage gave a surprise birthday party Sunday for husband Frank. When you live in a trailer, trying to surprise your spouse takes management skills amounting to genius.

Arletta resorted to boiling potatoes for salad five at a time and hiding them under the bed when cooked, among many other clever subterfuges.

Aussie Williams helped by taking Frank to get the Sunday papers touring most of Martin County in the process. For awhile it seemed they might not get back in time for the party, but they did, and it was a surprise to Frank.

Mailbox improvement week

JENSEN BEACH--"Mailbox Improvement Week" is a traditional spring observance which contributes to improved security and appearance of the nation's nearly 24 million mailboxes, will be May 17-22 this year, Postmaster Harold Saltzer said monday.

Held annually, this event has long served as the starting signal for community efforts to repair, repaint and make other improvements to the nation's rural, curb-line and star route mailboxes, 4,500 of which are served by the Jensen Beach post office.

Rural mail service began in 1896. In those days many makeshift receptacles were used as mailboxes. One favorite was a tine can nailed to a tree. Today, manufacturers provide a variety of modern mailbox designs for use with decorative posts in cooperation with the Postal Service.

"Customers who prefer other designs than the traditional mailbox may check with me for a list of manufacturers making approved optional designs," Saltzer said. "I am also authorized to approve custom-made mailboxes when they comply with postal regulations."

Pageant-ballet will benefit Possum Long Nature Center

JENSEN BEACH—"Flight of the Eagle," a pageant-ballet developed around an original script written by local environmental leaders, will be presented at the Lyric Theatre on May 20, 21 and 22.

Proceeds from the production are earmarked by the sponsoring Martin County Audibon Society for retirement of mortgage payments and operational funds for Possum Long Nature Center.

Possum Long was started by the Society three years ago with the help of the Garden Club of Stuart. The 9-acre semi-jungle sanctuary is situated in the heart of Stuart on Hibiscus Road, south of East Ocean Boulevard.

The Chela Jacobo Dance Academy is doing the ballet.

"The costuming will be colorful, the message vital, and the performance by local artists highly memorable," says Mrs. Henry W. (Louise) Sherward, Audubon president, adding "We promise you will find it a delightful evening's entertainment."

Serving on the ticket committee are Mrs. C.H. Prescott, Mrs. Francis E. Clarke and Dr. Frank Knowles.

Patron subscriptions, with donors acknowledged on the souvenir programs, are being solicited.

Howie-in-the-Hills, The seven week summer session at Howie Academy means playing it cool for the boys and girls studying or vacation in air-conditioned comfort.

All regular school year facilities at college preparatory Howie in central Florida will be available to summer students, including a newly remodeled boys' dormitory and modern double rooms and suites for girls in their separate dormitory.

Early enrollment is urged for the June 13-July 30 session due to the popularity of Howie's two-phase program which provides full-time recreation or a combination of academics and recreation for students entering grades 4-12.

Unique outdoor activities, for students enjoying the Florida sun, include horseback riding, skiing and water sports on the Academy's private lakefront, as well as off-campus excursions to popular tourist attractions and recreational parks, and also tennis, golf and all team sports.

Vacationing students may attend the summer session by the week (minimum two weeks), while those seeking academic credit may attend for four or seven weeks.

Connie goes to state contest

BY DONNIE WILKIE

BOCA RATON–Connie Lambeth, a 14 year old eighth grader, who won the local contest, came through with flying colors last Sunday afternoon, and won the regional Oratorical Contest, sponsored by Optimist International.

As a result of her victory, Lambeth will compete in the State Finals to be held at the Bahia Mar Hotel in Ft. Lauderdale at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 15.

Whether she wins or not, this must be considered a major upset, her third in two months. If she can go all the way, she will receive a handsome trophy and a $500 scholarship.

Sunday, she beat off the challenge of Valerie Ann Sanchez from the Dassie Optimist Club. Sanchez seemed confident of a victory, and probably beat Lambeth on raw score.

The Mirror's unofficial card had Sanchez ahead by two points, but her speech lasted over six minutes, costing her up to five points on each official's card, thus giving Lambeth the chance she needed.

Also in the contest were Kathryn Bell of Miramar and Sandra Jean Norris of Hollywood. It might be noted that if Lambeth wins the state title, she will become ineligible for any further competition at the Optimist Club level.

In the boys division, Jeffrey Jaffee of Cooper City won the right to represent Bahia Mar's area from Hialeah to Stuart.

Causeways last week. It was part of their visit to the Jensen Beach Environmental Studies Center.

Park vandalism, closing is threat

PORT ST. LUCIE–While the City Council is considering the possible temporary employment of a maintenance man for Sportsman Park, applications are being followed up through the CETA program for hiring two park maintenance employees.

Under Title I of CETA, jobs would described as "on-the-job training" and would be funded on a 50-50 basis.

According to City Administrator Elmer Cox, if the City employed a general caretaker at $7,000 a year and an assistant at $6,500 a year, plus insurance and other fringe benefits for both, the approximate cost of the two jobs would be about $16,000 divided between the City and the Manpower Planning Commission in Tallahassee. These jobs would be available after October 1, 1976.

At the moment the City does not have any available manpower on its staff to supervise the care and maintenance of this public park.

Since vandalism has been a growing problem at the park, the City Council discussed the feasibility of hiring a temporary employee until such time as the CETA funding is available.

During the Tuesday Council workshop session, Vice Mayor Frank Rose, concerned over the problem, told his listeners he recently spent three days in the park picking up broken bottles and other objects that could seriously injure a child.

"If we can't get the help to maintain the park area, then it is the suggestion of the recreation committee that the soccer field, tennis court, playground area and the basketball court be closed down immediately to prevent possible serious injuries to those using the facility," Rose said.

The matter will be placed on next week's council meeting agenda.

The awards ceremonies will be conducted at Indian River Community College May 8 starting at 8 p.m.

Guest speaker for the candlelight affair will be Admiral John Fradd.

Approximately 300 persons are expected to attend the ceremonies, including top brass from the Gulfstream Council.

Planned events hike revenue

PORT ST. LUCIE–With three events remaining, the special events committee of the Port St. Lucie Community Center reported total receipts to date in the amount of $1,300. Through a planned series of programs and projects, the committee has been able to provide a substantial portion of the Center's operating revenue.

In making the announcement last week, Mrs. Strelsa Schreiber, chairman, paid tribute to the local clubs and organizations for their contributions in assistance and co-sponsorships.

Events yet to be held in the current calendar year include the May 9 pancake breakfast, Memorial Day Barbecue on May 31, and a June 19 card party.

An expanded committee will meet at the Center Monday afternoon to consider the recommendations of the previous group, do preliminary planning and adopt a tentative calendar for presentation to the Trustees at their Friday, May 7, quarterly meeting. New appointees Olga Atkins, Anne Fisher, George Jacobi, Irene Jarosewicz, June Johnston, Cass Moncure and Herb Tschudy will join Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lundin, Mrs. Bowen, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Schreiber in this assignment.

Mrs. Leon Hett also served on the original committee.

Park vandalism, closing is threat

PORT ST. LUCIE–While the City Council is considering the possible temporary employment of a maintenance man for Sportsman Park, applications are being followed up through the CETA program for hiring two park maintenance employees.

Under Title I of CETA, jobs would described as "on-the-job training", and would be funded on a 50-50 basis.

According to City Administrator Elmer Cox, if the City employed a general caretaker at $7,000 a year and an assistant at $6,500 a year, plus insurance and other fringe benefits for both, the approximate cost of the two jobs would be about $16,000 divided between the City and the Manpower Planning Commission in Tallahassee. These jobs would be available after October 1, 1976.

At the moment the City does not have any available manpower on its staff to supervise the care and maintenance of this public park.

Since vandalism has been a growing problem at the park, the City Council discussed the feasibility of hiring a temporary employee until such time as the CETA funding is available.

During the Tuesday Council workshop session, Vice Mayor Frank Rose, concerned over the problem, told his listeners he recently spent three days in the park picking up broken bottles and other objects that could seriously injure a child.

"If we can't get the help to maintain the park area, then it is the suggestion of the recreation committee that the soccer field, tennis court, playground area and the basketball court be closed down immediately to prevent possible serious injuries to those using the facility," Rose said.

The matter will be placed on next week's council meeting agenda.

Approximately 300 persons are expected to attend the ceremonies including troop brass from the Gulfstream Council.

She said such groups wishing to participate may contact her for further details at the Elliott Museum office, 287-4266. She said special arrangements will be made for cars transporting food to the park at the House of Refuge.

Other cars may be left at the Elliott Museum, their passengers using the free buses that will shuttle the mile of MacArthur Boulevard between the Society's two museums, Mrs. Hutchinson said.

Authorized on 1875 by the Secretary of Treasury Benjamin H. Bristow of Kentucky, General Ulysses Grant was President, the House of Refuge was one of nine scheduled for construction on Florida's East Coast for the United States Life Saving Service. The House of Refuge is the only one remaining.

Mrs. Hutchinson was recently notified of the permanent loan of the Treasury flag.

Sid Sanders, executive secretary of the Treasury Historical Association wrote, "On behalf of the Treasury Historical Association it is a great pleasure to forward to you this Treasury flag to be flown at the Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge."

In 1871 the Life Saving Service was regularly set up as an organization within Treasury's Revenue-Marine Service. In 1878 the Life Saving Service was set up as a regular unit of the Treasury Department with full bureau status and in 1912, a bill was introduced to consolidate the Life Saving Service and the Revenue Cutter Service under the name of the Coast Guard.

Seeing active service in World War I and World War II as both a U.S. Navy and a U.S. Coast Guard facility, the House of Refuge was decommissioned in 1945. In 1955, the Martin County Historical Society was established for the purpose of protecting and preserving the county's oldest standing structure. It was opened as a museum.

Now containing four rooms on the main floor, furnished as living quarters for the keeper and his wife, and with an upstairs dormitory fitted to accommodate shipwreck and storm survivors, many of the authentic pieces have come from local sources.

The historic restoration was made possible by gifts from local residents, grants from Martin County, the Florida Bicentennial Committee, the Historical Society and with matching funds from the federal government.

Planning unit problems surface

JENSEN BEACH-Lt. Gov. Jim Williams has some real problems with a request to approve a new regional planning council for four south Florida counties, a Williams aide said last week.

Williams fears that allowing Martin, St. Lucie and Palm Beach counties to secede from the South Florida Regional Planning Council and form their own would encourage other counties to withdraw from their regions, aide Anita Harles said.

If the new region is approved Indian River County wants to withdraw from the Orlando-based East Central Regional Planning Council and join the three counties.

As head of the state Department of Administration Williams will make the decision on the request for a new planning council.

Almost a year ago representatives of the four counties asked Williams for permission to organize a new council.

Williams said last week that he wanted to meet with State Sen. Phil Lewis, of Palm Beach County, and other area legislators before making a decision.

State Rep. Chuck Nergard contacted at his Tallahassee office said he was opposed to one proposal by Williams.

Williams said he thinks the Legislature needs to amend state law to make membership in specific planning counties mandatory.

I oppose that," Nergard said. "I don't think the Legislature should sit up here and dictate what counties should do.

At the meeting of the council will be in the final problem, the rebalancing and representation, Nergard said.

The Jensen Beach lead by Lucie County representative said he wished meet with Lewis about the issue.

Martin, St. Lucie and Palm Beach along with Dade, Broward and Monroe counties [illegible] south make up the South Florida region, but only the three southern counties pay dues and actively participate.

Martin and St. Lucie counties have state-paid residents in the council and Palm Beach County pulled out of the council several months ago.

Palm Beach County officials complained that Dade and Broward are not sensitive enough to environmental problems of growth.

New home for Louie

JENSEN BEACH-A six pound loggerhead sea turtle named Louie has a new home at the House of Refuge.

It took some pushing and tugging and short ride on a dolly to get Louie from his old home, an eight foot diameter cistern to his spacious quarters, a rectangular pool, 12-feet wide and 20 feet long and four feet deep.

House of Refuge innkeeper Chris Nahm and some of the workmen on the restoration project of the House took part in the moving of Louie.

Workman Bob Ramsey hopped in the cistern, grabbed Louie from the backside and pushed. Nahm and Mark Sylvester, another workman, grabbed Louie's front flippers and tugged.

Louie was placed on a tarp, and then eased on the dolly and with help from several workers he was pushed to his new home and eased into the pool.

Louie has been a resident at the House of Refuge all his life, 20 years. He was hatched at the House in 1956.

Final area planning session

ST. LUCIE-The next public meeting for the north Martin County comprehensive plan will be at 7:30 p.m. before the Planning Commission, Kris Schenk said.

Schenk, Martin County planning director, made the announcement Monday night at the third public session held at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association in Jensen Beach.

It was the first meeting for a majority of persons attending the Monday night session, and Schenk and Planner Tom Mumford spent most of the evening reviewing the proposed north county plan.

There were no major changes to the comprehensive plan that had been developed from suggestions of persons attending previous meetings.

Schenk pointed out that he and his staff had held public meetings in North River Shores and Rio two each and that this was the third session in Jensen Beach.

Mumford pointed out some proposed railroad overpasses, the road from Jensen Beach Causeway to Skyline Drive and on to a new road connecting with Commercial Street and Leilani Heights crossing would cost roughly $2 million and the cost would increase in the future.

And some persons at the sessions doubted that fill would ever be permitted in the Indian River for the construction of a proposed road from the causeway connecting with Commercial Street.

Schenk pointed out that there would be massive traffic congestion in the area and much of it caused by development in St. Lucie County which Martin County has no control.

And Fred Meek noted the need for moving people in five or ten years from now.

Meek's comment about future needs for traffic improvement prompted Grant Shaffer to comment that I'm 70 years old, and I'm worried about today and tomorrow.

Shaffer noted the need for improving the intersections then [illegible] jewels engineered.

While the members of the audience questioned some of the school sites and roads Schenk said.

All we're trying to do is offer possibilities and alternatives.

Schenk reminded the audience that the state has mandated that each county and city come up with a comprehensive plan by 1979 and he asked that everyone in the area attend the Planning Commission meeting.

Hutchinson preparing portfolio of prints

JENSEN BEACH-James Hutchinson Martin County resident and artist announced last week that he is now producing limited edition color lithographic prints of his works. The first release expected in October will be a portfolio of the Seminole Warriors, Billy Bowlegs II, Osceola, Wildcat and Alligator.

The announcement was made at the unveiling of his newest painting, Billy Bowlegs II, at the annual meeting of the Confederation of Florida Historical Societies in Miami.

The total number of lithographic prints per painting will be 500, signed and numbered. Hutchinson will personally supervise all production from the color separation to the lithographics, exercising absolute control and approval over each individual print.

Chamber directors

JENSEN BEACH-Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday, May 17.

Several committee reports are scheduled, including the Fourth of July activities report by president L.D. Kirkpatrick.

A budget deficit

WASHINGTON--Election year rhetoric is all around us. And the plaintive cries seem to be - cut back the size and the cost of the federal government, balance the budget.

Candidates are raising their hands in dismay over the bureaucracy that is spawning in Washington and the stranglehold it has on the throats of taxpayers everywhere.

For once, it would seem that we are all on the same side of this issue.

Unfortunately, however, this is not the case.

While fiscal conservatives might be rejoicing over the fact that they are "won over" the spendthrift liberals of long standing, nothing could be further from the truth. A vote in the House of Representatives on April 29th set the record straight.

The House was considering the budget resolution for fiscal year 1977. The resolution, as reported from the House Budget Committee, called for outlays of $415.4 billion and revenues of $363 billion - thus leaving a deficit of $52.4 billion. This budget would add a sizeable chunk to the national debt which is now teetering at well over half a trillion dollars.

In an attempt to bring some amount of sanity to this budget proposal, a substitute resolution was offered which would have produced a balanced budget. This amendment would have set outlays and revenues at $363 billion.

Here was the perfect opportunity for members of the House to put their vote where their mouth is. Members have been echoing their constituents' calls for fiscal responsibility, for a balanced budget, for a drastic cut in the size of the federal government.

Alas, our newly found "converts" were nowhere to be found when the vote was cast on this amendment. Out of the 435 members of the House, only 102 voted in favor of the balanced budget amentment - only 102.

Hopefully, the American public will demand more than rhetoric of their elected officials.

Hopefully, voters will demand that their representatives back up their talk with the difficult actions necessary to achieve fiscal responsibility.

With national polls showing that the vast majority of Americans support a balanced budget, we should be close to making it a reality.

The people of America deserve it and the economy of America must have it.

Nuclear plant hearing scheduled

JENSEN BEACH--The presiding Atomic Safety and Licensing Board has scheduled a public hearing to begin May 20 on Hutchinson Island, in the Nuclear Regulatory Commission licensing proceeding on the application of Florida Power & Light Company for a permit to build Unit 2 of the St. Lucie Nuclear Power Plant on Hutchinson Island.

The hearing will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, May 20, in the Banquet Room of the Holiday Inn Oceanside, Highway A-1-A, Hutchinson Island. It will continue through Friday, May 21 and then resume on Tuesday, May 25 and will continue through Friday, May 28. Members of the public are welcome to attend.

This evidentiary hearing is to consider remaining radiological health and safety matters in the construction permit proceeding. A public hearing on environmental considerations and the suitability of the site was held earlier resulting in a favorable decision on those matters by the Licensing Board. A Limited Work Authorization which permitted the company to perform certain construction work at its own financial risk before receiving a construction permit was issued on March 17, 1975.

As proposed, Unit 2 will use a pressurized water reactor and will have a net electrical output of about 810 megawatts. The station site is located on Hutchinson Island about midway between the cities of Ft. Pierce and Stuart. Unit 1, of similar design and power output, was licensed for operation in March of this year.

Man charged in '72 murder

JENSEN BEACH--The former husband of a woman who was murdered in a Hobe Sound bar nearly four years ago was arrested by Martin County's sheriff deputies who jailed the man under an open charge of homicide.

Arrested last week was John Arnold Wethington, 53, of Palmer Road, Jensen Beach. He was being held in the county jail with no bond set.

Wethington is accused in the May 28, 1972 murder of Pauline Arnold, from whom he was divorced.

According to officers, Mrs. Arnold had been tending bar at Harvey's Bar on U. S. 1 in Hobe Sound and was apparently alone when she was shot four times in the back. She was found lying on the floor of the storage room in the murder-robbery which netted her assailant $280 from the package store cash register.

This will be the last article I'll be doing on News of Nettles Island. Anyone willing to jot down your conversations with the folks at Nettles Island, capture the atmosphere & report on the weekly activities during the week can become the "Mirror News" reporter for our resort. It's surprising how many subscribe to The Mirror & have it sent back home, anxiously awaiting to find out how things are going at their island home. I'd appreciate it if you'd volunteer your services right away so we can continue to keep everyone informed.

It's been so peaceful after the hustle & bustle of the Easter season. For those of you who don't need constant activity around you, you'd love the last part of April & the month of May here. Even the mosquitoes have quieted down. The resort & the county have been keeping up with the task of spraying regularly and the cooler nights must be keeping the bug population thinned out.

We've been having enough rain to keep things green & the grass is starting to grow faster again. The first weekend in May sure was a wet one. It rained the entire day Sunday. Then we had a few showers during the week with another good downpour this past Sunday. But the sun was out again just as fast as it disappeared.

Our therapy pool had been completed & thoroughly enjoyed by all those lucky enough to get a chance to benefit from its hot swirling waters. Those waiting to leisurely make use of the facility after the winter & holiday crowds left were greatly disappointed to find it drained & shut down.

A new who had been using it to relieve back problems found it really helped.

Herman Bender has been hospitalized again for almost three weeks now. There is no indication of when he will be able to return home as I'm sure he'd appreciate cards & visits from all his many friends.

He has left behind a lonesome Parakeet who is looking for a new home. He is a smart bird who talks & whistles very well. He'll return to his cage on command and is a lot of fun to have around. I'm sure someone would really enjoy this bird and is yours for the asking.

Lee & Alice Pickup left on their way to Bear Lake, Michigan. Word has gotten back that Alice fell on a post office and broke her knee cap. It looks like she'll be spending the summer on a cast from the knee down. We wish you well Alice.

The line says it's back in the hospital for Wimpy Grosvenor. He went in Sunday afternoon and will be operated on Monday. While attempting to repair a golf cart, he suffered a hernia.

He'll be mighty lonesome again while recuperating in the hospital and a call or a visit can do wonders to lift a guy's spirits.

Steve McKee was taken to emergency last Tuesday afternoon. I haven't had any word on his condition.

You never know when an accident might happen. Jean Callow sure found that out. Almost two weeks agonite was on her way home on her golf cart and going around a curve, she hit the end of a concrete driveway that was protruding out into the street too far and she was thrown from the golf cart. The next thing she knew she was lying in the road in pain. She suffered a concussion, a broken knee and heel and many scrapes & bruises. She's coming along fine but is sure to be uncomfortable for a while.

Peg Gorham, who has contributed many appreciated news items for The Mirror this past season is leaving Wednesday for her northern visit with family and friends. Peg spent a very busy winter season here entertaining lots of family visitors. She also was very busy working in our Library, which was much appreciated.

Just a reminder in regards to the Library, we hope you all remember to bring back any books you might like to donate to the Nettles Island Library, especially children's books.

While you're visiting the grand children, ask them if they have any they're outgrown and would be willing to give.

I bet we could really get a nice collection of books that way.

Idel & Val Leger have been off for a week to Ft. Lauderdale and other parts of Florida visiting friends. They had a very enjoyable time and a nice change of scenery.

Bill & Edie Creighton are leaving for the rest of the summer. Edie had a chance to have her Dad stay with them for a week before leaving and for the past three weeks it was grandson Brians turn to spend a vacation alone with Grandma & Grandpa. He not only enjoyed the water and pools, but the special attention he received.

Bill & Edie worked very hard on the Shrimp pool & all fund raising events right from the beginning and are very disappointed to see it shut down so soon.

There's one couple who is going to be missed very much on the N.I. corners of the island. Sam & Kaye Waters, the most congenial couple you could ever have left for Penn.

Each morn morning you would hear Sam greet the neighbors as he puttered in his lovely garden on lot 457. They waited a long time but finally had a few weeks to enjoy their newly built home before moving.

The Charles Ludwigs have returned from a very memorable vacation trip. As we went through Texas, Arizona and on to the Grand Pipe Canyon monument to see the castles in bloom.

What a terrible wind storm in Texas the Friday night we were there. Our car bounced the next day to a new motor. After being held up there a few days, they were on to Mesa to visit friends where the car was broken into and valuables stolen. Further west one's camper disappointment acted up again and back to a repair shop. They had to leave the trailer behind and drive to Nogales, Phoenix, Tempe & motel there while the problem was being corrected.

To top it all off, after planning and looking to make sure the blooming season was correct, they reached their destination only to find the castles were not yet blooming in the Organ Pipe Cactus monument.

The trip back was without any problems until they got back home and, while crossing the causeways, had a flat tire and ruined the tire.

Charlie still says as long as they're well and safe, that's all that really matters.

Since business was slow after Easter, the Engels took the opportunity to get away. They took the family and their Airstream last week and spent five days in the Ocala National Forest at Alexander Springs. Nestled among the pines, cypress and palms, they enjoyed a campfire every night, visits from raccoons & armadillos, and clear sunny days, just perfect for swimming & snorkeling and a four hour canoe trip down the crystal clear spring-fed river where wildlife & beauty abound.

You can be sure, another camping venture is on the near future.

You won't be seeing the little boat with the bright orange motor buzzing around on the river anymore. Lee and Betsy Roe have replaced it with a big 24 ft. cabin cruiser with a 135 hp Evinrude engine. They were out water skiing this weekend.

The Roes, who own lot 974, are also residents of Mar Lee has recently gone into business for himself and operates the A A A Air Conditioning service.

V. & Al Simpson have moved into their mobile home at Pine Lake Village.

They own lot 280 here at Nettles Island and were contemplating a double (east & screen room, but Al decided it wasn't something bigger with more room decision so he got it ... Order ordered. Both Vi ... locked and took off.

They'll be going to Albany, N.Y. ... to visit their daughter and ... here in fall.

Middle age is the period of life when you'll do anything to feel better, except give up what is hurting you.

ADA R. SWIFT

RIO–Ada R. Swift, 81, of 1249 N.E. Olive Street, Rio, passed away Sunday, May 9, at Martin Memorial Hospital.

A native of Oshwa, Ontario, Canada, she came here eleven years ago from Rochester, New York.

She was a retired dental technician, and a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church and the American Association of Retired Persons.

Survivors include her husband, John W. Swift of Rio; one son, Robert Rowe, Rochester, New York; three grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Memorial services were conducted Wednesday morning at All Saints' Episcopal Church with Reverend Frank R. Alvarez, Rector, officiating.

SMALL CROWD–It was a small crowd that turned out for the Sunday afternoon baseball game at Sportsman Park between the local Optimist Senior Little League and the Boca Raton teams.

Art McDaniel is low scorer

PORT ST. LUCIE–Art McDaniel had the low score of the day on the Saints Course of the Sandpiper Bay Resort Area Thursady as the Sandpiper Men's Golf Association held its weekly golf tournament.

In Flight A, McDaniel, 48-67; R.C. Cook, 51-25; Jim Docos, 52-5; Vic Salter, 52-83; Al Hasell, 53-5; Bob Jensen, 54-16.

Flight B, Fred Jahn, 49-83; George Mood, 52-33; Dick Lundin, 53-33; Elmer Pond, 54-33; Ed Spicka, 54-5; Dr. Leo Chylack, 54-5.

Joe Chappelle shot a gross 79 for the day's best round, but outstanding wind-swept scores were also turned in by McDaniel, 80; Don Estes, 81; and Walt Wilmas, 82.

Next week it's partners-best ball with full handicaps.

F.I.T. students test sharks

JENSEN BEACH–Two Florida Institute of Technology (FIT) students have engineered and constructed a steel anti-shark cage.

The two sophomores, Mike Braund and Tom Ingram built the 476-pound cage as part of a faculty supervised research project. Both students are ocean technology majors and they will use the anti-shark cage to study shark behavior and to record it on film.

The cage is constructed of one-half inch steel bars and able to withstand the tremendous jaw pressure of the 12-foot sharks that have been reported five miles offshore in the area.

It is five feet square and seven feet tall and is constructed of half-inch steel bars nine inches apart. Between the bars is a webbing of quarter-inch mesh to keep the smaller sharks from squeezing through.

"Each student at FIT is required to do an ocean project, according to John Hackeney, instructor." The ocean project is a faculty supervised research project involving the determination of problems relating to oceanography. Hackney explained.

The two students say they don't plan to go any deeper than 65 feet and will probably stay near the surface if the sharks are there. They hope to document the eating habits of sharks on film during several dives this month.

To protect themselves in case of emergency, the students will be armed with a shark dart and bang stick that ejects 44 magnum shells.

UMPS–Popcorn, soft drinks, two ball teams and umpires can provide a Sunday afternoon of pleasure for any baseball fan. Pictured above are two District 7 umpires Ken Johnson and Bill Childress awaiting the arrival of the Senior Little League team from Boca Raton at Sportsman Park last Sunday.

5,000 watch boat races

JENSEN BEACH–The ninth annual Stuart Sailfish Regatta this past weekend attracted about 5,000 spectators.

Frank Zerkle of St. Petersburg won the Sailfish Invitational trophy. Driving his Double Z, he won by less than a lap.

Zerkle had lost a previous race earlier in the day to world-record holder Sherman Plohamus.

A chemical salesman, 31-year-old Zerkle competes in any hydroplane event that happens to be running. In two weeks he will race during intermission of a big thunderboat race in Miami.

Venture Out

VENTURE HARBOUR
BY JESSIE SHAVER

It's getting very lonesome in Venture Three as so many of our friends and neighbors depart for the summer. We miss all of them and look forward to seeing them again in the fall.

Paul and Betty Drinkard were the latest to leave. They are taking a longer, slower trip back to Michigan hoping it will be somewhat warmer when they get there. They are driving through the Carolinas and stopping frequently on the way up the east coast. Good traveling and a happy summer to them.

Judy Autenrieth is happy to be home from the hospital and his pacemaker. We all hope that will solve all the problems he has been having the past several weeks. He is recovering very rapidly and will soon be out again working in his beautiful yard.

Amy Freitag had an exciting and happy Mother's Day. Their oldest son, John of California was here to spend the week-end. Also Joe's sister Annie Hassell and her daughter Ingrid of Germany are their guests.

The whole group went deep-sea fishing and had excellent luck. John and Joe both lost a big one; a marlin and a sail; but Amy landed a large bull dolphin all by herself. They also brought in several king fish.

Belated congratulations on their 48th anniversary on May 5th.

Edith and Dick Painter got out their travel trailer and took off for St. Augustine where they met their daughter Margie and her family who have a new trailer and wanted them to see it. They spent a happy week-end together.

The Bowers and the Weinckes are really working hard on their yards getting top soil put on and making both places a pleasure to see.

Theo Slagle (former resident of Venture Harbour) entertained Lester & Jessie Shaver, along with her brother, sister-in-law and niece of Spanish Lakes and other friends from Ft. Myers with a dinner at Ocean Village on Sunday. The evening ended with all going back to Theo's apartment at High Point of Ft. Pierce for lots of talk.

Fran and Dick Treer invited the few regulars at pot luck who are still in V.H. to have a mini pot luck dinner on their patio on Wednesday and it was fun. We all hate to give up

Chamber Directors

More deputies urged for area

JENSEN BEACH–More law enforcement in the Jensen Beach-Rio area is wanted by directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Directors voted Monday night to send a letter to the Martin County Commission requesting additional law enforcement in the area.

The directors took the action after hearing Martin County Sheriff James Holt admit that "Jensen Beach area is not adequately patrolled."

Sheriff Holt said that he had requested additional men for the area in past budget sessions with commissioners, but had been refused.

"I'm going to fight hard for additional men in Jensen Beach," Sheriff Holt said. The sheriff's budget sessions with commissioners will come up soon, and he will make his patch for additional deputies at that time.

Because of the lack of adequate law enforcement in the area, some chamber directors in past sessions have suggested establishing volunteer patrols.

Sheriff Holt said volunteer groups could help with communications with his office but he warned against giving "any impression that we are starting a vigilante group."

Sheriff Holt admitted that his patrol in the north county area is "spread pretty thin," covering the area from North River Shores to Jensen Beach Rio and to Hutchinson Island.

"The men only have time to answer complaints," he said.

People in Jensen Beach need more patrol than what they are now getting," Sheriff Holt said.

In other action, directors voted to ask the County Commission to provide temporary toilet facilities on Jensen Beach Causeway for the Fourth of July celebration.

"The permanent facility is not adequate," Art Hansen said.

And during the July 4 discussion, directors approved Charles Butterfield's suggestion that a percentage of his sales be given to the fireworks fund.

And Fred Stein, chairman of the fireworks fund, said he appreciated Butterfield's offer since "the money is coming in slowly."

But Stein said he expects fireworks fund money to start coming in since letters have just gone out to civic organizations.

Windmill slated for center

JENSEN BEACH–A windmill is expected to be erected in front of the Environmental Studies Center in Jensen Beach, the president of the Southeast Florida Free Energy Association said.

Jay Jarrett, also the director of the center located on Indian River Drive, said the windmill will be placed in front of the school to "catch the eye and create interest."

The windmill, which has yet to be acquired, will pump water from a well and irrigate the landscaping around its base and the front of the center.

Also the demonstration project will feature solar water heating panels for the center.

Jarrett and other officers were elected at last week's meeting. Serving with Jarrett until the December annual meeting include Jon Chicks, vice president; Stanley Borgman, treasurer; and Dick Gessinger.

The school board has approved the use of the center by the association, but has reserved the right to approve any installations.

They keep their plectron in class with them so they can be alterted by CD if there is an emergency call.

Asked why they are so involved with the Samaritans working long hours as volunteers, Soth replied: "To become more informed on advanced first aid and so I can better help people in need by using my first hand knowledge and experience, and to better my education by getting my Florida registered EMT certificate.

"I find every aspect of the medical field very interesting," Tubbs said. "Volunteer ambulance work is the most self satisfying thing I have ever done."

Martin commented: "To be an ambulance volunteer is a great attribute and of course everybody loves us, but most especially being an integral part of the local community and serving as an EMT. I just wish more people would become involved in this united effort."

In order to qualify as EMT trainees as the three students have, they must take medical self help courses, defensive driving and in addition more than 100 hours of classroom work, plus hours in the emergency room of a hospital.

Other FIT students on the program are Gary Gabriel, an EMT registered nationally, and Gordon Porter, instructor. Gerald Tschara, Thomas Welch, Mark Unger, Kurt Fischerkeller, Russell Zander, Maurice Smith, Dr. Jim Hannon and Dick Mertes, FIT instructors and also EMT trainees.

It was pointed out by a Samaritan official that a EMT class will begin in September but volunteers are accepted as drivers anytime.

It was also noted that all the FIT students and instructors involved in the Jensen Area Ambulance program are from outside the state of Florida.

POWDER WET–The shower dampened the black powder of the Lyle gun during a brief shower and it failed to fire during re-opening ceremonies last Saturday of the House of Refuge. Inn Keeper Chris Nam, who wore a sailor outfit of the 1800's, tries to light the gun's fuse, but the powder was too wet.

"You can do whatever you want, and I can't stop you but if it comes to a public hearing, I could, and I imagine other members of the commission could, also bring up things against you which would go on your record."

Blood bank in new quarters

JENSEN BEACH–The Martin County branch of the Palm Beach Blood Bank has moved to new and larger quarters at 915 East Ocean Boulevard in Stuart. The branch had been located in Martin Memorial Hospital.

The move will enable the blood bank to improve services to its clients while still providing blood to the hospital, Carmen Runco, executive director of the Palm Beach Blood Bank, said.

Hours of the new branch are Monday and Wednesday from noon to 8 p.m., Thursday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Martin County branch is one of five branches of the Palm Beach Blood Bank, a non-profit corporation which does not receive tax support of any kind.

The blood bank is the sole source of blood for 11 hospitals in Palm Beach, Martin, and Okeechobee counties. Its donors are all volunteers; no one is paid for giving blood.

Donating blood is a painless procedure, which begins with a brief, but thorough medical screening by a registered nurse or medical technician. A medical history is taken in a private room, then the donor's weight, blood pressure, and temperature are taken, Sara Timon, director of the local office said.

A hemoglobin test is then made by pricking the donor's finger to draw a drop of blood to check the iron content.

If all of the tests are satisfactory, the donor is allowed to give blood. The tests are necessary, of course, to ensure that donated blood is safe and disease free and to protect the health of the donor.

To maintain a "safe" level of blood on hand in this area at all times, a continuous program of blood donations must be maintained. While blood lasts for only 21 days, the South Florida area faces other problems in maintaining the blood supplies. During the winter season, tourists require blood for emergencies, but are unable or unwilling to replace blood before going home. They prefer to buy blood in the hospital, but as the blood bank points out, "you can't transfuse dollars."

This area's high concentration of senior citizens also places heavy demands on blood levels, for while older people are prime blood users, in most cases they cannot be blood donors because of their age.

To combat these problems, the blood bank is constantly working on ways to enlist the help of groups and organizations to give blood and to educate the public about the importance and ease of giving blood.

Occasionally, the blood bank is asked why it does not pay donors to give blood, as is done in a few other areas. This becomes obvious when it is pointed out that a great percentage of paid for blood is contaminated. This alarming statistic is the reason behind pending Federal legislation to outlaw paying for blood donations.

High Point bridge slated

SEWALL'S POINT–Emergency repairs to the High Point Bridge are expected to get under way next week, Town Mayor Ed Gluckler said Tuesday.

"We gave Dickerson, Inc., the go ahead with the emergency work," Mayor Gluckler said.

Mayor Gluckler, other commissioners and Town Engineer Richard Hellstrom conferred with Dickerson representatives Monday.

Dickerson was the builder of the bridge.

Hellstrom told commissioners at last week's meeting that "we've got a sick bridge."

House of Refuge is open

JENSEN BEACH–Just before the first of five flags were raised, beginning the re-opening ceremonies of the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island, the rain came.

Innkeeper Chris Nam didn't keep the black powder dry on the Lyle gun, and it didn't fire, but everything else went off on schedule, including the flag raising, 21 gun salute by Martin County deputies.

And there was a small, enthusiastic crowd on hand to watch the ceremony. Many watched from the shelter of the House's porch.

There were many bright costumes ... the audience, reminiscent of fashions of past centuries, and so was the spirit of the occasion, which was keeping with the Bicentennial. Historical Society project.

And Nam wore a sailor outfit of the 1800's to represent the many shipwrecked sailors who received assistance at the House during its many days as a lifesaving station.

Ralph Hartman, jr., president of the Historical Society, took part in the ceremonies and escorted visitors around the facility.

Martyn announces $40 million development

JENSEN BEACH–After more than a year of planning and negotiation, Charles H. Martyn has announced that he has signed land purchase contracts amounting to $2,400,000 for the site of a new championship golf course community on acres from Sandpiper Bay, Port St. Lucie.

The new community will be called Mid Rivers Yacht and Country Club and is located on the last available two miles of wide, deep St. Lucie Riverfront. According to developer Martyn, Mid Rivers will be South Florida's most exclusive single residence community.

The 700 acre site will include a large part of beautiful Mile Lake. 324 estate homesites, a championship golf course, a hurricane hole marina, a racquet club and a ... club with horse trails.

At present, a maintained country dirt road runs through a pine forest to the property entrance. It is at the end of West Murphy Road on Gibson Road, six miles from the Palm City Bridge.

Martyn is known locally for having designed and constructed Yacht and Country Club of Stuart. The country club, built in 1968, sold out rapidly. He is probably better known for having founded, named, incorporated, land planned and built the villages of the Jupiter Inlet Colony and Tequesta.

Martyn claims this new 324 lot single residence community will be the most attractive anywhere.

The zoning will remain agricultural. This will permit private clubs for golf, tennis, yachting, horses and fishing. The homesites will be a minimum average width of 150 feet by 300 feet minimum depth. These are larger than acre lots.

"I've worked closely with the various agencies and officials ... have been ... and have found them ... the cooperation and guidance to help me in every way."

The formal recording of the finished development plans is 324 residences on about 700 acres, of less than one unit per two acres of land. Property rights built in to the facility specify that ... and ... ranch house community secure its services, still insure resident seclusion and protection.

Mid Rivers will provide a long term employment opportunity for hundreds of local people as well as a future commercial spending impact of great importance.

Now that contracts of purchase have been signed, Martyn is proceeding with all final plat and construction programs.

Publix seeks customer help

STUART–Following the armed robbers of Publix Market in Stuart Saturday night, officials of Publix appealed to customers for help in stopping payment on checks cashed and notifying the store of checks cashed.

"If you cashed a check at the Stuart Publix Market on Friday night, May 14, after 6 p.m., or on Saturday, May 15, we need for you to stop payment on that check and issue a replacement to us," said Don Alley, manager.

These checks were stolen in an armed robbery last Saturday night. Please contact the store manager. The robbers cannot cash the checks and will probably destroy them to eliminate the evidence. We will lose them unless you help us," Alley said.

Early settlers of lower Indian River area

BY HARRY J. SCHULTZ
Chairman of Board of Directors
Early Settlers of Lower Indian River Area

JENSEN BEACH--Editors Note: Information contained in this history of the Old Timers Club and Early Settlers of Lower Indian River Area has been obtained from the records of the two organizations over a great period. Every effort has been made to come up with an accurate account of the activities of the organizations, despite some difficulties caused by incomplete records covered in minutes of the meetings in a number of cases.

Jensen Beach: Fifty years ago, Feb. 22, 1926, old timers of the lower Indian River area, residing in Indian River, St. Lucie and Martin counties and their descendants staged a get together and picnic in Fort Pierce. Several hundred persons attended the affair, held at the Ft. Pierce Beach Casino.

A. C. Goodwin, Ft. Pierce real estate broker spearheaded plans for the get together. It was for old timers to keep in touch with one another. Goodwin was assisted by Jim W.E. Tylander, F.C. Gifford, P.I. Eldred and many others in arranging the affair.

The get together was such a huge success, it was decided to organize an association and meet annually. An organizational meeting was held at Jensen Beach at the Beachland Cafeteria Dec. 30, 1926, attended by old timers from the three counties. It was voted to call the organization Old Timers Club of the Indian River. R.I. Goodwin was elected first president, and W.I. Fee was its first secretary. Fee continued through 1931 and 1932 years through 1931.

It was decided that the club would admit old timers who moved to this area prior to 1905 and their descendants.

The next two meetings, Feb. 22, 1927 and Feb. 22, 1928, were held in Fort Pierce at the Ft. Pierce Beach Casino. Approximately 350 old timers and their descendants attended these affairs. The old Ft. Pierce band provided music for the affairs. It was decided that future meetings should be alternated between Ft. Pierce, Jensen Beach and Stuart and Vero. As a result of this action, the next meeting was held in Sebastian Town Hall on Feb. 22, 1929.

The next two meetings were held at Vero Feb. 22, 1930 and Feb. 22, 1931. At the 1931 meeting, F.I. Rose was elected president succeeding R.I. Goodwin. W.I. Fee continued as secretary. Large crowds were in attendance at both meetings.

Feb. 22, 1932, the club met at White City. The White City Improvement Club, with F.C. Doppell presiding. Jensen Beach hosted the meeting on Feb. 22, 1933, at Town Hall. President Doppell and Secretary Fee served in these capacities through 1934.

Old Timers Club meetings were held annually at the following places: Feb. 22, 1934--Jensen Beach Town Hall. Feb. 22, 1935--Sebastian Town Hall. Feb. 22, 1936--Vero Beach Community Building. Feb. 22, 1937--White City Improvement Club Hall. Feb. 22, 1938--Fort Pierce Beach Casino and Feb. 22, 1939 also at Fort Pierce Beach Casino.

The Walton Community Center in Walton was the scene of the meeting held on Feb. 22, 1940 with P.C. Eldred serving as president. W.I. Fee was reelected secretary treasurer and served through 1941. Stuart hosted the meeting on Feb. 22, 1941. This turned out to be the last meeting of the Old Timers Club until 1952. The group suspended operations when World War II started in 1941.

The club was reactivated in 1952 through the efforts of Barbara Miller Ferson of Eden and W.I. Fee of Ft. Pierce. They persuaded the Indian River Drive Association and Property Owners Association to help them reactivate the club. So regular meetings were started on May 18, 1952 at the Walton Community Center with Barbara Person serving as president in 1952-53-54.

They began holding meetings in different communities each year as follows:

1955--Vero Beach-F.C. Gifford-president. 1956--Ft. Pierce-D.H. Banis Saunders president. 1957--Jensen Beach-Mary Neal Taube-president. 1958--Vero Beach-Father Joe Sims-president. 1959--Stuart-Florence Dyer Rinou president. 1960--Ft. Pierce-Mildred Garrett-president.

The Old Timers Club became a thing of the past when the name of the organization was changed to Early Settlers of Lower Indian River effective in 1961. New by-laws were adopted covering operations of the organization. Under the new setup, all past presidents of the group comprised the Board of Directors, and other provisions were made to better serve the purpose of keeping the organization on an even keel.

During the 1974 annual meeting several important changes were made. The changes provided for the election of a permanent chairman of the board of directors and a permanent treasurer. Harry J. Schultz was elected permanent chairman and Annie Brown Cobb permanent treasurer.

The office of secretary-treasurer was abolished. Instead a new secretary to serve one year was approved to coincide with the election of a new president annually, both residing in the community in which the annual meeting is held. Janet Cobb Willis of Ft. Pierce was elected president and Elizabeth Rogers Miller was elected secretary also of Ft. Pierce at the 1974 meeting to serve in 1975.

At the 1975 meeting in Ft. Pierce, the following officers were nominated and elected:

1976-Vero Beach, Kenneth Reams president and Betty Fultz McRae-secretary. Kenneth Reams resigned and Charlies Gifford replaced him.

1977-Jensen Beach, B.D. Fulton Jr. president, and Carol Hendry secretary.

1978-Sebastian-Sybil Chesser Ezell, president and Rodney Kroegel secretary.

1979-Stuart, Rita Peck president secretary to be selected.

1980-Ft. Pierce, Margaret Carlton president, Jean Alderman-secretary.

Fulton-Jensen Beach, Ezell, Sebastian, Peck Stuart and Carlton Ft. Pierce serve as vice presidents until they are formally elected presidents at the proper time.

Annie Brown Cobb of Ft. Pierce served for a number of years as secretary-treasurer of the Early Settlers. Elsa Sickler also served a short time as secretary-treasurer. Barbara Miller Ferson also had a turn at the job and Calvin Poppell served for a time as treasurer. Barbara Ferson of Eden also served for a long time as Historian. Lou Riley Kroegel of Sebastian also served as secretary-treasurer.

Last week was a busy week for some Ocean Breeze folks.

On Friday, May 7, many of our ladies attended the Church Women United pot luck dinner at the North River Shores Presbyterian Church.

I have never seen so many orchids and other corsages going to church as on Mother's Day this year.

Tuesday night I attended the Stuart Business and Professional Women's Club meeting, which was followed by a surprise miscellaneous bridal shower for Betty Jane Stott who has worked in the county superintendent of schools office for many years.

Thursday night, many of the park residents attended Stuart Unity Chapter of Eastern Star where Ethel McDowell is Worthy Matron, Dorothy Geeben Marshall, Marian Knop a star point and I am the organist.

Friday evening, Irvin and I enjoyed dessert and a visit with Frank and Sallie von Halle of 10th Street. They were celebrating their 22nd wedding anniversary.

Herman Larson of 9 Key Lime passed away Sunday at Martin Memorial Hospital after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife Anna Marie, one daughter Mrs. Charles Coolidge of Beloit, Wisc., one son Wally Larson of Ft. Atkinson, Wisc., and four grand children. His son and daughter arrived in Jensen Beach Monday afternoon.

Memorial services will be conducted in Ft. Atkinson. In lieu of flowers, friends may make a memorial donation to the ambulance fund.

Evelyn and Oscar Wallquist of Oak Street and Minneapolis write that they arrived home safely after stopping and having new shocks put on and driving from Tomah, Wisconsin to Black River Falls in a blinding blizzard.

They add that since arriving home, they are experiencing the coldest weather they've been in for seven years, not garden-making weather yet.

My Apartment opens

JENSEN BEACH–My Apartment, a small, "intimate dining rendezvous at Maritimes on Hutchinson Island opened with a champagne preview dinner Saturday night.

The fifty-seat restaurant features candlelight dinners in a secluded setting of plush red leather chairs and inlaid copper tables with recessed grills. Six entrees feature 10-ounce sirloins and filet mignons three inches high, huge fresh-water shrimp imported from Maricaibo, Venezuela, South African lobster tails, breast of chicken and a kabob with mushrooms. Dinners are complete from french onion soup to flaming cherries jubilee. Wines are also featured.

Mrs. David Nelson is manager of the restaurant, which is owned by the Japanese Steak Houses, Inc. There are My Apartment restaurants in London, Miami and at Cesar's Palace in Las Vegas.

The building was designed by Phil Braden, Stuart architect, and the exterior is cedar, landscaped by Stresau, Smith and Stresau.

"It is our hope to fill the demand locally for an intimate dining room, much in the same manner of one's apartment where relaxed and informal dining includes candlelight, wine and a feeling of seclusion," Mrs. Nelson said.

The restaurant is open from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. with dining by reservation to 286-3030.

ATMOSPHERE–The subdued tones of wall murals, carpet and lighting offered an intimacy that will be the keynote of My Apartment, a new restaurant on Hutchinson Island. Steaks are prepared on grills in the center of each table.

ALL IED–Rev. W.H. Winkler was installed Sunday as pastor of St. Andrew Lutheran Church in Port St. Lucie. Rev. Paul Dishro, dean of the Florida Bahama Conference of the American Lutheran Church was the installing officer. Rev. Dr. O.G. Grotefend, pastor emeritus of St. Andrew, also participated in the ceremonies. Pictured above are Rev. Winkler, his wife and two children, Deborah and Mark.

Winkler installed St. Andrew pastor

PORT ST. LUCIE–More than 200 people joined in celebrating the installation of the Rev. W.H. Winkler as pastor of St. Andrew Lutheran Church, Sunday, May 18.

Participating in the morning service were the Rev. Paul Dishro, dean of the Florida Bahama Conference of the American Lutheran Church, installing officer, and the Rev. Dr. O.G. Grotefend, pastor emeritus of St. Andrew.

Winkler came to St. Andrew in March, filling the vacancy left by Grotefend's retirement.

He is a graduate of Wartburg College, Waverly, Iowa and Capital University Theological Seminary in Columbus, Ohio. He also completed graduate work at Ohio State University, University of Wisconsin and Winona State University in Minnesota.

In addition to his pastoral training he is a qualified German language instructor, licensed funeral director and embalmer.

During his ministry Winkler has served congregations in North Dakota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

He is married to the former Judith Berndt. The couple have three children, Deborah 17, Mark 16, and Sara, 12.

St. Andrew Lutheran Church began as an American Lutheran Church mission in November 1964. Dr. Grotefend was installed as its second pastor in May 1965, retiring last August.

From a beginning of 36 members, the congregation now officially numbers 245.

"I cannot laud the tremendous work of Pastor Grotefend highly enough," Winkler told The Mirror.

"The steady growth and expansion of the Church must be attributed to Pastor Grotefend and a loyal and dedicated membership.

"We are happy and thankful to God that we are joining the St. Andrew Lutheran family and that we have the privilege of living in beautiful Port St. Lucie," concluded Winkler.

VOL. 2 NO. 20 MAY 19, 1976

se proposed to city

hopping center sale negotiated

RT ST. LUCIE–With purchase ations nearing completion on ew acre Sandpiper Shopping r city officials were called to consider a proposed two extension to their present lease city hall.

ne Construction Company is ly completing negotiations e purchase of the seven acre ex located on Morningside ard from General Develop- Corporation. The purchase price was not revealed.

Wayne L. Sines, Jr., president of the construction firm, appeared before the city council during Tuesday's workshop session to propose the extended lease which will include a fifty percent increase in rent.

Under the existing lease, which will expire January 1977, the city is paying $615 per month, but Sines pointed out the proposed rent adjustment would jump that figure to $950 per month.

This amount, according to Sines, represents a per square foot amount approximately midway between the present lease figure and the figure at which recent leases have been negotiated by GDC.

All other elements of the lease will be extended as they are.

The firm's plans for the center include an expansion of commercial and professional facilities and will be designed to create a focal point for the village concept.

Sines told his listeners two banks have indicated an interest in establishing a facility in the south county area: the Port St. Lucie Bank and First National Bank.

"It would be our hope to obtain the bank offering the widest range of services to the people of this area," Sines said.

Over a year ago the city's planning and zoning board conducted a study throughout the area to locate a suitable site for a city hall complex. An approximate 20 acre site at the intersection of Airoso and Peer St. Lucie Boulevards was recommended. Originally the asking price for the parcel was $12,500 per acre, however GDC just three weeks ago agreed to lower the price to $5,500 per acre providing the city would be willing to consummate the purchase no later than September 30, 1976.

If the city purchased the property under the terms offered, GDC agreed to donate Thornhill Park to the city.

During the Tuesday session, Vaughn Lewis, secretary of the P&Z Board, told Councilmembers the board not only stands firm on its recommendation but urges the council to make every effort to accept the GDC offer.

Chet Brandon, Lewis' position now asked the Council to respond to the proposal no later than May 6.

A TIME FOR PLAY–The PTSF picnic held at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School Sunday afternoon provided an excellent opportunity for basketball enthusiasts to practice basketball.

Reeb heads League

PORT ST. LUCIE–Paul M. Mike Reeb was elected president of the Port St. Lucie Civic League at a Board of Directors meeting Thursday evening at the Sandpiper. Seymour Fleming was named vice president. They will serve until the league's annual organizational meeting early in 1977.

Reeb replaced Charles Hayde, who resigned as president, but remains as a director.

The board received a letter from City Administrator Elmer Cox outlining the city's position on the matter of police protection. It was then voted to re-state the League's belief to the city administration that an in-depth study be made to reassure citizens that the city administration does in fact have a plan for future police developments to meet future needs.

The Board also heard a report from Reeb on meetings with the three homeowners associations on the matter of water rates and indicated its belief that continuing cooperation with those groups would be advisable.

The Board also approved a motion to hold at least quarterly public meetings to discuss matters of current concern.

Cedric Benz is named citizen of the year

PORT ST. LUCIE–Cedric Benz was rightfully honored Tuesday evening when the Local Lions Club named him Citizen of the Year.

The award was presented to Benz by Lion President Bill Strout and Mel Broom, chairman of the awards committee.

Benz was honored for his outstanding services to his community. He was instrumental in organizing the PSL River Park Blood Bank, serves as president of the Presidents Council, hosts the Friday Noon Gang and is the first to lend a helping hand to any individual or organization. He spearheaded the Toys for the Needy effort, children at Christmas.

Although some twenty other awards were presented during the evening, the Lion of the Year presentation will be made June 15 when the Lions hold their installation dinner.

PORT ST. LUCIE–Mayor Sharpe, who has been hospitalized for the past week is doing just fine.

Mrs. Sharpe told The Mirror Tuesday the Mayor is up walking around following his recent surgery and expects to be released from Fort Pierce Memorial Hospital Sunday.

iver Park schedules 'spring cleaning' Wednesday

RT ST. LUCIE–The annual unity Pride Spring Cleanup n River Park is scheduled Wednesday, May 26. Rod, coordinator for the has secured the services of Milton's Sanitary Service, General Development Corporation and the St. Lucie County Road Department for the project. The three firms are donating their time and equipment for the annual event with no cost to homeowners.

Residents are asked to deposit all trash and rubbish on the curb by 8 a.m. on Wednesday for pickup. Material must be less than four feet in length and must be able to be handled by two men. Yard clippings and tree debris should be bundled and tied.

Residents who are physically unable to collect and place their items at curbside are asked to call Rod at 878-2935 and help will be provided.

A Port St. Lucie River Park Homeowners Association spokesman said, "What an opportunity free pickup of our unwanted household items and yard trim mings. The Association spear headed the cleanup program.

Fish Fry set for Memorial Day

PORT ST. LUCIE–Something new a Fish Fry, will be offered on Memorial Day at the Community Center, Monday, May 31, from 3-6 p.m.

Bob Brunton, general chairman, has arranged for a caterer who will serve fried fresh fish, hush puppies, cole slaw and baked beans, with dessert and extra beverages for those who want them.

This change of pace from the usual hamburgers or ribs will be served in the picnic area at the Center, with eating facilities in the air conditioned building for those who prefer to be inside.

To finish off the fish dinner, the committee will offer a choice of lemon pie or apple pie.

Tickets are available now from the Community Center office, from Brunton, John Pugh, ticket chairman, or from any of the CESA trustees.

Because of the special nature of this meal, since the use of fresh-caught fish requires careful planning, the number of tickets to be sold will be limited, and tickets must be purchased by Tuesday, May 25.

PSL Lions induct

PORT ST. LUCIE–The PSL Lions Club was honored to have District Governor John Woods volunteer his services and office as initiating officer for five new members who are:

Nicholas G. Cutter, 36 Golf Drive; Luther E. Dampier, 1105 Jasmine; George W. Knott, 3084 Pine Valley Road; Patrick Pruden, Rt. 4, Box 187; and Theodore J. Rancont, 142 N. Naranja.

Other Lion celebrities on hand included Jimmy Harris, Past District Governor of Illinois, and Charles (Chuck) More, Past District Governor, of Fort Pierce.

L SUCCESS–Mrs. Bob Post, left, and Mrs. Tom Tribo enjoy a hotdog the Sunday afternoon PTSF Picnic at the PSL Elementary School. Tribo was chairman of the event which was the PTSF's way of saying to an entire community for their support throughout the year.

MAYOR PULLS SWITCH–Mayor Schuyler Sharpe last Wednesday evening pulled the switch at Sportsman Park officially turning on the newly installed lights on the Optimist Babe Ruth Field, while Richard 'Dick' Schmidt looks on. Schmidt serves on the city's recreation board.

Second nuke plant unit gets okay

JENSEN BEACH–The Florida Cabinet last week approved a Florida Power and Light Co. (FPL) permit to build a second nuclear generating unit on Hutchinson Island.

The Cabinet voted unanimously to approve the second unit, and Attorney General Robert Shevin called for strict state monitoring of safety precautions.

FPL originally sought approval for the second plant last December but Cabinet members delayed their decision to obtain additional information on the radiological health hazards posed by the plant.

Don Dunlop, FPL vice president for environment, said the Cabinet action clears the way for some $10 million in preliminary construction activity and the hiring of 200 workers.

However FPL officials indicate that the start of construction might be delayed due to pending labor negotiations between general contractors and two craft unions.

While we are pleased with full site certification to allow FPL to initiate construction on St. Lucie Unit No 2, it would not be prudent to start work only to be shut down by a possible strike less than two weeks later," H.L. Allen FPL group vice president, said.

In addition critical work on Unit No 1 that might be left unfinished could prevent the nuclear unit from reaching maximum capable power, Allen added.

The two contracts are with the Operating Engineers Local No. 675 and the Carpenters and Piledrivers of the Central Florida District Council. Both agreements are due to expire May 31.

St. Lucie Unit No. 2 essentially will be a duplicate of Unit No. 1 which is located mid-way between Jensen Beach and Port Pierce on Hutchinson Island.

Unit No. 1 achieved initial start up on March 23, and is presently in the power escalation and testing phase approaching commercial operation.

FPL said that Unit No. 2 could be in operation by 1981.

'BUCK HENDRY NIGHT'–Former Martin County Commissioner Frank Wacha, right, presented Buck Hendry a plaque in appreciation for Hendry's contributions to the Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department. Wacha pointed out that Hendry as Martin County road superintendent and holding several other county titles got $300 from the county to buy the fire department its first fire truck. That was 29 years ago, and last Tuesday night the department volunteers and their wives got together for the 29th birthday party. Hendry was one of the original volunteers.

Eliminate parking

4-lane Commercial is in plan

JENSEN BEACH–Eliminating parking on downtown Commercial Street and making Commercial, Jensen Beach Cutoff Road – SR 707A, four lanes to U.S. 1, was part of the traffic plan for the north county area which was approved unanimously last week by the Planning Commission.

Martin County Planner Tom Mumford said, "There is a lot of work to do on the plan before it goes before the County Commission.

The north county comprehensive plan is slated to be presented to the commission June 15.

Mumford said the four lanes on Commercial Street could be achieved by restriping and elimination of parking.

Mumford said there will be another public meeting on the plan before it goes to the County Commission. "We are not totally satisfied with the plan," Mumford said. "We have several alternate plans.

"I have attended all the Rio and Jensen Beach public hearings on the north county plans," Art Hansen said after the planning session, "and this is the first I've heard of four laning and eliminating parking on Commercial Street."

The Commercial Street plan was never brought up at previous meetings, and the public should have the opportunity to express their opinions on the plan, Hansen added.

Mumford said, "We have short range, moderate range and long range plans."

He pointed out that some of the $2 million plus projects discussed at public hearings, causeway road to Commercial Street, railroad over passes etc. were long range plans.

Planning Director Ken Schenk pointed out that the "most consistent problem in the north county areas is the traffic flow.

Schenk said the four laning of Commercial Street would help alleviate the congestion in downtown Jensen Beach.

Another feature of the plan includes increased signalization, new east west roads from U.S. 1 into Jensen Beach and parallel service roads along U.S. 1.

The planning department projects that the population in north county will triple in the next 20 years.

With no changes in the existing zoning, Schenk said 101,000 persons could reside in the north county area.

Under the proposed plan, 81,000 residents could be accomodated. The net result of the plan, therefore, is to reduce the population by 20 per cent, the director said.

The land use plan calls for 76 per cent of the county area in residential use, 8 per cent commercial, 3 per cent to light industrial use, with preservation of environmentally critical areas as well as vital ground water.

Samaritans begin on building

JENSEN BEACH–The newly paved road leads back from South Savanna Road on the south side of Pinelake Village. On Monday, the members of the Jensen Beach Samaritans gathered to break ground for their new home.

The 1,500 square foot garage and 800 square foot squad room will house up to four ambulances, the large Samaritan volunteer force and storage for all the equipment and supplies to keep the ambulance rolling as well as a kitchen.

Problems with staffing the volunteer corp will be solved with a place for the men and women on duty to receive calls and dispatch the ambulances.

The land for the new building was donated to the county by Ransom Randy and Ren Tilton through Pinelake Village. Paul Henderson, local architect, drew the plans and the county is financing the $32,741 building. Bola Construction Co. is the contractor.

When the building is completed the Samaritans plan to furnish it with donations to the Ambulance House Fund, and a drive is planned, according to George Krauss, chairman of the building committee.

There will be a meeting of the Samaritans at Langford Park Field House on Wednesday, June 2, at 8 p.m. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer and learning about the benefits of becoming an Emergency Medical Technician - EMT can get full information at the meeting.

The old problem still exists, said Roger Hazel, president. We need more volunteers to be ambulance drivers and EMTs on both the day and night shift.

The Southward was the name of the ship the folks boarded to take them to Ocho Rios in Jamaica, Grand Casman Island in the West Indies, Montego Bay and Cozumel, Mexico. Either that's the day for disembarking when it rained cats and dogs, according to Marge, the weather was perfect. The group had a picnic on Casman Island and everyone went for a swim in the beautiful waters of the West Indies. Sure sounds wonderful.

Millie and Russ Egbert of Degan Drive just returned from a visit to St. Louis where they formerly lived. While there they visited their accountant's office and in the course of renewing old acquaintances the accountant's wife mentioned she had friends in Port St. Lucie, said friends being the Bruntons, since we lived next door to each other in Webster Groves, Mo. many years ago.

Millie and Russ have been in this area for several years, as we have. We met regularly at Anglers Club every month but never talked about where we had formerly lived. And now we find we have mutual friends.

Let's all be a little friendlier to our fellowman, who knows, your old friends may be your neighbors, old friends. It's a small, small world.

The North Port Men's Golf League better watch out. Bob Brunton, that is, just got home from Memphis where he attended the Danny Thomas Golf Classic at the Colonial Country Club. After watching the pros for four days, he thinks he'll put that little white ball right down the center of the fairway.

Don't forget the Fish Fry at CESA on Monday, May 31 from 3 to 6 p.m. You don't need to bring your own table service this time, just bring yourself, your family, and your friends. Tickets are available at CESA or from a CESA trustee. Cost is $2.50.

Next Tuesday, June 1, the Port St. Lucie Anglers Club's guest speaker will be Al Tomaszewski of Jensen Beach. He will talk about turtles and the Turtle Watches sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce and the Martin County Anglers Club. We hope there will be a good turnout for this interesting presentation.

Venture Out

VENTURE HARBOUR
BY JESSIE SHAVER

Dr. Robert and Kay Smyth are off for a month's vacation in Rhodesville, Va. They will be visiting a cousin there, staying until about July 15 when they will return to VH for a couple of weeks before taking off again. They left here on a rainy, stormy day and we hope they found better weather than we have been having.

A card from Sam Tucker said he got to Melrose, Fl., the Sunday night (May 16) that he left here and ran into a terrible storm. He is well and anxious to get home to Mass.

Also a card from Jean Van Willigan. They arrived home in Wisconsin okay and then went to Colorado Springs to visit their daughter and family. They are enjoying the trip but say 10,000 ft. elevation is a lot different from sea level in Jensen Beach.

Betty and Paul Drinkard talked to Kay and Doc before they (Smyths) left. Betty said they have a lot of hard work to do as the spring ice storms of Mich. had almost ruined their beautiful stand of trees. So many were so badly broken that they had to be cut back so much it will be years before they recover. Rainstorms are not that bad after all.

The Shavers had as a weekend guest their youngest son Robert of Atlanta.

Helen Frederickson is home in Michigan and enjoying it but the weather has been bad.

Thelma Dickey also wrote that they are settled in their home in Indiana and she is back into bridge and will soon be golfing again.

PINE LAKE VILLAGE

Pine Cones

BY BOB RAMSEY
334-5547

Meet the Bruyns. Jim was born at New Rochelle, N.Y. and Barn somewhere around the corner at Whitestone, N.Y. Both were brought up in Rye, where they attended school and also in Greenwich, Conn., but never met until years later.

They were married in Rye, with their fortieth coming up shortly. Something will have to be done about that, August 29, to be exact.

Jim worked at the Bank of New York and Sperry Gyroscope, where he was pension administrator and coordinator for Travelers Insurance. Struck out on his own in 1945 in the insurance business as a broker. It didn't take him long to figure out that he didn't like it, but it was a living and better than stealing, so what could he do?

This is what he did. One day, while rummaging around a friend's attic, he came on a lot of dusty, little hand looms. He asked his buddy if he could sell them on a percentage basis but it turned out he bought the lot for fifty bucks down. Taking another flyer, he placed an ad in McCall's Needlework and put two teenage sons to work at hammering the little poured plastic looms together in a makeshift work shop in Northport, N.Y. He got some encouragement, so he hit the mailorder houses. Sears called him saying they would take 7,000 looms, then orders started coming in from as far away as California. The friend who sold him the whole smear is still crying the blues.

Do not discount the fact that behind every good man stands a designing woman in more than one sense of the word. Barn was in the rug hooking business at the time. She did custom designs and drew patterns for wool company catalogues under the name of Margaret Leslie. She could use the punch needle, shuttle or latch hook techniques which were self taught. Between the two talents, a Mom and Pop business grew and Jim quit the nine to five routine altogether. Woman's Day magazine of 1965 published color pages of the loomed squares made into afghans, and orders came in at the rate of 1800 a day. The Northport factory, and it was now truly a factory, ran from 8 a.m. until midnight.

In their travels about the country putting on demonstrations, they finally landed in St. Augustine where Barn continued on with her rug work.

The Bruyns have two boys, Steve and Dave, plus five grandchildren. After living in St. Augustine, they moved the business to Key West and then to this area, retiring at Pinelake Village. Steve is marketing and research director for Blue Cross in Chicago, while Dave is selling everything that isn't nailed down for Wickes Lumber in Wisconsin.

Here's a Bicentennial note. Jim and Barn have forebearers who spent the winter at Valley Forge with George Col. Jacobus Bruyn was captured and held on one of the notorious British prison ships undergoing torture but eventually made it back to Kingston, N.Y., and from the line sprang the present Jim. Glad you made it.

Since the Bruyns are sociable, they have begun to have guests like Sten and Lyle Gustavsson of the Showcase Gift Shop, and Pete and Walter Baumhofer of Northport, N.Y., over for dinner, followed by Ruth and Stranhan Davis of Boynton Beach, and all they talked about was insurance, the thing they had gotten out of years before. This weekend will be the Eamottes from Key West and Disney world.

As the years roll by, isn't it pleasant to know that you still have each other around, good years and bad? That goes for everyone.

To the other natives of the park, keep those cards and letters rolling in, and don't forget the parade on May 29, a schedule of which you should have in your hot little hands before that time, spelling it all out for you.

Time to spray the shrubbery, the bugs are coming. See you next week.

Classes, when they resume on Tuesday, September 28, will be under the direction of Dr. Alsofrom of West Palm Beach.

Crisis Line classes suspended until fall

JENSEN BEACH–Crisis Line of Martin County, expected to be in service this summer, is discontinuing classes and deferring operation until fall.

It was found that, although enough people signed up for the classes there would not be enough people here throughout the summer to staff the 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week telephone service.

Classes, when they resume on Tuesday, September 28, will be under the direction of Dr. Alsofrom of West Palm Beach.

Tennis exhibitions set at Sandpiper

PORT ST. LUCIE--A new series of tennis exhibition matches featuring a former U.S. Davis Cup star and top South Florida players will be inaugurated Saturday, May 29 at Sandpiper Bay.

Frank Froehling former U.S. Davis Cupper who is now tennis director at the resort, said the first exhibition, a doubles match, would start at 1 p.m. and will be open to the public without charge.

Pending last minute changes, Froehling will team with young Dennis Rinaldi of Fort Pierce against Sandpiper Bay teaching pro Phil Ranger and 25 year old Gregg Brents a former Indiana State University star who was ranked third in the tough Western Tennis Association during his senior year in college.

While the first exhibition will be a best of three set doubles test, Froehling hopes to expand later Saturday afternoon attractions to include singles and perhaps mixed doubles matches.

Invitations to play in later exhibitions have been extended to Stuart municipal pro Bob Grossman, Allen Quay of Fort Pierce and others in Florida and out of state according to Froehling.

"We hope to sustain a lot of interest in tennis in the weeks ahead," said the 33 year old Coral Gables native. "I have been in touch with a lot of players in this area and as word of the Sandpiper Bay exhibitions gets around and players are able to adjust their schedules I am sure we will be putting on some top quality matches in the weeks to come."

HONORED--Mrs. Butch Post outgoing president of the PTSF group was honored during the installation ceremonies held last Thursday evening at the Port St. Lucie Elementary School for the outstanding services she has performed during the past year. Presenting the plaque to Mrs. Post was Mrs. Joan Florenza.

City to request $40,000

PORT ST. LUCIE--City Administrator Elmer Cox is expected to appear before the St. Lucie County Commission within the next two weeks to request $40,000 be earmarked for the city of Port St. Lucie in the next fiscal budget.

Cox will appeal to the Commissioners to consider granting the financial assistance in two specific areas: drainage and parks.

For recreational purposes and further improvements in Sportsman Park relating mainly to capital expenditures for tennis courts a basketball court refurbishing the Kiddie Park creation of a fieldhouse with restrooms, and creation of practice baseball fields $25,000 will be requested, Cox said.

Citing the serious problem of maintaining the swales which in some of mileage exceed two to one the mileage of the streets in this south county municipality, the administrator will request $15,000 be earmarked by the commission for that purpose.

While the city's road and bridge fund at the moment is adequate Cox said that within the coming year or 18 months the city will be taking over more streets and drainage ditches. The monthly costs of maintaining these will absorb much of the present and future operations.

The city of Port St. Lucie is ineligible for county maintenance funds for its streets because they do not meet the county road construction standards.

Councilman Larry Kimmel explained the city's streets do not meet county standards simply because they are of soil cement construction.

The county requires limerock be used. Kimmel said, adding that the roads in Port St. Lucie did meet or even surpass state standards.

The road and bridge fund is broken down as such as expenditures are limited to repairs or improvements of streets, curbs and gutters, maintenance of drainage ditches and grass cutting of city owned rights of ways.

During the city's $141,000 contract with the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department for police protection Cox pointed out the city has committed another $30,000 to finance the addition of a new police patrol officer and to originate training and supply an auxiliary force of ten.

The enhanced law enforcement program also includes the purchase of a fully equipped police patrol car.

Cox officials are hopeful the County Commission will consider granting some relief in the financing of the police protection program by the Sheriff's office especially in view of the additional revenues that are bound to be generated in the county when the FP&L Nuclear Plant on Hutchinson Island becomes operative.

City to cool safety director

PORT ST. LUCIE--While the city council Tuesday viewed the estimates for the purchase and installation of air conditioning units for the office of the city's safety director and an adjoining storage room, the final decision on the matter was turned over to Elmer Cox, city administrator.

Since the amount of money involved will be less than $1,000 Cox was authorized to handle the purchase.

Estimates for the two units range from $200 to $982 installed.

City hall site purchase approved

PORT ST. LUCIE--Following the recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Board, city officials Tuesday agreed to purchase the 10 acre proposed city hall site located at the intersection of Airoso and Port St. Lucie Boulevards.

Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan and councilmen Bill Mechenbier and Larry Kimmel voted in favor of the purchase while vice mayor Frank Rose opposed the move. Mayor Sharpe who was released from Fort Pierce Memorial Friday following surgery was not present at the meeting. Rose opposed the move solely on the grounds the nearest sewer lines are situated 1 miles from the site.

GDC President Louis Fischer recently agreed to sell the parcel to the city for a cash price of $5,500 per acre providing a decision could be reached by May 31 and a closing scheduled no later than September 30, 1976.

In recommending the immediate purchase of the initial 10.49 acre parcel, the P&Z Board urged officials to open negotiations on the remaining four tracts offered by GDC at the same price. The remaining four tracts include approximately 39 acres.

In his original proposal to the city Fischer agreed to donate Thornhill Park to the city an offer which officials are still considering.

Just last week the council was asked to consider a proposed two year extension to their present lease which would include a 50 percent rent increase on the city hall by Wayne I. Allen Jr. of the Wayne Construction Company. The construction firm is currently completing negotiations for the purchase of the seven acre complex located on Morningside Boulevard from GDC.

Under the existing lease which will expire January, 1977 the city is paying $685 per month but that figure will jump to $966 with the new [illegible] Rose voted against following a comprehensive study by the city [illegible] Board. The Airoso-Port St. Lucie Boulevard site was recommended for the proposed governmental center in this [illegible].

Rate hike hearing postponed

PORT ST. LUCIE--The public hearing on the General Development Utilities rate increase application has been postponed from May 26 to June 22 according to an announcement this week by the Public Service Commission.

The public hearing has now been scheduled for 9 a.m. June 22 at the Sandpiper Bay Convention Center.

The change in meeting places was apparently brought about by numerous protests from a representative group comprised of members from the city's three homeowner associations and the Civic League.

Residents complained about the [illegible] meeting being scheduled at Indian River Community College due to the distance between the affected area and the location of the public hearing.

The utility company is requesting an increase in residential water rates for gallons per month and an increase in sewer rates from $5.65 a month to $9.50.

Deadline for a final order in the rate docket was August 18, 1976 but GDU officials agreed to extend the deadline for 30 days according to the PSC announcement.

Leo Club plans car wash

PORT ST. LUCIE--The Leo Club of Port St. Lucie has scheduled a car wash for June 12 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Exxon Station, Homar Drive & U.S. 1.

Tickets may be purchased from Leo members or by calling the club treasurer Dianne Hannah at 878-2171 and secretary Ann Brown at 878-2861.

..."We are pleased with full site certification to allow FPL to initiate construction on St. Lucie Unit No. 2. It would not be prudent to start work only to be shut down by a possible strike less than two weeks later," H.L. Allen FPL group vice president said.

In addition critical work on Unit No. 1 that might be left unfinished could prevent the nuclear unit from reaching maximum capable power, Allen added.

The two contracts are with the Operating Engineers Local No. 675 and the Carpenters and Piledrivers of the Central Florida District Council. Both agreements are due to expire May 31.

St. Lucie Unit No. 2 essentially will be a duplicate of Unit No. 1, which is located mid-way between Jensen Beach and Fort Pierce on Hutchinson Island.

Unit No. 1 achieved initial start up on March 23, and is presently in the power escalation and testing phase approaching commercial operation.

FPL said that Unit No. 2 could be in operation by 1981.

City orders sale of stocks

PORT ST. LUCIE--Contrary to the city administrator's recommendation that the city retain the 100 shares of Fort Pierce Development Corporation Stock officials Tuesday turned thumbs down on the idea and instructed the sale of stocks be pursued immediately.

Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan had suggested the sale a week ago claiming the stocks had been purchased illegally in 1961 by the council and were being retained illegally. The purchase price of the stocks was $2,500.

Cox reported Tuesday the best offer received thusfar would enable the city to make approximately a $240 profit. He also told his listeners the stocks were not illegally purchased or held by the city because of the very nature of their origin.

Memorial Day fish fry

PORT ST. LUCIE--Fried fresh fish with hush puppies, cole slaw and baked beans, this is the taste treat to be served from 3 to 6 p.m. Memorial Day at the Port St. Lucie Community Center.

Tickets are now on sale at the Center office, or are available from any Center trustee and should be purchased by May 26.

Bob Brunton general chairman for the event, has announced that music will be an added attraction, with Joe Cornwell providing the music over the Center's outdoor speaker system.

The fish fry is one of the last events in the year's program of special events which have provided the bulk of the cash needed for operating expenses at the Center.

No vacation

PORT ST. LUCIE--The host of the Friday Nite Gang announced last week that the Gang will not take a vacation during the summer months, stating that he feels those who stay at home during the summer should not be deprived of their usual entertainment just because some go visiting.

At last week's session, two first timers were reported: R.G. Sidell originally from Cleveland, Ohio and Mrs. R.D. Gray from Pittsburgh, Pa.

The main prize was won by Lori DiArruda.

The Gang is in session every Friday at the North Port Marina starting at 7:30 p.m.

NEW STORE--Indian River Beverages opened this week at the crossroads across from Bailey Boat. The store will handle imported and domestic wines and beers, ice mixes and keg beers, with delivery service. Marty Hawthorne is the owner and plans to open a new deli food and sandwich section soon. He also plans catering for parties.

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH--"The farthest I've been, I think, is one time I went to Vero Beach," Ed Lawrence said. The 1958 Jeep is well known in Jensen Beach, though, as Lawrence drives back and forth to work daily.

But, the City of New York says that Ed Lawrence drove his Jeep in the "Big Apple" and garnered 12 parking tickets with a total fine of $355 during the period of September 6, 1973 to August 8, 1974.

"The last time I was in New York City was when I was on my way to Africa on a Shrine tour. That was in 1972," Lawrence said.

The official "Notice of outstanding summons" was received last Friday.

"The license number, my address, everything matches. But neither I, or my car, have been in New York."

The Jeep was a gift of Ralph and Frances Evinrude when Lawrence was general manager of Frances Langford's Outrigger in 1962. It is used mainly to transport Lawrence from his home in High Point to work and back home.

"When we go anywhere, we use the Mercedes," Lawrence pointed out.

Throughout the state, it seems, Floridians are being deluged with parking tickets from New York City. The city is sending about 5,000 such summonses every ten days to residents, many of whom have not been in New York during the periods mentioned on the summons.

"What a ripoff. I'm not certain what to do, but they aren't going to get my money.

"I called the sheriff's office, but they said they didn't know what to do. I called the Stuart city police, but they referred me to the sheriff's department. I was told to call the sheriff back on Tuesday."

Lawrence must answer the summons "in seven days. To do so, you should either plead 'not guilty' by appearing in person or by representative at the hearing office listed above, or plead 'guilty' by mailing your check or money order."

The threat of a "default judgment" hangs over Lawrence's head for failure to respond.

Dated May 25, 1976, Lawrence would have to respond by June 1 to meet the requirements.

"It's funny," he said. "Imagine a 1958 Jeep driven by a man of my age in the streets of New York City. That's funny."

Officials suggest that persons receiving incorrect summons first write New York City officials telling them of the error, then send a copy to their insurance carrier to be on record so that rates are not increased due to the mistake.

ounty commission o get area plan

SEN BEACH--The next led public meeting on the ehensive plan for the north County area--Jensen Beach, d North River Shores--will be 15 before the County ission, planning director Kris a said Tuesday.

will not ask the commission- take action at that meeting," a said. "We will discuss the sed plan and final action come in July."

enk and planner Tom Mum- dicated that they would meet Jensen Beach merchants prior June 15 session to discuss the sed Commercial Street traffic he Planning Commission last . Schenk proposed eliminating g on downtown Commercial east of the railroad--so there be four lanes of traffic on the but new parking areas would ed to make up for the loss of eet parking.

sen Beach Chamber of erce director Art Hansen ed out at the Planning ission session that he had attended all the Rio and Jensen Beach public hearings on the plan and "this is the first I've heard of four laning and eliminating of parking on Commercial Street."

Over the past several years, traffic plans, including eliminating parking, parallel parking and one-way traffic, have been studied by various committees.

Last October a petition containing the signatures of 19 downtown Commercial Street merchants was presented to the Chamber of Commerce meeting stating their opposition to one-way traffic.

Several years ago parallel parking spaces were marked on the north side of Commercial Street at the Indian River intersection, making left and right turning lanes possible. But angle parking continued from that point west to the railroad on the street.

While there was considerable discussion on the land use plan for the north county area, Schenk pointed out that the "most consistent problem in the north county areas is the traffic flow."

Another feature of the traffic plan for the area is a new north-south road midway between U.S. 1 and Savanna Road, with connecting links to those arteries. Baker Road would be extended to Savanna Road so traffic headed from U.S. 1 toward the Jensen Beach Causeway could bypass Rio.

Several expensive road proposals were made by Schenk and his staff at the public hearings including overpasses of the railroad tracks, road from the causeway to Commercial Street, etc.--but they were abandoned and only the Commercial Street four-laning and the new north-south road with connecting links were presented to the Planning Commission.

The planning Commission approved the comprehensive plan for the area.

Other issues will get the attention of the town commission at the workshop session today, June 2, at 7:30 p.m.

Slated for discussion are two ordinances -- lot clearing; and creation of a planning agency.

Traffic in Indialucie will be discussed as will South River Road. And burning permits will get debated.

MEMORIAL WREATH--Joseph A. Netik, commander of Barracks 854 Veterans of World War I, and Frances Turner, of American Legion Auxiliary Post 176, placed a memorial wreath on the plaque at All Saints Cemetery during Memorial Day ceremonies.

Memorial services are held

JENSEN BEACH--Members of area veterans organizations gathered at All Saints Cemetery on Memorial Day at 1 p.m. The brief, solemn services, paying tribute to the nation's heroes, included massed colors, memorial salute by a firing squad and a wreath on the memorial plaque.

"We are here to remember those who have fallen in battle," Richard Newson, 12th district committeeman of American Legion Jensen Beach Post 126, said.

Newson, who presided, paid tribute to the veterans of Korean and Vietnam wars, noting that the numbers of World War I and II are dwindling.

The wreath was placed on the memorial plaque next to the flag pole by Joseph A. Netik, commander of Martin County Barracks 854, Veterans of World War I, and Frances E. Turner of the Legion Post Auxiliary 176.

The plaque is dedicated to veterans of all wars.

The plaque had been located at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce and was taken down when the new chamber building was constructed.

Commander Netik made arrangements with All Saints to put the plaque by the flag pole in the cemetery.

Strike threat thaws as FP&L-unions agree

JENSEN BEACH--Operating engineers and carpenters unions have agreed to terms with Ebasco, general contractor on the Hutchinson Island Nuclear Power Plant of Florida Power and Light Company, clearing the way for work to begin soon on Unit Two of the plant.

As soon as the agreements are signed, work can begin on the first phase of the construction, and final work on Unit One will be completed. FP&L has a limited work authorization for Unit Two from the federal government.

The contract agreement struck a bright note in the economic picture of Martin and St. Lucie Counties, with hopes that thousands of highly paid workers returned to their jobs.

Unit Two should be completed by 1981, with work hoped to be started by August.

County attorney quits post

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County Attorney Stephen Calvert Tuesday submitted his resignation to the County Commission, effective June 30.

Calvert read a letter during the commission session. His letter of resignation stated:

"On June 30, 1976, I will complete four years as the first full-time county attorney of Martin County.

"In order for me to continue to grow in my chosen profession, I feel that it is necessary for me to open my own law office here in Stuart.

"Accordingly, I hereby resign as county attorney as of June 30, 1976. It has been a pleasure working for you."

His resignation was accepted with regret by the commission, and Commissioner Turner Powers praised the work as county attorney.

Parade music needed

JENSEN BEACH--The need for musical units in the Jensen Beach second annual Fourth of July Parade was pointed out by the parade chairman Monday.

"We've got to have music in the parade," Andrea Webb, Jensen Beach Optimist Auxiliary parade chairman, said.

"We need music, even if it's canned music on a public address system," Mrs. Webb said.

She said that parade line-up co-chairman Carole Johnson has been attempting to get some bands for the parade.

Mrs. Webb said that parade entry applications have not all been returned to the line-up chairman, the number of units in the parade is not known.

Entry forms should be returned by June 5. Mrs. Johnson may be contacted at 334-5274, or Mrs. Anne Pearl, 334-1024, may be contacted after 6 p.m. or on weekends for parade information.

The parade line-up will start at 12:30 p.m. behind Jensen Beach Bank and will begin at 1:15 p.m.

Trophies will be awarded in several categories, and the theme of the parade will be "Americana '76."

Nuke plant alert is nationwide

JENSEN BEACH--Security was tightened around the nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island last week as part of a nationwide call for security in the face of threatened takeover by extremists.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission disclosed last Saturday that it had ordered a nationwide security alert as groups opposed to nuclear power planned nationwide demonstrations on the wee'end before the California primaries, June 8.

Fresh donuts are feature s Village Corner opens

JENSEN BEACH–The corner of Commercial Street and Indian River Drive is again a bustling place, with the opening of The Village Corner.

The combination gift shop-sundries store and restaurant is owned by Audrey Gaskill, who manages all phases of the operation.

The smell of fresh donuts is new to Jensen Beach, and visitors can watch the "robot" donut machine turn out hundreds of donuts a day. Tom Jones recently went to work for the Village Corner, and Mrs. Gaskill was pleased to learn that he had operated the donut machine before.

First it was making double donuts. We found that if oil got on a little pin it would do that, so we cleaned the pin and now it is operating okay," Mrs. Gaskill said.

Then, after the opening, the wrong donut mix was sent. The machine was shut down as Mrs. Gaskill called all over for donut mix. She finally found some in Illinois at the main factory, and had some shipped.

The restaurant offers a complete breakfast and luncheon menu.

On the gift shop side, the stock is still coming in and being loaded on the shelves.

There is a full line of beach and picnic toys and wear, costume jewelry, t-shirts, hats, shoes, novelties and souvenirs.

Many out-of-town newspapers are available as well as magazines, cigars, cigarettes and other sundries.

The store is completely remodeled, carpeted throughout and filled with bright and shiny new equipment.

But most of all it is the donut machine that sets it all apart, something no one else has in the area.

Mrs. Gaskill, [illegible] restaurant before, but she did have gift shops in Vero Beach and Delray Beach in the past.

DONUT ROBOT–Tom Jones operates the "robot" donut machine that manufactures the cake donuts sold at the Village Corner Restaurant gift Shop in Jensen Beach.

DAR plans family dinner

JENSEN BEACH–The Halpatiokee Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) family dinner will be held at All Saints Episcopal Church in Jensen Beach at 6 p.m. June 11.

Father Frank R. Alvarez, Rector of All Saints, will be the featured speaker. He will tell the story of and give the members and their families a tour of the beautiful facility, the oldest church in Martin County.

Dinner will be served by the All Saints Guild. Contact Mrs. W.A. Stephenson by Friday, June 4 for reservations.

FOR SERVICE–Carmen Runkle, executive director of the Palm Beach Blood Bank, puts a gold service award around the neck of Marionne Johnston, chairman of the Martin County branch volunteers. Mrs. Johnston was honored for her service to the blood bank at a luncheon at Frances Langford's Outrigger Restaurant last week. Assisting was volunteer Jeene Stephenson.

'Mousetrap' opens

STUART–The Mousetrap opens Friday, June 4, and will run three weekends at the Barn Theatre on East Ocean Boulevard, Stuart.

A blending of new and familiar faces to local theatre fans will be seen in the Martin County Players production. Cast members John Ferra, Darcy Cimarti, Bob Carruthers, Charles Red, Marionne Johnston and Bette Ann Hiwanitz have all been seen in previous productions this year. Newcomers to the Barn stage are Jill Russell, active in the Vero Beach Community Theatre, and Clifford Buckholt. Although new to the stage, Buckholt has been behind the scenes on previous productions.

Director Hank Langhehnig is assisted by his wife Bunny as producer and Margaret Sloan as stage manager.

Curtain time for performances is 8:30 p.m. For reservations, call [illegible].

Nuclear licensing

We have just endured an extensive and expensive experience in the licensing process of Unit Two of the Hutchinson Island Nuclear Power Plant of Florida Power and Light Construction is due to begin "about" August

We have written for years of the waste of taxpayer and consumer money on these public hearings...hearings that are, in general, paid for by those who use the power produced by FP&L.

It is our opinion that the criteria for nuclear power plant construction should be laid down in the beginning, with all information leading to a safe plant being brought before the licensing authority when the application is made

From the time the application is accepted, the information digested, and a license for construction given, the builders of the plant should be allowed to do their job

To stop construction for more and more hearings after the work has started is foolish and a waste of money consumer money

Unit One of Hutchinson Island project was an example of millions of dollars of waste through stoppages and delays as new fears and ideas were brought up, and new informations presented, weighed and public-hearinged to the point of exhaustion

We believe in the process of public hearings

We also believe that the work of Martin Hodder on behalf of those who oppose nuclear power was in the best interests of the application of FP&L for Unit Two.

Many items of concern were brought out, and the application of FP&L was altered to reinforce the safety features of the plant.

Many items of concern were found lacking in validity, and prove, with the best testimony available, to be either groundless or of too little concern for action.

The hearings have been held. Further findings will be presented as evidence in the matter, and the July 7 deadline will bring the best possible construction guidelines for Unit Two.

Then, it will be time to go to work.

We have seen the impact of delay in the many nuclear plant construction families lost to the area, out of work or gone to other places. The loss has been in friendship, in payroll, and in the dislocation of people who banked their futures in this area during the construction phases of units one and two.

Ebasco, the contractor, will now be required to find more of those trained men who have gone elsewhere to work.

It is our hope that, once working, the builders will be left alone to do their jobs at the lowest possible cost, under the supervision of the proper reulatory agencies, and with no more stoppages for more public hearings that establish new rules after the ball game starts

PSL sunshine upheld

An investigation into a possible violation of the government in the sunshine law by three members of the Port St. Lucie City Council has, according to the state attorney, indicated that no action should be taken, clearing the councilpersons of the violation

With this matter out of the way residents and elected officals can now get back to work building a city together

Funeral regulation

Efforts of the Federal Trade Commission to regulate the funeral homes of America are another frightening invasion of private enterprise by bureaucrats

The move into this area of business, a very sensitive area of personal inter-relationship between professionals and citizens, cannot be construed as anything but another move to bigger government, more red tape and waste

Following a period of some abuse, funeral homes have done a good job of setting high standards of operation, policing their own industry through organization and licensing rules, and raising standards of procedures

The funeral homes in Martin and St Lucie areas are oustanding examples of well run businesses, operated without excessive cost.

If there is a problem area, it is the "subdivision burial plot" sales organizations with their watts-line high-pressure pitches. Public information and reaction has those fairly well under control

We cannot see our local businessmen being lumped into what the FTC has reported as unfair and deceptive trade practices

They operate under the ethical standards of the National Funeral Directors Association, and our state associations

The FTC has already invaded too many provinces of free enterprise, affecting consumers from the cradle through life. A big brother government taking us from the cradle to the grave is a frightening prospect in a free society

FTC heal thyself.

Weather report

Left town for a few days last week and I found one sure way to get your mind off work--drive for four days in the rain.

It was cloudy when I left town and soon it rained. I didn't have on my sun glasses for four days. Somebody sure had the rain dance going.

And you sure can bet your rain dance shoes that a majority of motorists were observing the 55 mph speed limit and less. It was raining so hard at one point in Florida that the highway patrol troopers had stopped. It's for sure they weren't looking for speeders. There were few cars moving.

And then a minor problem developed which made it impossible to keep both car windows up during the night.

For several years I haven't been able to open the passenger side door from the outside but that hasn't caused any problem since I seldom have a passenger.

But because of all the rain, the button on the driver's side door started sticking, and I made the mistake of asking a brother-in-law for some oil.

The oil didn't immediately solve the problem or at least not fast enough for him so he resorts to a hammer and screwdriver--being a retired building contractor and a bit absent minded, he believes a hammer and screwdriver will loosen anything.

It did. It loosened my door lock and now I cannot open either door from the outside and that's the best position to be in during a rainy season.

When I got back to the office I found that some good samaritan had replaced the balky roller on my chair and now I can roll around the desk with the greatest of ease.

I wonder if the person who did that good deed used a Sammons screwdriver.

And when I got back I found that The Mirror had placed second in the Florida Press Association weekly newspaper contest.

It means that we'll just have to work harder, but I doubt if the judges who select this editorial page for the contest. I don't believe that they will give top marks to a weekly report in a column.

But, we needed the rain, we sure do. It looks like there is more to come. The rain does wonders for the grass and shrubs, but you gotta also go to work on the weeds or they will get out of hand.

The grass in my yard was about as tall as the belly button on a sumo wrestler when I got back home.

Cutting the grass is not much fun, but it sure beats driving for 4 days in the rain.

The death of 'no-fault'

It was a good idea that just opened the doors of corrupt lawyers to higher profits. It's as simple as that.

No-fault insurance as set up was out. It didn't work.

As in most cases where the consumer is offered a law that is designed to cut costs no-fact, just set up the consumer for an insurance rip-off that further raised rates.

It was sorta like the malpractice insurance rates that are raising the costs of hospital beds and doctor services.

Unfortunately, claims exceed damage and the lawyers who know the ins and outs of the law, work it to their own advantage. They go for the "rich" insurance company's jugular vein and the average guy who doesn't have accidents has to pay.

Local lawyers don't dip into the pot. It is usually the big city sharpies.

Up go the rates, and you know who has to pay.

Why the people don't get up in arms about the rip-off I just don't know. All of the consumer-oriented groups, from the Nader types to the senior citizen groups, continue to attack the "big" companies without attacking the real problems.

Juries sit in judgement giving massive amounts of money to the injured, thinking they are doing a favor to the little guy, and forgetting that each massive allowance raises the insurance rates again for everybody.

No fault was designed to get the motorist paid for injury to car and person, and eliminate the necessity of lawsuits and the high charges of lawyers who took the cases to court. Those charges often ate up the money that the injured person would have received.

The problem with the law was that it set a dollar value on the point where the lawyers might come into play. Thus, the lawyers would push the claim above that figure so that the case could be taken to court. Higher claims resulted, and up went the insurance rates.

It was the same when Medicare passed.

Local doctors admit that before Medicare people came to the office once or twice a year. Now they come four and five times to use up the Medicare minimum. This places a service burden on the doctor. The forms to be filled out multiply, and up go the rates.

Add to that the problems with malpractice insurance, and you have a really high cost of health care.

As in any socialized form of benefit, health care does nothing more than cost everybody more and more, causes the people to go to the doctor's office more and more, and breeds violations and bureaucratic waste, which costs more and more.

It is the people losing ripped-off because they are the ones paying the bill. No one seems to remember that it is our taxes that pay for everything from local government to the federal government.

Our insurance payments pay for the accidents of others, for the high awards given to people who sue in accident cases, or for malpractice on the part of hospital or doctor.

That the sums awarded are exorbitant makes juries proud that they took care of the little guy, but those same juries are raising our rates, monies we have to pay for hospital and auto insurance.

I am unsure just how all together to make damage awards reasonable to properly recompense people, without raising our costs to the skies.

The answer does not lie on the legislature. It lies in the consumer-oriented groups that represent the various social groups in the country. They should explain to and unify the people so that everyone is treated fairly.

The pressures brought by the people can do anything. Public pressure can bring down insurance rates and build respect for the laws that are needed to control our destiny, but only if the people begin to understand why the rates are going up.

Taking the responsibility for our own actions is a bitter pill. But we must realize that responsibility is the only course before us.

Alice Hickey

What you see is what you get!

The mailing had been completed and the truck was on its way to the Fort Pierce Post Office with the current issue of the Port St. Lucie Mirror.

I washed the ink from my hands, poured a cup of coffee, picked up a Port St. Lucie Mirror and returned to my desk.

It seems to be a well-founded fact that errors don't show up until the paper is printed and then, by golly, they stick out like sore thumbs.

I had nearly finished reading the paper when I saw it.

I told myself this couldn't happen to me, but there it was: the Ocean Breeze news on the page where the Port St. Lucie news was to have been.

I quickly obtained a copy of the Jensen Beach Mirror and checked out the back page.

The first item to catch my eye was none other than the Republican Club meeting scheduled for June 3, not to mention the special notice that had been called in by the Port St. Lucie Baptist Church office. There were also the local golf scores and several other items of interest to the Port St Lucie readers.

Each week at least two, if not three, pages are switched in the two papers. These are called flip pages, carrying local news items which do not appear in both papers.

On Tuesday evening after we have photographed all the pages comprising the week's issue, the negatives are opaqued and carefully checked and counted.

The final step is to separate the PSL pages from the Jensen Beach, mark them accordingly, and clip together with instructions attached for the Palm Beach printers.

Both papers at that point become the responsibility of the printers who will strip the negatives, burn the press plates and run the presses.

The Mirror staffers have no control over the press run.

So, with paper in hand, I headed for my editor's office.

Just look at this, they have flipped our pages the wrong way. I complained, expecting not only a sympathetic ear, but also a solution from him in all his infinite wisdom.

Just cool it, Hickey. When the run is finished and the papers delivered back to the Mirror office, what you see is what you get," he answered in his usual calm manner.

"If you want to make it as a newspaper reporter, you'll just have to learn to live with the heat," I heard him say as I left his office.

Moments later, Leta Keith, the Ocean Breeze correspondent, came flying into the office.

"Where is all my copy for this week? It isn't in the paper!" she exclaimed in near panic.

Having regained my own composure, I was able to pass on my knowledgeable information.

"Your news is in the Port St Lucie Mirror this week, Leta. If you want to be a reporter, you will just have to relax and live with the mistakes we have no control over," I said, quite calmly.

The old Packard will retrace that trip, somewhat, as it races across the United States. Ralph and Frances Evinrude will be in New York to see it off, and in Paris to see it end.

DONOR HONORED--An artist's rendition of the 1914 Packard, donated to Elliott Museum by Ralph Evinrude, was donated in his name to the museum by Rick Carroll last week. It will become a part of the permanent collection of renderings on display. The Packard is now being readied for the July 4 beginning of the New York to Paris Race, a re-enactment of a 1909 event. Wells wins player of week

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH–It has not been a very good year for Kermit's Stag Shop. In fact, they have had little to root for at all, with Ricky Bright's over the fence home run being the highlight of the year.

But you can add another highlight to the scrapbook, for last week Leroy Wells made the huge center field at "The Cow Pasture" look ten times smaller than it is, making three sensational plays, and earning the Jensen Mirror "Player of the Week" award.

Wells follows Mark Destonds and Billy Rinaldi, winners of the last two awards and becomes the first Colt Leaguer to capture the honors for 1976. Others who enjoyed a fine week were Malcolm Delancy, Ricky Bright and Donnie Wilkie.

Wells had his moments Wednesday against Port Salerno. In the second inning he ran far to his left to get to Billy Washington's fly ball and made a perfect throw to the plate in an attempt to prevent a Port Salerno score. However, despite his throw, the run scored and Crane's led 2-0.

In the fifth inning, Port Salerno had another rally going but Wells put a quick stop to it, as he ranged almost to the fence to haul in another long fly ball this time hit by Scott Hall.

The other three players are all Colt Leaguers thus making it a clean sweep for Kermit's. Delancy went two-for-four against Port Salerno, including a double in the fourth which started Kermit's comeback.

Bright, as mentioned before, smashed a home run over the center field fence against Stuart's Donnie St. Onge, in a game played last Monday. Wilkie, meanwhile, smacked two hits against Port Salerno picking up two runs batted in and getting Kermit's back into the game.

With all this, it is hard to imagine how Kermit's lost to Stuart, 10-1, and to Port Salerno 7-4. Kermit's made costly errors in the early innings of both games, but in the Salerno game they fought back. In fact, if Donnie Wilkie's fly ball had gotten through the outfield, Kermit's would have had the tying run on second and third. Instead, Tommy Lockridge made a shoestring catch and the game was practically over.

The Player of the Week award is presented each week to a Mustang Bronco Pony or Colt Leaguer who is judged to be the outstanding player for the preceding week. A three week break is taken at mid-season during make-up games and playoffs.

heriff to supervise city's officer - car

RT ST. LUCIE--Although there onsiderable controversy over ter the City Council Tuesday ed to a proposal that the new officer and the city's new car will be under the direct rvision of the St. Lucie County 's Department, while the city pick up the $30,000 tab for ces.

ile there were thirteen applica received for the position of a ently assigned Port St. Lucie n, only one of those applicants, d R. Cassens of Muller Road, ll the necessary qualifications. ssens was highly recommended sheriff's office and worked as Lucie County deputy on a time basis for the past thirteen Administrator Elmer Cox ed Tuesday that eight appli- for the auxiliary force have approved thusfar. Names of applicants will be released n the week at which time Cox ported the other two applicants also have been selected.

Training of the auxiliary police force will be activated just as soon as the appropriate arrangements can be made with Indian River Community College, possibly as early as the week of June 8.

Mayor Schuyler Sharpe recently submitted a tentative budget totaling $173,630 to Sheriff Lanie Norvell for the contracted police services during the next fiscal year. Of this amount nearly $30,000 was earmarked for the purchase of a new police car, the salary of one full time deputy assigned to the city and the establishment of a ten-member auxiliary police force.

Should the city's request for funds under the Law Enforcement Administration Act (LEAA) be approved, those funds will be used for purchasing and equipping the new patrol car, thereby reducing the expenses to the city by an estimated $6,000.

It was also agreed during the special meeting that with a police budget pushing the $200,000 mark, an indepth study should be made during the coming fiscal year to determine the feasibility of the city obtaining its own police department. It is expected that the city's Planning and Zoning Board will spearhead the study and according to the board's chairman, Ray Neighbours, the project will get underway immediately.

$15,000 sought for traffic study

PORT ST. LUCIE--An application for a $15,000 grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Commission was filed this week by the city.

According to City Administrator Elmer Cox, should the grant be approved the funds will be used to conduct a traffic warning and regulatory sign study to determine the needs of the city. Included in the study will be the inventory and analysis of the traffic signing, as well as high accident locations.

The project will provide recommendations for the improvement of existing warning and regulatory signs, and recommendations for the installation of new signs where they are needed but at the moment do not exist.

A traffic sign update program, together with specific recommendations at high accident locations, will reduce the mishap potential and enhance the safety and efficiency of traffic operations.

According to Cox, the City does not have an adequate staff to undertake this study and proposes to utilize the services of a consultant traffic engineering firm to conduct the study which will encompass approximately 125 miles of paved streets.

In making this appeal on behalf of the city Cox has cited that while the updated census discloses 4,000 permanent residents there are at least 2,500 other citizens that own homes and pay taxes, but reside in the city less than six months of the year.

He also cited the rapid growth of the community by revealing 248 building permits were issued in the last six month period.

Rebuttal submitted on rate hike to PSC

BY ALICE HICKEY

PORT ST. LUCIE--Citing "test year" inadequacies, four civic associations have objected to the proposed rate hike of General Development Utilities in an eighteen-page rebuttal to the Public Service Commission.

The action was taken by the presidents of the Port St. Lucie River Park Homeowners, the Port St. Lucie Homeowners Association, the Country Club Homeowners and the Port St. Lucie Civic League.

The rebuttal follows three months of research by the group, which met twice a week looking into the rate hike application to the PSC. Included in their research was meetings with GDU finance director Jerry Mozian.

The opposition of the associations is not based upon the need for a water and sewage rate hike, but just how much of an increase is justified.

In a cover letter, the presidents questioned the "test year basis" of the application, saying it "does not fully represent current conditions and income."

"It is also our contention that even in the so-called 'test year basis' there are many areas which appear to be incorrectly stated," the letter continues.

The document seeks more information on the various sections covered in the application of GDU, and asks that the PSC deny the application "as a bonified request for a rate increase for Sewer and Water facilities."

Sanitation franchises near finalization

PORT ST. LUCIE--According to a lengthy report by Councilman Bill McChesney during the workshop session Tuesday, the city of Port St. Lucie will soon control all garbage and trash pickups throughout this south county community by means of district franchising.

For several months McChesney has been negotiating with the three major firms servicing the city in an effort to keep the operational costs to a minimum and at the same time provide uniform services throughout the community.

Although there are a few fine points to be ironed out, tentatively the franchise period will be three years, haulers will provide services to specific areas of the city, and rates will be uniform throughout.

Once the plan is finalized, a franchise holder will not be permitted to raise rates without the approval of the city council. Under the tentative rate schedule, residents will pay $4 per month for two twenty gallon cans picked up at curbside or within ten feet of the house pickup and $2 per month for back of the house pickup. Pickup days are expected to remain the same.

The commercial accounts will be open to the franchise haulers on a bid basis.

In addition, under the plan as outlined by McChesney, haulers will now be responsible for maintaining their own districts including the swales in the area.

McChesney emphasized the homeowners cooperation will be needed if the city is to be kept clean. He urged residents to bundle their clippings for easy removal.

Only one resident attending the morning session opposed the city's regulating the garbage and trash haulers.

The primary purpose of the franchise operations, according to McChesney, is to reduce the operational expenses of the haulers and to have a cleaner city.

The only way I see to obtain these goals is for the city to take control of it," McChesney said.

While one of the major areas of complaints stem from rental properties, it is expected the Council will propose some means for making pickup services mandatory for every residential property within the city.

Swim registration opens

PORT ST. LUCIE--Swimming class registrations are now open at the Northport Marina for the second and third sessions.

Session III runs from July 6 through July 23. These classes are for age 8 through 12.

Wells wins player of week

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH—It has not been a very good year for Kermit's Stag Shop. In fact, they have had little to root for at all, with Ricky Bright's over-the-fence home run being the highlight of the year.

But you can add another highlight to the scrapbook for last week. Leroi Wells made the huge center field at "The Cow Pasture" look ten times smaller than it is making three sensational plays and earning the Jensen Mirror "Player of the Week" award.

Wells follows Mark Desfonds and Billy Rinaldi, winners of the last two awards and becomes the first Colt Leaguer to capture the honors for 1976. Others who enjoyed a fine week were Malcolm Delaney, Ricky Bright and Donnie Wilkie.

Wells had his moments Wednesday against Port Salerno. In the second inning he ran far to his left to get to Billy Washington's fly ball, and made a perfect throw to the plate in an attempt to prevent a Port Salerno score. However, despite his throw, the run scored, and Crane's led 2-0.

In the fifth inning Port Salerno had another rally going, but Wells put a quick stop to it as he ranged almost to the fence in back to another long fly ball, this time hit by Scott Ball.

The other three players are all Colt Leaguers, has making it a clean sweep for Kermit's. Delaney went two-for-four against Port Salerno including a double in the fourth which started Kermit's comeback.

Bright, as mentioned before, smashed a home run over the center field fence against Stuart's Donnie St. Onge in a game played last Monday. Wilkie, meanwhile, smacked two hits against Port Salerno, picking up two runs batted in and getting Kermit's back into the game.

With all this it is hard to imagine how Kermit's lost to Stuart, 10-1, and to Port Salerno 7-4. Kermit's made costly errors in the early innings of both games but in the Salerno game they fought back. In fact if Donnie Wilkie's fly ball had gotten through the outfield Kermit's would have had the tying run on second and third. Instead Tommy Lockridge made a shoestring catch and the game was practically over.

The "Player of the Week" award is presented each week to a Mustang Bronco Pony or Colt Leaguer who is judged to be the outstanding player for the preceding week. A three week break is taken at mid-season during make-up games and playoffs.

Parking, Palmetto seen an aid to traffic

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–Additional parking to aid local businessmen facing the elimination of parking on Commercial Street through fast moving the extension and improvement of Palmetto Street from Cleveland to the Jensen Beach Causeway and four-laning Commercial to U.S. 1 received by the threat of traffic planners for Jensen Beach Tuesday.

In a two hour breakfast meeting of local businessmen and the Martin County Planning Department at the Holiday Inn debate centered on the downtown area as planner Chris Schenk and Tom Mumford sought input into the master planning effort for the north county area.

A traffic flow map indicated the future installation of traffic lights at the Causeway and Indian River Drive at the Sewall's Point Road-SR 707 intersection, Crosstrails at Palmetto and Commercial Street at U.S. 1 and Commercial at Ibis at SR 723 and the FEC tracks and at Cambert Road.

Schenk said that the planners hope to have the master plan ready for initial presentation to the county commissioners in June — then refine the plan for final passage in July.

He said on the modification stage Schenk said:

"In long range traffic planning, the road near the bay from the causeway looking north, immediately behind the shopping centers, and the possible change of the causeway to enter the mainland at Commerce at Street were looked out as was the short range planning that brought the most benefit.

"The easy get that gave consistent results to the businesses and to the taxpayers, a number that is greatly needed. Another is Dixie Street, according to Schenk. Half the cars are headed to shop on the business or downtown streets."

Arguments there are only 30 parking places downtown with a potential total available might but are used.

Virgil Wilson, local barber shop operator, said that if parking was removed from Commercial Street, customers using the streets might [illegible] one day. He later amended that parking was grounded alongside present buildings.

Tom Clark asked what someone who owns the land is going to do with his land. I can't ask them what I'll do with my land, he said.

He suggested the possibility of four-laning Indian River Drive to Stuart. "We can't quit making a path and believe as a city people could walk.

"We have now the opening of more [illegible] Green River Hive [illegible] hope to [illegible] middle [illegible] part of expansion in helping the [illegible] north [illegible] parking spaces.

Indialucie decision due

SEWALL'S POINT–A decision on Indialucie subdivision traffic is expected at tonight's meeting of the Town of Sewall's Point commission.

The traffic situation has been discussed at previous meetings, and the traffic problem is No. 1 on the agenda of "old business" for the Wednesday, June 8 session at 7:30 p.m.

Indialucie residents are concerned about the amount of traffic using their neighborhood and about the effect of a restaurant being built on North River Road at SR A1A.

Residents discussed the possibility of closing North River Road north of the Benihana of Tokyo Steak House property to prevent restaurant traffic from going through their subdivision.

Town Attorney Tom Thurlow told the commissioners that the municipality has the right to abandon or close any road in its jurisdiction.

Commissioners have indicated they are leaning toward granting the request for closing the road.

Mrs. Augustine met with Indialucie residents. Commissioner Earl Crawford said.

The Indialucie Homeowners Association will report to the commissioners on how they feel about the traffic problem.

The South River Road area is on the agenda for the session, and Harold Larrabee, a member of the department board, has issued a memo on the road.

Larrabee states:

The need for a second north-south road on the Sewall's Point peninsula was recognized 20 years ago. The 1965 hurricane dented the full use of Sewall's Point for days.

Florida type seasonal squalls have flooded the road. The throughway can be placed in jeopardy at any time by fallen trees, broken utility poles and lines etc.

VISITOR–Henry Richards, right, vice president and general manager of Outboard Marine Asia Ltd. in Hong Kong, visited this week in Jensen Beach with Ralph Evinrude, chairman of the board of OMC. Richards toured the local OMC test center in Stuart.

Ring dem boat bells

JENSEN BEACH–Ringing of boat bells is going to be one of the main attractions for the Historical Fourth of July Celebration in Jensen Beach, according to Fred Shaw.

Shaw, chairman of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Patriotics Event Planning Committee, said all boat owners are urged to ring their boat bells at 12 p.m. July 4.

The only guard requires all boats 30 feet or larger to have bells and the owners are urged during the bells at the hour of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Shaw said.

Owners of smaller boats are asked to have bells, car bells or any kind of bells to ring on the Fourth of July.

FRIENDLY PEOPLE–Perhaps the most important thing [illegible] America to Cheri Richards and her two children, Nicole and Dean, is the friendly people. This is the first visit of the Australians to the United States.

You've got it made here...life is so easy

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–As the children played with the ducks and fed the fish in the pond, Mrs. Henry Richards remarked, "You've got it made here. Life is so easy in the United States."

It is the first visit to America for the Richards accompanying Henry on a business and pleasure trip from the far east. Henry Richards is vice president and general manager of Outboard Marine Asia Ltd. with offices and plant in Hong Kong. They were originally from Sydney, Australia.

Asked if she would like to live in the United States, Mrs. Richards said, "If you had asked me five years ago if I would be living with my husband in Hong Kong, I'd have said no. Anything is possible.

Nicole has already said that the thing her mother and father should do is buy a small ranch here so that she could have a pony.

The Richards have visited Wisconsin and Illinois, where OMC plants are located, and were in Jensen Beach to visit the OMC test plant in Stuart, staying at Frances Langford's Out[illegible] suggest. They left today after a two-day stay to visit the OMC test plant in Naples.

They are in the second week of their tour and the highlight to Mrs. Richards was the visit to Disney World and seeing "Small World," the Caribbean Cruise and Peter Pan. They also visited Cypress Gardens.

The people are so very friendly here. I had a friend show me around. The shopping centers are so large and the large department stores fill them. There do not seem to be the number of small shops that I thought there would be as there are in Sydney.

But, she added, I wouldn't want to buy here. Living in Hong Kong the way we do. However, I would shop for things like Corning Ware, or electrical appliances.

"And, the auto banks just driving in and doing your banking that is exciting.

The country side is so beautiful. And the lakes, you have such large lakes. The children swore that Lake Michigan should be salt water, but it was fresh.

And the roads. You have such good [illegible] and it is easy to find your way [illegible] you are in a peculiar sitting on the right side of the auto seat and not having a steering wheel in front of you.

The children visited in Vero Be[illegible] during an overnight stop on the way down from Orlando, and enjoyed it.

They haven't surfed since they were in Sydney, Mrs. Richards said.

It took the family a full week to get used to the time change.

The children kept waking at three in the morning and wanting breakfast."

The petite blond feels happy that she has a home in Hong Kong, where "there are only 3,000 homes in our area. We have a garden, and the British schools are very good. But, we do get claustrophobia, and travel to nearby islands to get away."

Would she move to the United States?

She smiled, looking toward her husband talking with host Ralph Evinrude, chairman of the board of OMC.

"Yes, I could," she said hesitantly, "if it is in the cards. Who knows what can happen."

...e years ago, many Indians felt education was a priority and the feel the same today, Tommie said.

According to Tommie, there have been some advances in the area of Indians educational needs. He said a recent $300,000 grant from the federal government will help to set up individualized training programs for Florida Indians.

Tommie noted that the Indians have learned to adapt to American way of life but the children who attend public schools have lost contact with the language and culture of their forefathers.

...My kids don't speak Indian at all, which is kind of disturbing," Tommie said.

Tommie said the tribes are not primitive as they use to be before the Corps of Engineers did a job on us and took away the water.

Tommie expressed optimism that through the Governor's Council on Indian Affairs, Indians will find ways to adapt to changes and to improve health care.

Rainbow Wheel installs officers

JENSEN BEACH–Mrs. Alice Ingalls was installed as 1976-77 president of the Rainbow Wheel Club in installation ceremonies conducted by Jeanette Watkins, club representative, on Tuesday, May 25.

Edith Langis is the first vice president, Andrea Wagner, second vice president, ... Fouts, recording secretary, Hoda ... corresponding secretary, and Nancy Mitchell, treasurer.

Chairmen installed were: Vera Wilson, historian; Edith Fox, ... and Marie Kingsley, telephone chairman, and Marion Ferris, publicity chairman.

The ceremonial theme was "Women of the Bible."

New auto decal system starting

JENSEN BEACH–The new birthdate renewal system for auto license decals will begin phasing in this year, but the renewal period this year will be the same, July 1 to August 20, Martin County Tax Collector Alvin Andrews said Monday.

"We still have to sell 45,000 decals in a 50-day period," Andrews said.

He added, however, "During the renewal period we will be selling decals to people four months to 15 months, depending on the birthdate of the registration of the vehicle owner."

Here's an example of how the new system will be phased in.

The driver of a "class 1" auto, a compact weighing less than 2,500 pounds, and whose birth month is June would pay $13.36 and get a decal good for 11 months, from August through June 1977, when he would have to renew.

But if the same driver's birth month were November, he would pay only $6.07, and would receive a decal good only until this November when he would renew and get a decal good for an entire year.

Andrews pointed out that the price of the decal depends on birth month, class or size of car, and that his staff would have some 240 prices to work with until the system is completely phased in.

Andrews' staff is now working on pre-written registration forms which will be mailed out to motorists.

"The 1976 decals expire June 30," Andrews said. "The long lines at the license office won't be necessary if people take advantage of the mail service."

The new law, providing the birthdate renewal similar to the present driver's license procedures, was passed by the Legislature in May 1975.

AUTO DECAL–Martin County Tax Collector Alvin Andrews holds a 1977 auto license decal and pre-written registration forms which his staff is in the process of preparing.

arker elementary students show
tistic flair, create grand opening sign

EN BEACH–Sixteen young from Parker Elementary School their time and talent to Chase Savings and Loan by creating a seven-panelled October Grand Sign for the Association's East Mall office windows sign which describes the busi- savings and loan's size and announces the October Grand Opening, was installed by the students on Wednesday of this week. Helping out were Chase Federal's Tom Holmes and Henry Prior, Stuart Office Manager and Regional Vice President, respectively, Tom Crook, Principal of Parker Elementary and Maria Rosado, school art teacher.

For Parker's generosity, Chase Federal is donating a piece of equipment to the school and presenting each participating student a $10 passbook savings account on Grand Opening Day.

Parker Elementary School's participating young artists were Elizabeth Bradow, Cindy Chancey, Harry Clare, Thelma Clark, Lisa Flowers, Foston Gilbert, Robert Holloway, Lisa Hunsander, Lincoln Jolly, Michael Lindberg, Kathy McLeod, Denise Mitchell, Luis Ramirez, Jeff Rice, Gina Sylvester and Carmen Washington.

The new Indian East Mall location, the Association's seventeenth regional location, will house 2,300 square feet of space and a six person staff. Renovation plans are currently underway, reports Holmes.

Chase Federal is the sixth largest savings and loan association in Florida with assets in excess of $750 million and seventeen regional offices serving Dade, Broward and Palm Beach Counties. Chase will be the first Dade-Broward-based institution to enter Martin County, Holmes says. Because it is a full branch facility, it will offer Martin County citizens a full range of savings and loan services.

STUDENT ARTISTS–Some of the students who participated on the grand-opening sign art work for Chase Federal Savings and Loan are pictured with Tom Holmes, office manager and Maria Rosado guidance counselor at Parker Elementary School.

...EN BEACH–Martin County ...ment offices moved into the $1.1 ... Executive Plaza building not ...the Administrative Center last ...

The three-story building across the street from the Stuart Post office is now home for the county administrator and his staff, county commissioners and the legal department.

The first County Commission meeting in the building is scheduled for June 15.

Planning and zoning, engineering, building and mortality departments are expected to move in the building by June 21.

The administrative suite consists of a reception room, a stenographic office, an office for Administrator Jack Noble, a room for administrative aide Roger Nichols, a storeroom, restrooms, the commission meeting room and conference room.

Decorations, including carpet and drapes, are in various shades of brown, with a touch of light green in the carpet in the administrative offices.

In the commission meeting room and conference room, the carpet is blue.

Old church pews will be used in the meeting room for the June 15 session, but upholstered chairs should be delivered soon.

The meeting room's 12 microphones will automatically compensate for differences in the speakers' voice levels with no adjustment necessary.

The legal department, moved into a five-room suite on the second floor which will provide space for two attorneys, a law library, conference room and file room.

Space on the courthouse freed by movement of the administrative and legal offices will be used by the public defender, assistant state attorneys and the courts.

IRCC swim team is best

JENSEN BEACH--Indian River Community College was well represented in the field of swimming during the 1976 season, as both the men and women swim teams were possibly the best ever at Indian River. Both teams took meet after meet and placed several players in the All-American category. While doing that, they also set many new Junior College records in various events, and at times even set some new records in the major college category.

The men's team placed nine swimmers on the All American list with Reid Lewis being named Junior College Swimmer of the Year. Randy Kimball, David Lee, Pete Lee, Jim Zinner, Ed Berry, Dave Carruthers, Eric Gobbie, and Tom Epling were the top vote getters for All American, and rightly so because all of them contributed heavily to the success of the team as a whole. Even Dick Wells got into the act as he was named Co-Coach of the Year.

Just a few meets in which they performed well were: Second in the Southern Intercollegiate Invitational held in Athens, Georgia; First in the National Junior College Athletic Association Meet, and a host of firsts in many of regular season meets.

The women were not to be outdone. They placed Second in the Southern Intercollegiate Invitational, Seventh in the AIAW meet in Fort Lauderdale against major college competition, and First in the National Junior College Athletic Association Meet. This was a sweet win primarily because it was the first time women's junior college swimming had ever had an acclaimed champion.

All in all, this year at IRCC was a big splash, and the Pioneers will be hard pushed to better it next season.

IRCC tennis team has outstanding year

JENSEN BEACH--Tennis is one of the most popular sports today and has recently come into its own as a major sport. At Indian River Community College tennis is also beginning to come into its own, especially at the women's level. This year has been the most successful to date for the women's team and Coach Dell Grove will be the first to tell you this.

The tennis team started what looked like an ordinary season by entering a four team tournament in Boca Raton. However, the result was out of the ordinary. IRCC placed first and came home with a beautiful trophy to prove it. This began to arouse everyone's interest and rightly so. The Pioneers reeled off win after win in the division and ended up division champions. The team then placed second in the State Junior College Tournament held in Tampa and won the AIAW National Tournament played in Miami.

Finally, the last tournament found the Pioneers in fourth place in a field of twenty at the National Junior College Athletic Association tournament held in Midland, Texas. There were two declared All Americans on the squad.

Debbie Pescitelli and Kathy Virbe.

Coach Grove and the team members have a lot to be proud of and they are looking forward to another banner season with most of the letterman returning in the Fall.

The property, located at Port St. Lucie Boulevard and Airoso Boulevard, adjoins the proposed city hall site.

Last month the Council agreed to accept the offer of Louis Fischer, president and chief executive officer of Lido, to sell 14 acres in order at the intersection for $5,500 per acre.

By agreeing to the purchase the city was given as a bonus 20.85 acres of land at Florist Drive and Thornhill Drive.

Stray dogs still give council fits

PORT ST. LUCIE–While the canine and feline residents of Port St. Lucie have for the past several months given Councilmembers a fair share of problems a solution still hangs in the offing.

While the city has tentatively agreed to up their allocations to the Humane Society of St. Lucie County to the tune of $8,500 per year to provide the necessary services, the Council tabled the matter when a variation from the original verbal agreement was noticed.

While the Council was of the opinion the Society would be agreeable to provide a special patrol in the area from time to time for the purpose of picking up strays, the written verification implied the Society would not offer patrol for leash law enforcement at this time.

It is expected Mrs. Kathryn Mellanuel president of the humane society, will be present at Tuesday's workshop session to clarify any misunderstanding as to what the city will get in return for the $8,500.

It has also been suggested by Councilman Bill McChesney that the ordinance on the issue be the subject help recoup some of the city's expenditure.

In other action the city reluctantly approved a zoning variance requested by GDC to provide for a ten inch encroachment violation on a 25 setback. At the same time Ralph LaChance, who heads the city's building department was instructed to inspect all future construction to make certain there are no more violations.

The property located at Port St. Lucie Boulevard and Airoso Boulevard adjoins the proposed city hall site.

Last month the Council agreed to accept the offer of Louis Fischer president and chief executive officer of GDC to sell 18 acres of land at the intersection for $3,500 per acre.

By agreeing to the purchase the city has also granted a bonus 20-40 acres of land at Florida Drive and Thornhill Drive.

Fischer quoted the city a price of $10,000 per acre for the property. That offer was refused however and negotiations continued until the city accepted the $3,500 per acre price.

Academy summer program set

Howey-in-the-Hills (Honey Academy) a flexible summer program in academics and recreation camp starts June 13 with a nation-wide enrollment.

The first wave of summer enrollment will be supplemented many times throughout the 7 week program by students applying and enrolling for summer terms of 2 weeks or more.

Summer academic subjects on elementary through high school levels and recreation camp are offered separately or in combination for boys and girls in grades 4-12 at co-educational college preparatory classes in central Florida.

Students enrolling for academic credit in math, English, social studies, sciences, and arts and crafts may enroll for 4 weeks and obtain one-half credit, or for 7 weeks to obtain a full credit.

Those enrolling for just recreation to audit a subject or to brush-up on the important reading and study skills, may enter at any time during the 7-week program for a minimum of 2 weeks.

The summer recreation program is available to all students, boarding and day at no extra charge and includes horseback riding, water skiing, all sports, arts and crafts, and excursions to popular attractions in central Florida.

Complete information can be obtained by calling, writing or visiting Howey Academy in Howey-in-the-Hills, Florida, just north of Orlando near Florida turnpike exit 7.

Commissioners get North County plan

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County Planning Director Kris Schenk made his initial North County Comprehensive Plan report to the County Commission Tuesday.

He'll be back in July.

Before the July 13 commission meeting, Schenk plans to meet again with Jensen Beach merchants.

Noting that some eight to ten public hearings on the plan have been held, Schenk said that regardless of the number of hearings more suggestions are made.

Tuesday was no exception.

Some zoning proposals were questioned and suggestions of parallel roads on Jensen Beach Cutoff Road (SR 707A) and U.S. 1 were made.

We still consider the plan flexible, Schenk said.

Schenk repeated that the traffic flow was of main concern, and Commissioner Tom Higgins noted the need for saving downtown Jensen Beach, and suggested planned unit development (PUD) along the cutoff road.

But Commission Chairman John Kvetkas noted that it wasn't the county's responsibility to save downtown Jensen Beach, but it was the responsibility of the merchants and business owners.

Schenk discussed all the road plans that had been presented at public meetings, noting the cost figures of the overpass and four laning of Commercial Street.

The Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce has gone on record opposing four laning of Commercial Street. A letter to the commission stated, in part:

We see no need to spend the taxpayers money to four lane Commercial Street when all it will do is make it easier to get to Indian River Drive and the intersection and there be faced with the same traffic flow problem which we now have.

Four laning Commercial Street will eliminate the parking for downtown merchants and, in our opinion, would wipe out their businesses. Even if alternate spaces would be provided, they would not serve as well as the present ones.

Now we also realize that alternate proposals may come before your body, such as another route for traffic coming east on Commercial Street to get to the causeway and visa versa. Should this be done and the four laning of Commercial become necessary to the overall traffic flow then we would withdraw our objections provided that alternate parking spaces would be provided for the downtown merchants.

First turtle watch will be Saturday

JENSEN BEACH--The annual organized turtle watches are planned for June 19 and June 26 at the Jensen Beach public beaches.

The watches are to begin at 10 p.m. with activity centered around the pavilion, according to Bud Breese, chairman.

Sponsored by the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce the turtle watches give residents and visitors an opportunity to see the unique process of giant loggerhead turtles laying up to 150 eggs in nests along the beach.

A public address system will announce the location of any turtle that has crawled up on the beach, and the sheriff's department deputies will direct the people to the location.

Persons taking part in the turtle watches should be reminded that until the turtles begin laying their eggs, no flashlights should be turned on as the light will frighten the turtles back into the ocean. Once the turtles begin laying eggs it is safe to turn on lights.

The Chamber of Commerce committee is being assisted by the Florida Marine Patrol in locating laying turtles. All persons are asked to refrain from walking along the beach on their own once they find one.

Animal Rescue brings pets to the people

JENSEN BEACH--The warm afternoon sun was shaded by the overhang of Wilt Hose, but the puppies still fell the heat and lay quietly in their metal cage awaiting for a family.

Tammy Bessemer sat on the folding chair behind the table. the silkhound puppies on her left, and four kittens in a cage on her right, and a United Nations puppy on a leash at her feet. Between the two cages was information and applications for those interested in adopting a puppy or a kitten.

"I'm going to do this for a few weeks. We already have several persons interested in the silkhounds, and I think one family is coming back for the puppy now."

I figure that Monday will be the best day to set up the table, said the Animal Rescue League employee. "I'll be here from noon to four p.m."

The silkhounds were female and spayed, as is required by the ARL. A service charge of $20 is paid by the person desiring the puppy or cat to pay for the spaying and medical treatment.

The kittens were males. They had a $5 charge for the shots to keep them healthy.

If the pilot works, it might be expanded to other shopping centers, bringing pets to the people rather than making families come to the league building on U.S. 1 south of Stuart.

They spotted a fallen bird on the beach, notified Art, who went up and found a sea gull and entered it in his report. Also, Art found a brown heron caught on a fish hook on the wires beside Jensen bridge. This is a hazard the society hopes to have removed as so many birds are needlessly destroyed getting tangled up in the many lines and hooks.

The course selections are available in the FAU office.

ProTen
the age-old way of tendering beef
Natives in the tropics learned centuries ago how to make beef more tender. They marinated it with small juicy pieces of papaya fruit.
Today, Swift's ProTen beef is pretendered with a derivative of the tropical papaya. Natural tenderizing agents already present in beef are enhanced by pure food protein from the papaya.
ProTen beef is the only beef that comes from grain-fed pretendered cattle. You get consistent tenderness week in and week out. That's why millions of people all over the country have been enjoying ProTen beef for over 15 years.
ProTen makes fine beef even better. You don't have to ask the natives. Just try it yourself.

Received a nice letter from Art and Doris Stevens.

"We, Art and Doris Stevens, are celebrating our 50th wedding anniversary June 11th. We intended to be in the park for the anniversary party but ill health prevented us from going.

"We first went to Ocean Breeze in 1951 and spent the next twenty winters there. We have missed our friends and the park activities. We have three nieces who have spent several winters there, Mrs. Frances Reese, Mrs. Maryanna Blanchard and Mrs. Evelyn Cogswell.

"Art just celebrated his 81st birthday in May. He is feeling very good and keeps busy most of the time.

"Hoping to see all our friends this coming winter."

Our long time friend Mrs. Faye Elmer of Robinson, Ill., and her sister-in-law Hazel Hazel of Owensboro, Ky., surprised us Wednesday at lunchtime. This was the first time Mrs. Hazel had been on the east coast. They left Thursday for Disney World.

Received a note from Earl and Irv Sheely. They left here in sunshiny weather but hit a terrible rain storm in northern Florida. For about 10 minutes they were afraid to stop and afraid to go because they had great difficulty seeing the edge of the pavement even though driving slowly.

"We stopped at a Days End just south of Macon, Georgia that night. Thus we got through Atlanta early before heavy traffic the next morning. The next morning after a night in Cave City, Kentucky, our car had to be defrosted."

"Our brother in northern Indiana is much improved. Finally we arrived at our trailer park. Did our 'old shack' look beautiful!

"Now our summer work has started, mowing grass, spade and plant our garden, then it's can vegetables and fruits."

Venture Out

VENTURE HARBOUR

BY JESSIE SHAVER

It is getting harder and harder to get news. As more and more of our neighbors are leaving for vacations and the ones left are doing nothing of interest even to themselves.

Mollie Capra has returned from San Nuys, California, and it won't be long before their mobile home is ready to move into.

Selma Calato's trailer was moved and the new home of Anna and Charles Bumberger is being moved into that lot. They have sold their home in Long Island and will soon be residents of Venture Harbour.

We hear the Pfahlers who have been in Venture Out for several years in their mobile home will be Venture Harbourites when they return in the fall, moving into the former Ron Ellis home.

Lou and Linda Bonar are still here working very hard on their yard and building a Florida room on the south side of their home. They are expecting their granddaughters to visit them for a few weeks.

Hazel and Walter Harkness have left for Brevard, N.C., for the square dancing jamboree. After that they will tour the northwest, Dakota, Minn., etc. before returning VH in October.

News from Ras and Dee Smyth is that they are enjoying Virginia even though it has been very, very cool.

Fran and Dick Teter are going to Port Charlotte to visit friends and while there will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Congratulations to them on June 15th and also to Ron and Ellie Ellison June 17th.

Happy birthday to Jean VanWilligan on June 17th.

BY WILLARD AUCH

We are not bringing you very good news this week.

We are sorry to report that Richard Evans of Venture Out at St. Lucie and Deerfield Illinois passed away Sunday at Martin Memorial Hospital. Mr. Evans had not felt well for a short time. We will all remember him as a fine gentleman and a friend to all.

Also we were just informed that Jan DeBaker's father passed away a few weeks ago with services in Indiana. Jan's mother, who has not been too well, made the trip to Indiana with Jan and Bob. Shortly after their return Jan's mother also passed away. Both Mr. and Mrs. John Sutter were living in Delray Beach. Our kindest feelings and understanding go to Jan and Bob.

We talked with Bill, Erwin and Mate Greuling up at their northern Michigan home. They are both fine. Bill getting his garden in so that Mafe can spend an enjoyable summer preparing lots of goodies to feast on this winter.

For the benefit of all who are away we are not suffering from dust storms or water shortage. Every day dark clouds appear about 4:5 p.m. and someone turns on the valve and we have a nice shower. Keeps the grass growing and green.

If this column is to continue a little cooperation will be appreciated from Venture Out.

Lowry ties Bruner's wins

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH—Bruner's Sporting Goods, the Pinto League Champions, concluded their season Saturday with an impressive 37-28 victory over the Optimist Club.

Leslie Choate came alive for Bruner's smacking four home runs. All told he racked up two grand slammers and knocked in 11 runs. He batted only four times.

Aside from Choate's brilliant performance, Mark Roberts played a fine game in the field. In the other game, Lowry Insurance came up with a 27-27 tie with C.F. Shawver as a runner trying to break the tie was thrown out at the plate on the last play of the thriller.

In Mustang League championship action, Man from K.I.R.K. took two straight games from Aycock's Gang on Tuesday and Thursday, thus giving them the Mustang League title.

Coaches in the Mustang League will meet this week to decide on an All-Star team to represent Jensen Beach in the Boys Incorporated tournament later this month.

The fifth inning was the beginning of the end for the Kiwanians as Nick Barker singled then Frank Fitts doubled him in. However, Fitts was thrown out trying to stretch his hit to a triple. Mike Nugent was walked and Ken Suter singled giving the Elks runners at first and third. A carriers of passed balls, wild pitches and errors brought both runners across the plate.

Chris Williams whacked a triple in the sixth and scored on Roger Beckham's single. Beckham later scored on yet another Kiwanis error. The Elks then held Kiwanis in the seventh and claimed the Pony championship thus succeeding Manley Construction as the holder of the title.

A team of all stars will be chosen to the Pony League coaches this week at the Langford Fieldhouse. The All Stars will represent Jensen Beach in the District ... tournament later this month.

Council will support Humane Society

PORT ST. LUCIE—The problems with running dogs and stray animals, of cats breaking into screened porches to get at other cats, and the disposal of up to 200 animals per week by the St. Lucie County Humane Society, brought a sympathetic response from the Port St. Lucie City Council Tuesday.

The Humane Society was virtually assured of $8,500 from the city as Mrs. Katherine McDaniel explained the services that would be provided to the city by the society and listed the problems of the group in handling the many animals in its charge.

Local citizens came under fire from Mayor Schuyler Sharpe, who was critical of those who would complain about animals running loose without giving their names or refusing to sign an affidavit after making the complaint.

"We are trying to enforce the law, but the people are not cooperating," Sharpe said.

City Administrator Elmer Cox said that our only way is to work with the society and pay them a proper amount. $8,500 is reasonable to pay.

Councilmen suggested that the Humane Society get on the "911" emergency net of the county and it was also suggested that the society get a base station and CB sets in the society trucks for fast reaction to complaints to which one was said. Their call letters could be "Running Dog."

City police budget suggests $195,167

PORT ST. LUCIE—A tentative 1976-77 budget of $195,167 was submitted to the Port St. Lucie City Council this week by Sheriff Lamar Norvell.

While there was no comment at the Tuesday workshop meeting, the council is expected to research the budget for the coming year.

A force of nine officers and four vehicles is expected to be approved after negotiations on costs.

Suspected auxiliary police force of ten men is being discussed to help the police department on patrol and in other areas. Uniforms will cost $1,00, and schooling for the group is expected to cost $500.

The auxiliary was discussed at the meeting and Mayor Schuyler Sharpe spoke concerned the names of the auxiliary members until they had completed training. It was reported that some of the auxiliary members were objecting to a $500 charge for the personnel being assessed by their doctors.

The auxiliary officers would have the power to direct traffic but not arrest suspects and would work under the supervision of deputies in the absence of police officers.

The Port St. Lucie-River Park Port St. Lucie and the Community Club Homeowners Associations and the Port St. Lucie Civic League have held together and formally protested the increase by submitting a rebuttal to the Public Service Commission.

The rebuttal states GDU's application is one the grounds that current conditions and practices are not adequately set forth and that the increases requested will impose an excessively unjustified financial burden on the Port St. Lucie residents.

Seelinger to seek re-election

PORT ST. LUCIE—St. Lucie County School Superintendent Jack Seelinger announced that he will seek a second four-year term.

Seelinger, as a career educator, first will have to seek the Democratic nomination. And one other Democrat, teacher Stanley Sherrouse, has already announced his intention to seek the post.

Seelinger said the school system has accomplished a lot during the past three and a half years despite inflation and a reduced amount of state funding for schools.

"One of his most significant achievements is improved racial relations among the students," he said.

"Where strife and turmoil were once prevalent at all grade levels, now, with few exceptions, students have learned to work together and understand each other's cultural and ethnic backgrounds," he said.

"This is the result of vigorous efforts in getting the community and schools to work together," the superintendent said.

Seelinger pointed out that during his administration he has reduced the administrative staff by five directors, five assistant elementary school principals and an assistant superintendent—the position he held before being elected superintendent.

He said this reduction in staff has saved the school system about $230,000 per year.

Seelinger also noted that in accordance with the continually updated five-year facilities' plan to take care of the expanding student population, a new innovative new elementary school has been built at Port St. Lucie.

During his announcement at a press conference, Seelinger noted that he was unhappy with the school funding levels adopted by the legislature, but "there's nothing to the law but make the best of it.

"There is no use to cry over spilt milk," he said.

"I don't know about increased millage, but at least all we're going to get from the state is $150,000 to $300,000 more than we got last year."

PAID IN FULL—The Port St. Lucie-River Park Homeowners Association made the final $500 payment on a $1,500 pledge to the community center building fund. Ross Matlack, treasurer, presented the check to Streisa Schreiber, community center secretary, as Dan White and Mary Rosenberger looked on.

Scare the hell out of criminals

PORT ST. LUCIE—The failure of the city to be "innovative" in its application for funds to the Law Enforcement Assistance group last week led to an allocation of only $4,360 in grant aid to pay for part of a patrol car, according to Elmer Cox, city administrator, in a report to the city council Tuesday.

"They said we weren't innovative in our application. I don't understand the purposes of LEAA. How can you be innovative on a budget of less than $10,000?" he said angrily.

The city had applied for $9,500 in law enforcement assistance funds to get a patrol car and walkie-talkies.

"Perhaps we should use the funds to buy Halloween masks for our police auxiliary and they can scare hell out of the perpetrators of crime," Cox said. "That would be innovative."

New planning council is okayed for county

JENSEN BEACH–After a year of wrangling, Lt. Gov. Jim Williams last week approved creation of a new regional planning district – Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach Counties.

The victory, area officials said, will allow them to better determine our own ... and destiny.

The northern counties of the South Florida Regional Planning Council join with Indian River County to form a new ... beginning October 1.

Only Dade, Broward and Monroe will be left in the South Florida Council.

Despite fears that the South Florida ... might set an undesirable ... president ... Williams said, the South Florida Council should be split because its northern members have more in common.

Martin and St. Lucie Counties have never gained members to the council, and have steadfastly refused to pay dues since the state formed the regional districts about five years ago.

Palm Beach County pulled out of the council about a year and a half ago in protest over high densities being approved in the south.

Martin and St. Lucie County officials were happy over the long-awaited decision.

Willie McLain, St. Lucie County commissioner, said he is pleased because the counties that make up the new district are more compatible. The new council will be of better service to the public.

It's what the commissioners have asked for. We think a planning council closer to home would be more responsive to our local needs," Jack Noble, Martin County administrator, said.

This commission consistently has asked the state to make the government agencies and boards it says we've got to have closer to home with more local representation," Martin County Commissioner Maggie Hurchalla said.

"I still can do to keep from jumping up and down in my chair. It think it's ... savings," Palm Beach County Commissioner E.W. "Bud" Weaver said when told of the decision.

Last June representatives of northern counties of the councils took their request to secede from the South Florida District to Williams.

And the request of the four counties slowly moved through the maze of officialdom in Tallahassee before Williams made his decision last week.

Williams said, "Asking them to participate with the South Florida Regional Planning Council would place a regional burden for planning in a large and populous area of the state.

Meanwhile, the state ... planned ... to delay approval of a $46 ... bond issue to provide funds for the environmentally endangered lands will not delay plans to purchase and preserve the Savannas or other ecologically threatened areas in the state, a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) official said last week.

Nev Landrum, the director of Parks and Recreation Division, said, "I don't see this as a deterrent or serious delay on the purchase of the Savannas.

"It's a nuisance more than anything else, and I'm quite confident it will be ... Landrum said.

Landrum criticized the governor in the legislature's budget-affecting the $46 million bond issue when the Cabinet agreed with conservationists. The governor requires the DNR to use ninety ... $46 million from the bond issue to pay the debt on lands floated earlier under the FCD environmentally Endangered Lands Act.

Lee Constantinides voiced concerns ... the governor would jeopardize purchase negotiations with property owners in the Savannas.

Martin County Alliance approved a resolution encouraging Attorney General Robert Shevin to expedite plans to challenge the budget provision in the courts.

Shevin officials the alliance not to issue new bonds for endangered lands until the budget provisions has been removed.

Landrum said the delay in a bond issue would not affect the purchase of any of the 10 projects, including the Savannas.

nd Report support alcoholism shown

...S BEACH–Support for the ...rstal Rand Report which ...d that alcoholics could possibly ...hout returning to alcoholism ...was indicated Monday by Bill Cantlebury in a speech to the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club. Cantlebury is a mental health professional with the state rehabilitation office in Fort Pierce.

Talking on alcohol abuse, Cantlebury indicated that alcohol is a drug and abuse of the drug leads to the "habit" that is called alcoholism.

But Cantlebury refused to call it alcoholism stating instead that it was the personality defect of the user that led to improper use of the drug.

As for the Rand Report, Cantlebury said that the concern over the report was emotional and not analytical.

It is the man or woman who is drinking not the drink that is the problem, he said.

Cantlebury pointed out that there are 10 million drinkers in the United States and only ten percent have a drinking problem.

Keep it in perspective. Ninety percent of the drinkers are drinking responsibly, he said.

After charting the development of drinking, Cantlebury said that people drink because it makes them feel good. It affects the central system first, the decision making part of the brain. Then, it affects the motor powers, speech and walking. Thirdly, it affects the vital signs, the heart and breathing.

He said the drug solves problems of the drinker on a short term basis, but emphasized that the drinker who drinks responsibly won't have a problem.

Celebration progress

With less than $1,000 needed to put the fireworks fund for Independence Day over the top, plans are progressing toward what seems to be becoming a fantastic celebration of our Nation's birthday in Jensen Beach

We hope that all who love the annual fireworks displays will give some money, a dollar, or five, or ten dollars, to put the fund in the black

Parade plans indicate that this will be a great parade, with more floats and music than ever before

The events planned for the Jensen Causeway throughout the day should make this a memorable event

And, in Port St Lucie, a parade is planned for July 3, so as not to conflict with the Jensen Parade It should be a great parade, as Port St Lucie has been having them for years and has the experience needed to put on a good show

We are looking forward to this Independence Day celebration

If you can't get five...

It is obvious that the way to get federal and state funds is to apply for much, much more than you need so that you can get what you want

This was evidenced recently in the grants of $4,360 in law enforcement assistance funds (they asked for $9,500), and $4,500 in recreation funds (they asked for $15,500) to the City of Port St Lucie, and an advertising grant to the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce (they asked for $1,250)

Of course, available funds could not meet the total of requests by cities and towns, so the agencies just pro-rationed the monies to all the applicants

It is all a part of the game Stories of governmental agencies spending wildly to use up their budgeted funds at the end of a fiscal year so that they are not cut back that amount in the new year are legend

Somehow, it just doesn't seem right

Perhaps the answer would be to allow the people themselves to fund the projects through local taxes, rather than paying the taxes to the federal and state governments so that they could pass the money back down to the local governments

No, that wouldn't work either The state and federal agencies wouldn't want their budgets cut by that amount, they wouldn't get the same amount the next year

Our first master degree

When David Adams and Richard Zurich walked up to the stage to receive their master of business administration degrees, Florida Institute of Technology took another step forward in becoming a center of learning in Jensen Beach

The two men received the first masters degrees ever issued by the young school in our community

It was a great moment

Dr Jerome P Keuper, president of FIT, smiled broadly, for his dream of building a proud citadel of learning on the Jensen Beach campus of FIT has taken another move forward And Tim Tealey, dean of the local campus, smiled proudly for he had reached another milestone on his way to helping Keuper reach his goals

Twenty-seven candidates received their bachelor degrees in technology, the second class of four-year degrees to graduate

Most of the graduates have jobs waiting for them as they move into the mainstream of life, for FIT produces people to meet the needs of business and industry

We are proud of our local college, and share each milestone of education progress

Sorry, Skip

Many readers have commented on the excellent column on activities in Washington D.C by our Congressman, Skip Bafalis. The columns have appeared regularly in The Mirror for the past eighteen months

In the interest of fairness to all candidates for the congressional seat, The Mirror must discontinue the column

However, in what appears to be becoming a strong election challenge in this district, we feel it only fair to all candidates, including Bafalis, that The Mirror's editorial page reflect impartial opinion on local, state and national politics.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor

Since The Mirror is mailed to the house, we receive it one day later and many times miss out on important meetings etc because it happened the day before or that day

Would it be possible to print meetings the week previously so we may take advantage of The Mirror more fully?

Sincerely
Mrs Betty Jane Wegler

Ed's note: The Mirror is anxious to get timely notices of all happenings to the community but can only print them when they are received Hopefully, Mrs Wegler's letter will emphasize the need for organizations to get such items to The Mirror earlier than has often been the case

FISHING TRIP--Schools closed last week for the summer, and Sharon Evans, 12, and brother Brian, 11, of Park Road, rode their bikes with fishing gear and picnic basket to Jensen Beach Causeway for an afternoon of fishing The Stuart Middle School students, like many other school students, will be riding their bikes along the roads and motorists are urged to watch out for these bike riders

Summer decisions

Have you ever noticed the compelling urge by the people in this community and county who are in a position to make possibly unpopular decisions to do it during the summer?

If the issue is going to cause some controversy, feedback, or just downright anger on the part of residents, it's done during the summer while a whole bunch of folks have gone north or are thinking about going on vacation

They are not avoiding the Sunshine Law breaking no legal or moral laws It's just kinda sneaky

They must figure that if you take the action -- a quick, subtle stab at the people's pocketbook -- that the action can be explained in the fall

It really didn't hurt at all -- the returning residents can be told

Take the summer of '74 when there was a move to incorporate Jensen Beach

For all us working stiffs, or folks that haven't saved enough money to go north, we were told about how much state and federal money we could get if we incorporated And if we didn't incorporate there was big bad City of Stuart lurking in the vacant land just waiting to take us in

And, if the City of Stuart didn't get us the City of Port St Lucie would come out of the north and we would be engulfed

Never mind the couple of mills we would have to cough up to get all that money from the state and federal governments

The vote was in July, and somehow a majority rejected all that money and threat of Stuart and Port St Lucie.

Now, move ahead to last summer

There was the move afoot by County Commission to spend more than a million dollars to purchase Executive Plaza It was called a fine by Commission Chairman John Kyle

A public hearing on the purchase was to be held -- of course in the summer There wasn't enough folks around to make much of a public hearing

But when enough folks got back home in the county, we had some pretty hot public hearings, and into the court the Plaza purchase went, and there was a Grand Jury investigation

It wasn't the purchase, the Grand Jury reported, but the way it was handled

And the first Commission session held last week in the $1.5 million Plaza

And it was fitting that church pews were used in the commission chambers

A million and a half dollars for new offices is a heck of a lot to pray over

Now here we are in the summer of 1976, and what do we find? A repeat decision when there are not many folks around

This time it was the directors of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce all eight of them

The chamber put out its usual innocuous agenda for the June session

There were the usual reports -- traffic, Fourth of July -- watch, chamber banner -- laugh

But nothing about increasing membership dues by $15

The membership dues discussion came at about the time the meeting was coming to a close, and it just slipped into the meeting

I would recommend that the chamber directors not try to explain their action and tell of the need for more money in a letter to folks up north Don't mail it this summer

Wait until they get back this fall when they are rested and can take absorb some kind of news.

Alice in vacationland

I really don't know how many times I yelled "Hickey" during the week and a half that Alice was on vacation I guess I just do it automatically

With The Mirror's Brenda Starr out on the lone, camping in the Smokies with son and daughter, I had to handle most of her chores and found out that it was quite an experience

I think most of her friends are still friends and many of her news sources are still news sources I did have some problems with people she spends time talking with they seemed to think that I had been in on all those conversations and knew the background to much of their news I didn't

But it was good to get back in the saddle and cover a Port St Lucie city council meeting, get up to CESA and see some of the people and especially get out of the office

Thinking back I don't know how many times I've tried to get Hickey on the ball to write a column before Tuesday morning Most of the time in order to keep her happy, she would write a column about me trying to get her to write a column

I figured that I should be able to do it more or less, me writing a column about Alice

I just can't help myself Sometimes I just blurt out things without thinking I'm not irreverent, or whatever but I just can't sit through a city council meeting without saying something

So I apologize Mr Mayor for the comment Mayor Sharpe had said something about being happy and gay and I said (forgive me) With all this stuff ahead Congress going on please don't say gay Mr Mayor

It was worth a chuckle at the press table but then the mayor said in the greatest straight line I've ever heard "What did you say?"

And I'm sorry Mrs McDaniel for my comment that if the Humane Society gets a CB base station its handle should be "Running Dog" I realize that yours is a very serious business

I am quite proud of the city council, though When I walked in and found a copy of everything that was to be discussed at the work session in a folder on the press table (one folder for each reporter) I was stunned

In the old days, we had to fight for copies after the meeting The materials helped us to better understand what was being discussed

The one who really surprised me was Elmer Cox, who got in quite a few zingers of his own with a fine sense of humor Having been a bureaucrat himself, Cox holds no tears for bureaucrats who get in the way of city business, and made his points well

I got out of the meeting, rushed up to South Port to take a picture and pick up some meeting minutes at CESA, and hurried back to the office

There I had to develop two rolls of film, shoot some pictures for the makeup of the paper and write the Port St Lucie News

By 12:45 I had completed the news developed the films and printed the pictures

I went immediately to Hickey's desk and wrote on a note pad "I finished the PSL news at 12:45" Alice usually gets through at 5

By then the films were dry, so I printed more Pictures, put them in the wash, and began making up pages It was 2 p.m

We have a 7 p.m. deadline on getting the pages finished, and with the help of everybody, we made it at 6:45

What a day I sighed We got it done and didn't have too many hitches Everything is beautiful

Arlene, Pat and Phyllis plopped down in a chair, exhausted

Hickey's gonna die when she sees that note," Arlene said

I smiled

Alice Hickey

For deposit only

The fastest moving two weeks of the year are those spent on vacation Seems that before I can get rested up from our last minute preparations for leaving, it is time to return

Each year I find myself wondering if the time, money and effort expended in getting away from it all in time to hurry back home is really worth it

With this thought in mind, let me assure you we made every effort to make this vacation different We made lists of the items to be packed, and the things to be done before we left

My column had been written for the coming week and I had only a few last minute items to be done

My daughter Pat, out of school for the summer, handled most of the preparations while her brother's major contribution seemed to be misleading information

For once we were going to get off without the maddening last minute rush

Spending a bit more time in the office on our departure day than expected, I had less than two hours remaining till which to go to the bank and to pick up a duplicate driver's license

I had lost my wallet a couple weeks prior, but my son who most certainly must hold the record for losing wallets and licenses, assured me that getting a duplicate was no problem

Just stop in, give them your name and $2.50 and they will issue the duplicate immediately," he said.

In my usual hurried state I arrived at the driver's license bureau located several miles south of Stuart

May I help you?" asked the friendly clerk at the FHP office

With money in hand, I requested a duplicate license

"Let me see your identification," she asked in her extremely efficient manner

"My name is Alice Hickey, but I really don't have any identification with me to prove it I said, explaining as briefly as possible that my wallet had been lost

A quick glance at my watch to indicate I was in a hurry did little or nothing to impress her

"You will have to provide an insurance policy, birth certificate or the auto registration before a duplicate license can be issued," she said

There was little doubt that my hurry wasn't her worry

Forty minutes later when I returned with the necessary papers to prove I was me the efficient clerk glanced at the name, turned around the typed it into the computer and instantly the information appeared on the screen for issuing the duplicate license

On my way to the bank to get traveler's checks, racing the clock every inch of the way, my daughter asked if I would mind cashing a couple of checks she had received for her birthday

Somewhat annoyed she had waited until then to ask, I agreed and told her to endorse them

"They've been endorsed," she said handing them to me

"You should never sign your checks until you want to cash them," I cautioned

"I know that, but Mike told me a way to sign the checks so no one else could cash them," she announced

"Mike told you what?" I questioned

He said all I had to do was sign the back and then put 'for deposit only' underneath it," she said, indicating her confidence in her brother's knowledgable advice

"Deposit to what?" I asked, reminding her that she did not have an account

We made it to the bank in the nick of time While I attended to my business, my youngest opened her own checking account

I put our return from vacation we picked up the ten day accumulation of mail which included the verification of the newly acquired checking account

As Pat opened up her first bank statement with the greatest of pride, I couldn't help but notice the puzzled expression that swept over her face

"What is the problem?" I asked

This is the same amount I deposited When do I get my interest?" was her reply place for a dollar a pound. So here goes a ride using up about twelve bucks worth of gas and a one week binge of gumbo and scampi. And we already know that "The Streetcar named Desire" no longer runs and Marlon Brando's tee-shirt has been placed in the Hall of Fame. However, New Orleans it will be as it also means a sentimental journey of sorts as I want to revisit a place I was once stationed during World War II called Houma.

What campaign literature? I'm just communicating with my constituents.

Ah, Houma, the gem of the Gulf Coast where the shrimp boats used to come up the bayous about 3 a.m. blowing every individual whistle of the entire fleet, waking up all hands in the barracks. As if that were not bad enough, the factory whistle would then take off and all the locals would start their trek down to the waterfront to pick shrimp heads. Houma, a quiet little, hot, stinking town, criss-crossed by bayous and draw bridges which used to open every hour of 15 minutes apart!

If you got caught by one opening, you took off in a burst of speed to try to beat the next one. You know what? I never made it.

Oh yes, they kept piling the shrimp heads out in back of the factory until it got about 25 feet high and would then burn it. The smell got caught up in the air conditioning of the one movie house one night and it even drove the natives out! This is where the shrimp and I parted company. So, the dollar a pound shrimp deal doesn't grab me one bit. I'll settle for a two inch steak, which is tantamount to sacrilege in Louisiana.

It was a stroke of genius on the part of some politico who got the Navy to build a lighter than air station so inaccessible that Hitler would have rejected the idea of invading it! All this and heaven too if things hold together through Mobile, Biloxi and Gulfport. Meanwhile, the trailer packing starts next week and we'll be keeping you posted on take off time.

Residents protest utility rate hike

ORT ST LUCIE—Well over 250 local ns attended the public hearing ed Tuesday by the Public ce Commission on General Deve- Utilities (GDU) proposed water wer rate increase application

ng those protesting the increase the Port St Lucie-River Park Port ucie and Country Club Home- Associations, as well as the Port ucie Civic League

Homeowners Associations sub- mitted a formal rebuttal to the GDU application citing current conditions and revenues were not accurately set forth In addition, the group also provided a comparison of water and sewer rates from surrounding municipalities and a detailed capitulation of the rates

Francisco Renta, one of the organizers of a group calling themselves the Port St. Lucie Cooperative was also on hand and spoke at length during the morning hours of the session The Cooperative is making every effort to force GDU into a sale of the firm's facilities

According to Renta, over $1,000 in stocks have been sold to consumers of the utilities One of the first to join the move by investing $100 was Vice-Mayor Frank Rose Reportedly the minimum sale is ten shares of stock for $100 Through the sale of stock, the Cooperative hopes to raise $400,000 to purchase the GDU assets

While the Co-op movement seems to be gaining supporters throughout the city, GDU has advised the Port St. Lucie City Council that they have no intention of selling the facility

In a letter received from Wayne L. Allen, vice president and assistant general counsel for GDU, the city was advised that GDC had no knowledge of the basis of the solicitation by the Port St. Lucie Utilities Cooperative, but firmly stated the GDU Inc water sewer and gas facilities in Port St Lucie are not for sale

While a newspaper article indicated that an attempt was being made to raise $400,000, we have an investment in the local facilities exceeding $10,000,000 and any theoretical sale would certainly have to be at that figure at a minimum although as stated, the utility is not for sale Allen said

Several residents took the floor during the day-long hearing to complain of the quality of water distribution by GDU, the bad taste, discoloration, low pressure and the considerable amount of sediment contained in the water

One resident displayed a tea towel as proof of the existing bad water conditions

Public Service Commission representatives conducting the public hearing will compile the information received and present it to the three Public Service Commissioners A decision is expected sometime in September

Martin and St Lucie County officials were happy over the long awaited decision

Willie McCain, St Lucie County Commissioner said he is pleased because the counties that make up the new district are more compatible The new council will be of better service to the public

"It's what the commissioners have asked for. We think a planning council closer to home would be more responsive to our local needs Jack Noble, Martin County administrator said.

This commission consistently has asked the state to make the government agencies and boards it says we've got to have closer to home with more local representation," Martin County Commissioner Maggy Hurchalla said

Last June representatives of northern counties of the councils took their request to secede from the South Florida district to Williams

Landfill site is needed

PORT ST LUCIE While officials from Genesis Development Corporation Tuesday made it perfectly clear the firm has no intention of entering into the sanitary landfill business they did indicate a willingness to lease a 230 acre site situated in the northwestern section of the city for a period of 15 to 20 years for that purpose

For some time now, Port St Lucie officials have urged both St Lucie County and the City of Fort Pierce to consider the site as a solution to the landfill problem

The central location of the site is ideal for serving the three areas

Over a year ago, Jerry Walker, a representative of Waste Management, Inc. visited and showed interest in managing the site and offered an attractive proposal package

Walker said the 230 acres would be adequate to serve the needs of all St Lucie County and northern Martin County for at least 15 years if correctly managed At the end of that time, the land would revert back to GDC and would have been filled and compacted to be available for future use by the company

While the lack of interest on the part of St Lucie County and the City of Fort Pierce at that time caused a breakdown in negotiations Walker has been invited to attend the July 19 meeting of the PSL Planning and Zoning Board along with GDC's Vice President C C Crump

With the need for a landfill site becoming more and more pressing for St Lucie County and the City of Fort Pierce, Port St Lucie officials are hopeful the possibility of obtaining a centrally located site will arouse interest and negotiations can be resumed for the benefit of all concerned

CITY NETS $1,100 ON SALE OF STOCK

Over the years the city received three dividend checks totalling $102

The second and only bid received on the stocks was $20 per share

The stocks were purchased by the city in 1961 for $2500

Savannas session s scheduled in July

SSEN BEACH-A hearing by the ral and Southern Florida Flood ol District (FCD) next month on proposed East Port St Lucie project ment that will affect water flow in savannas, will be attended by area servationists

Walter Stokes reported to the ce County Conservation Alliance week the FCD scheduled the second ing in Fort Pierce at the request of St Lucie County Conservation ps ervers now and the July 1 FCD ng, a two-county committee may formed to detail local concerns in ection with the project

e FCD some weeks ago issued a ditional recommendation to allow struction of a water management ea to serve the first phase of East St Lucie, proposed by General elopment Corp (GDC)

Stokes said the recommended ditions have the backing of servationists and address "our ern to protect the savannas" wever, he indicated questions may al the FCD hearing that would be eferral to the conservationists

he 3,170-acre East Port St Lucie ject will produce a discharge into the nnas and the North Fork of the St e River GDC a proposed internal nage system consists of two main h south waterways and three large ponds rthermore, the state Cabinet's tion to defer approval of a $40 million bond issue to get the funds for the environmentally endangered lands will not delay plans to purchase and preserve the savannas or other ecologically threatened areas in the state, a Department of Natural Resource DNR official said last week

Nev Landrum, the director of Parks and Recreation Division said "I don't see this as a derailment or serious delay in the purchase of the savannas

"It is a nuisance more than anything else and I'm quite confident it will be resolved," Landrum said

Landrum referred to a provision in the Legislature's budget affecting the $40 million bond issue which the Cabinet agreed was unconstitutional The provision requires the DNR to use more than $5 1 million from the bond issue to pay the debt on bonds floated earlier under the 1972 Environmentally Endangered Lands Act

Local conservationists voiced concern that the provision would jeopardize purchase negotiations with property owners in the savannas

Martin County Alliance approved a resolution encouraging Attorney Gen eral Robert Shevin to expedite plans to challenge the budget provision in the courts

Shevin advised the Cabinet not to issue new bonds for endangered lands until the budget provision has been removed

Landrum said the delay in a bond issue would not affect the purchase of any of the 12 priority parcels, including the savannas

1450 get blood pressure tests

PORT ST LUCIE Over 1,450 free high blood pressure tests have been given to the public on the lobbies of Citizens Federal's three offices, according to an announcement by Mrs Marvalis Mann of the American Red Cross

The tests, which are given each Tuesday, are administered by Red Cross volunteers through a program initiated by Security Chaney, an officer of the savings and loan association

High blood pressure is one of the leading causes of disease in the U S States and because it has no delectable symptoms frequently goes unnoticed by the victims until serious health problems develop If high blood pressure is detected early, drugs are available to control it and permit people to lead completely normal lives

All people, regardless of race or nationality, are susceptible to high blood pressure and should be tested for it at least once a year, according to Mrs Mann The testing is painless and takes less than two minutes to administer

The Red Cross will be giving the free tests every Tuesday at Citizens Federal during normal office hours from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. as long as the public avails themselves of the service, according to Mrs Charles

Saturday Nite bingo becomes Friday afternoon bingo

PORT ST LUCIE Saturday Night Bingo at the Port St Lucie Community Center is changing over to Friday afternoons starting this Friday, June 25, at 1 p.m. It was felt that days on bingo games will be conducted at the Center on Tuesdays and Friday afternoons

The change from Saturdays to Friday has been dictated by repeated requests from individuals and groups for the rental of the Center including the Kellsladi Room, the Lounge and the Snack Bar on Saturday nights If these requests can be met, the Center will benefit from additional operating revenue With the start of Friday afternoon games, the Center becomes available for other kinds of entertainment on Saturday nights

...ser Beach is taking part in the ...'s Bicentennial Celebration, and ...ld a parade, take part in games, ...ads and conclude the day's ...ns with the annual July 4 fabulous ...ks display on the Causeway.

...Bicentennial Celebration starts with the second annual Fourth of July Parade, and parade officials promise that it's going to be a "whopper."

"It's going to be the biggest and best parade Jensen Beach has ever had," Andra Webb said.

"We are going to have more floats, bigger and more beautiful floats and more bands and marching units than we had last year," the Jensen Beach Optimist Auxiliary parade chairman said.

"We want to dedicate the parade to Bill Yurillo," Mrs. Webb said.

Yurillo, the architect of the many July 4 fireworks displays, died last week.

Before his untimely death, he had promised that the 1976 fireworks display would be "the greatest show we have ever put on."

The parade, with the theme "Americana '76" will start at 1:30 p.m.

"Everybody loves a parade," and that was evident last July 4 when thousands lined the parade route.

Thousands are expected again this year on the parade route, Commercial Street to Indian River Drive and north to the Jensen Beach Causeway.

The parade will disband on the east side of the draw bridge.

There will be a wide variety of activities at the Causeway during the afternoon, with all ages participating in potato races, wheelbarrow races, and many more.

At 3 p.m. all boat owners, and everyone with bells, are asked to ring them, commemorating the exact minute that the Liberty Bell announced the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Trophies will be awarded parade entries, sponsored by the Martin County banking institutions and by the Optimist Auxiliary.

There will be prizes for floats, marching units, most patriotic entries, bike and costume entries.

Line-up time for the parade is 12:30 p.m. behind the Jensen Beach Bank on Heron Road.

...Jensen Beach residents are mighty ...ud of the fireworks presented on the ... Causeway. Previously, this second-best in the state celebration had been spearheaded by the late "Boom Boom" Yurillo. Yurillo's expertise in fireworks displays resulted in drawing thousands of visitors from many nearby communities. He was to have headed next Sunday's presentation, but was prevented from doing so by his untimely death.

However, Chamber of Commerce officials stated the plans the late Yurillo had laid for this year's fireworks show will be carried out in full. This assures all who visit the Causeway of viewing another kaleidoscopic extravaganza, come Sunday night.

Jim Dean, chairman of the Lions activities, has been given the responsibility of providing food for the hungry hordes who will stroll by, viewing the flag and bunting-draped floats and other displays on the gaily decorated Causeway.

Both young and old will compete in a Lions sponsored track and field meet, featuring various races for all hands. Tony Rebeiser, chairman of this event, announced his committee has arranged a full scale of events, which includes 50-yard dashes for girls up to 10 years, 50-yard dashes, boys up to 10 years, 100-yard dashes for boys and girls from 11 to 16, potato races for boys and girls in the "up to 10" and from 11 to 16 year brackets, and sack and wheelbarrow races for boys, girls in the same age brackets.

Three special events will top the bill of fare. The first will bring together a group of tiny tops up to about four years of age in a titular tilt that will have all cheering their favorites on to victor. Other special events will feature a Mothers' Race (50 yards) and a finale presenting "Proud Fathers" — 100 yards.

Chairman Rebeiser stated everybody is welcome to participate in the races which will begin at 2 p.m. in front of the flagpole at the Lions Club station. Rebeiser will be assisted by Lions Paul Ness, Ralph Hutson, Cliff Bennett and Sam Johnson. There will be suitable prizes for all winners and runners-up.

The Lions also will maintain a booth where sightless Joe Foley and his seeing eye dog, "Mr. Gunther," will be on hand. Foley will provide information regarding the provision of such animals to the blind at no cost. Other Lions will be in attendance to provide any and all information regarding Lions Club activities, particularly charitable acts which are performed without fuss or fanfare.

Another Lions Club activity will be participation in the parade. With the aid of Lena Club members, Art Riley's "Lions Bus" has been transformed into an attractively decorated float. This will be manned by Lions, while other club members will march the entire route of the hand-studded parade.

Tim Weiss, newly inducted Lions Club president, has invited all to "Come on out and take in the breath-taking program compiled by the local Chamber of Commerce in this bicentennial celebration of the birth of our country."

Meanwhile, Chairman Dean and his crew of 46 food dispensers are prepping to serve red-hot franks and grilled hamburgers to all comers. Dean has made provisions for a large supply of hot dogs, hamburgers, mustard, ketchup, onions, relish, coffee and other goodies to satiate the appetities of the hungriest of those who throng the Causeway from 10 a.m. through to nightfall next Sunday.

Said President Weiss, "Come early, stay late and go home happy!"

At the Jupiter meeting, there was a public clamor to bring I-95 closer to population centers.

The Federal Highway Administration, which dispenses federal construction money, has approved the DOT's proposed Alternate B running west of Florida's Turnpike and then veering back east to connect with SR 707 in St. Lucie County.

EMT training is outlined

Editor's Note: The following article is by George Krauss, publicity chairman of the Jensen Area Samaritans, Inc. The area served by the Samaritans covers Hutchinson Island, including Nettles Island Outdoor Resorts in St. Lucie County; D & M Mobile Homes, north on U.S. 1; Beau Rivage East and North River Shores, all of Jensen Beach-Rio. Ocean Breeze Park and Sewall's Point.

JENSEN BEACH–E.M.T. stands for Emergency Medical Technician. An Emergency Medical Technician is a highly trained professional dealing with the administration of immediate emergency care to victims at the scene of an accident or sudden illness. Emergency Medical Technicians serving on ambulances have the greatest opportunity of any segment of society to alleviate human suffering at the scene of accidental injury or sudden illness and during transportation to the hospital.

An Emergency Medical Technician receives his training by taking an 80 hour course given by Indian River Community College. The course includes lectures and instruction by concerned area doctors and nurses, and requires time, in addition to the basic 80 hours, served in the hospital emergency room and as an active member of an ambulance team.

In order for a person to be able to take the E.M.T. course, he must have a basic knowledge of First Aid and hold current Red Cross or Medical Self-Help certification.

Some of the special instruction given in the course includes splinting, the use of inflatable splints and specialty Thomas and Hare traction splints, training in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, that is, providing oxygen and artificial circulation to a patient to keep the patient alive during transportation to a medical facility, control of bleeding, treatment of shock, extrication from automobiles.

Also, how to treat a victim of heat, cold, electrical, radiation and water accidents; how to conduct oneself professionally at the scene of an accident or sudden illness and properly communicate the patient's symptoms to the doctor in the emergency room.

The Jensen Area Samaritans need volunteers to be EMT's and to serve on the ambulance squad. There will be an E.M.T. course in the fall, so volunteer now by calling the membership chairman at 334-5312 or by attending the next meeting on Wednesday, July 7, at 8 p.m. at the Langford Park Field House in Jensen Beach.

The Samaritans' motto is "We care." Show them that you care, too, by volunteering today.

MEETING--The first meeting between the member of the Jensen Beach and the Martin County United Way was held last Tuesday to discuss of the two groups joining forces for the upcoming drive. The major area of concern centers around the ambulance funding according to the group's spokesman. Pictured above, left to right, are Buck Mauldon and Gerald Mehlich of the Martin County organization, Virginia and Jack Scranton, Jackie Hall and Eve Wagner representing the Jensen Beach United Fund.

April Zinter and Charles Boyd wed

PORT ST. LUCIE—April Zinter, daughter of Mr and Mrs Paul G Zinter of Port St Lucie, became the bride of Charles F Boyd, son of Mr and Mrs Charles E Boyd of Port St Lucie, on Saturday June 5, in an afternoon ceremony at the St Lucie Catholic Church.

The Rev Father Eugene W. McCarthy officiated at the ceremony. Wedding selections were provided by organist, Mrs. Henry Hall.

The church was decorated with sprays of white stock and pom-poms accented with leather leaf. Small white altar candles burned atop the scalloped altar rail.

The bride in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a Juliet style gown of white organza. White sculptured lace flowers intersected with white ribbon accented the bodice and edges of sleeves and train. The cap of her veil featured sculptured flowers and layers of tiered tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd

For something old the bride carried her bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath on a Bible carried at her mother's wedding. Something borrowed was an antique ivory cameo pin belonging to Mrs. Arthur Coulon, friend of the bride. The something blue was a blue garter with a six pence attached for good luck.

Michelle Manfredi, maid of honor wore a floor length gown of baby blue dotted swiss with matching jacket trimmed in Venice lace. She wore a wide brimmed picture hat accented with a blue veil, and a silver necklace completed the ensemble. Her bouquet was made of two white phalaenopsis orchids and blue baby's breath entwined.

The bridal attendants were Mrs. Paul Robert Zinter, sister-in-law of the bride, and Barbara Matthews, friend of the bride. Their ensembles were identical to the maid of honor's except in shades of yellow carrying flowers of the same hue. Their silver necklaces, like the maid of honor's, were gifts from the bride.

Paul A. Zinter, brother of the bride, served as best man. The ushers were Barry and Kenny Henry of Fort Pierce. The groomsmen were in light blue tuxedos with dark blue velvet collars and pockets. Yellow ruffled shirts completed the outfits.

The groom wore a white tuxedo trimmed in narrow white brocade with yellow ruffled shirt. They all wore boutonnieres of roses.

The mother of the bride chose a long, lemon yellow empire style gown with a v-necked bodice. She wore a shawl jacket of pale yellow, veined with fine crocheted fringe. Her corsage was a large white orchid with green ribbon.

The bridegroom's mother wore a floor length, seafoam green chiffon gown with two layers of sheer to give a cape effect. She also wore a large white orchid with yellow ribbon.

Mrs. John Majka, the bride's grandmother chose a long, ocean blue gown with long sleeves and a v-neck, gathered at the bodice. Her corsage was of two cymbidium orchids trimmed in blue. The groom's grandmother, Mrs. Frederick Winterling, wore a strawberry pink sleeveless floor length gown with a shawl of the same color. She wore a corsage of two cymbidium orchids trimmed in pink.

A buffet reception was held at the Community Center in Port St. Lucie following the wedding. Entertainment was by John Barca.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs Frederick Winterline of Baltimore, Md grandparents of the groom, Mrs Myrtle Apitz of Chicago Ill. aunt of the bride. Mrs William Peters of Baltimore, Md. aunt of the groom. Michael Micek of New Jersey friend of the groom and Mrs. and Mrs. Carey Kummelman and family friends of the groom from Miami.

Prenuptial parties included two wedding showers, one given by Mrs John Karrer and the other given by Mrs. Paul A. Zinter. Michelle Manfredi and Mrs. Lowell Grimm.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents for the wedding party and out-of-town guests at Ray's Inn.

Following a wedding trip to Daytona Beach, the couple is at home in Port St Lucie. The bride is employed with Welcome Center Real Estate, Inc. and the bridegroom is employed with Harrison Electric.

Lichty will run for school board

JENSEN BEACH–Carolyn B. Lichty announced last week that she is a candidate for District Two School Board seat. A native of South Carolina, she is a 13 year resident of Martin County, seven year resident of Stuart.

Carolyn Lichty

A retired nurse, Mrs. Lichty is married to Bill Lichty, supervisor for Florida Power and Light. They have two daughters, Beth 14 and Cathy 11, students in Martin County schools.

Mrs. Lichty has a B.S.N. degree from Duke University and taught two nursing courses for Martin County Adult Education this past year. She holds a Rank III Vocational Certificate.

She has served as service chairman, Martin County Chapter of the American Cancer Society, Florida state president, Phi Beta Psi Sorority, president, Beta Zeta Chapter, Phi Beta Psi Sorority, neighborhood chairman, Martin County Girl Scouts, and Girl Scout leader.

Mrs. Lichty is a member of the First United Methodist Church, past Acolyte Coordinator, serves on the board of directors, Palm Glades Girl Scout Council, is cadette organizer, Martin County Girl Scouts, and is a member of Martin Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

JUDGES–Newly appointed Circuit Court Judge Dwight L. Geiger, left, was sworn into office last week in ceremonies at Martin County Courthouse. He replaces former Circuit Judge James Alderman who was appointed to the Fourth District Court of Appeal. Gov. Reubin Askew made both appointments.

Geiger is named circuit court judge

JENSEN BEACH–Martin County Court Judge Dwight Geiger has been elevated to Circuit Court judge by Gov. Reubin Askew, filling the post previously held by Judge James Alderman.

Geiger has been judge of the Martin County Court since January, 1973 and practiced law here for 13 years before his election.

His appointment to the Circuit Court is effective for the remainder of 1976. He must win election in September if someone else qualifies as a candidate.

Alderman recently was appointed to the Fourth District Court of Appeal by the governor.

Gov. Askew apparently does not plan to appoint a new judge to the County Court until after the September judicial election, according to Bill Scott, chairman of the Judicial Nominating Committee for the 19th Judicial Circuit.

Scott said that whoever is elected in September would not take office until January. Whoever wins the election probably will be appointed by the governor to fill the remainder of Judge Geiger's term.

The last column bore no fruit when an appeal was made for news, so thanks to Esther Yost for the item coming up.

On Father's Day, a group made of Ethel and Al Seccia, Muriel and Lee Sterling, Esther and George Yost, and Debby and Kevin McCalister, enjoyed a cookout in their own back yards. Steaks, which I am told were shipped in from some up north state, with all the trimming including a beautiful melon fruit bowl in a half watermelon shell made by Esther's granddaughter Debby; also, a cocktail hour before they all sat down to put away the food, then over to the Castles where they continued with an organ playing session and sing-along, and wound up the evening with dessert - peach pie. Sounds like a delightful evening.

Esther's granddaughter comes from Hagerstown, Md., and celebrated her birthday on the 26th. They all had dinner at the Pub and then took in the Turtle Watch at midnight.

Have you been reading the temperatures up north? Anyone who complains about the weather we are having here up to now has to be out of their gourds. This beats trying to find a room in Washington on the Fourth of July. Count your blessings!

And, thanks to Edna Horne for the next item:

She and George took off for Connecticut to meet their new daughter-in-law. Edna says it's a welcome change to have a female around instead of all men and boys (I say who pays the bills?).

Apparently the weather wasn't too hot, but they managed to do some fishing even if the fish weren't biting. They used their son's car and Edna tackled a stick shift which she hadn't handled in years. (Would like to have seen that.) Years ago when the kids were young, there was an iron clad rule that the gas tank would be left full after using the car, so the shoe was on the other foot. Gas prices are different now, Edna.

Edna also had the opportunity to present her own music award this year at a special assembly.

Picnics, dinner, phone calls and visiting took up the entire two weeks and before they knew it, everything was over and they were ready to head back to good old Jensen Beach. Incidentally, George was the guest of honor at a Royal Arch meeting which gave him a chance to catch up on all the news.

Two other highlights of their trip was entertaining the whole family at a favorite restaurant at Lake Zoar, and another big picnic, Italian style, and the kids showing off with karate, baseball and football.

They arrived back here tired out last Friday, very content about the whole thing. Edna's Dad, Tommy Adamson, was glad to see them show up.

On Saturday night, June 26, Pinelake had another BYOB and from all accounts, it was a real nice affair, games, dancing, chow, chow and conversation.

Which brings us to my own take off between the 10th and 15th of July. Remember now, first stop is New Orleans and, of course, a side trip to Hogtie. Remember Hogtie? Then, I discounted the idea of taking a trailer down into New Orleans and have decided to stay on the north side of Lake Pontchartrain. And, I know I spelled that wrong, but you get the drift. Everything will be reported as we head west to Colorado Springs.

Keep your news coming in, but give it to Rachel Lai Jusse. She will forward for us.

Hang in there ... see you next week.

STRUCTION SLATED–Construction is scheduled to ...ing the next four to six weeks on the Village Square ...ping Center to be located about one-half mile south of the ...ional Building nearing completion on the west side of ...the shopping center, which will provide spaces for fifteen businesses, will contain approximately 20,000 square feet and will be situated on property offering 740 foot frontage on U.S. 1. Developer of the project is Richard Welshans of Port St. Lucie. Jim Love, general manager of A to Z Realty, is handling the rentals.

Construction is slated for $700,000 center

PORT ST. LUCIE–Construction of a $700,000 shopping center is slated to get underway within the next four to six weeks in this south county community.

The 20,000 square foot, L-shaped facility will be constructed on a site located on the west side of U.S. 1 approximately one-half mile south of the Spanish Lakes entrance.

The developer, Richard Welshans of Port St. Lucie said the proposed center will provide adequate space for 14 to 15 businesses. The property on which the center is to be built provides a 740-foot frontage on U.S. 1.

With the continued growth of the south county area, the demand for local services is ever increasing.

Emphasizing the need for providing additional services is here now, Jim Love, general manager of A to Z Realty who is handling the rentals for the new center told The Mirror last week that eight of the proposed fifteen spaces have already been committed.

One of the first to sign up for space was Charlie Groome who owns and operates Jensen Beach Floor Covering.

Other commitments include a bakery outlet, beauty shop, an ultra-modern coin laundry, title insurance firm, drapery store, a real estate office, a delicatessen and a restaurant, according to Love.

Interest in establishing a branch office has also been indicated by a St. Lucie County Savings and Loan Association, however no final commitment has been made as yet.

By the time the center is open, Love hopes to have a barber shop, a good mens and womens shop, and a liquor store established in the center.

The $700,000 facility, which the developer describes as being "phase one" of the project.

While Love was reluctant to discuss exactly what the second phase of the project would include, he did indicate businesses would be operating in the shopping center sometime this fall.

Architectural drawings for the L-shaped shopping center are being prepared by Rogler Associates.

GDU drama continues

PORT ST. LUCIE–While the local PSC public hearing on the General Development Utilities application for a rate increase is over, the questions, the probing and the courting for the right answers continues.

In Miami, GDU staff members faced the music in the office in which to present a detailed list of sales requests to the Public Service Commission. The purpose of the request is to aid the PSC in determining whether or not to approve GDU sales agreements by providing free water and sewer hookups as promised to those buyers just buying lots prior to 1972.

...rate ...offering ...related ...the hearings ...the developing firm offered ...,775 lots for sale in Florida prior to 1972 with water mains provided free of charge, but he was unable to give a breakdown as to the number of lots purchased under the free hookup contracts.

In 1972 GDU amended the sales contracts making the purchaser of a lot responsible for water and sewer hookups.

According to PSC Assistant Chief Engineer William A. Bevis, his committee is concerned that GDU provides the promised free connections and the costs of such installations are not divided among the lot owners who are required to pay for hookup.

Meanwhile back in Port St. Lucie, Vice Mayor Frank Rose has withdrawn his membership from the fast growing Port St. Lucie Utilities Corporation on the grounds he feels his membership in the group could be considered a conflict with his position on the City Council.

According to Rose his resignation was submitted to the corporation advisory committee Gary Anthony, Fred Butkowski, Rose said his resignation will be final, ...time it will proceed, however.

He said Florida is trying to determine if the franchise was appropriate originally or not, when the City Council was composed ...officials of General Development Corporation, which owns and operates GDU.

In Tallahassee, the Public Service Commission awaits the additional information requested from General Development Utilities and upon receipt of same, will schedule a second public hearing, this time in Port Mayaca, to continue the investigation relative to the requested rate hike.

The reason for the second hearing in Port Mayaca is that GDU is seeking an across the board increase in rates, covering all of their state holdings.

Clifford Tomaszewski (Al's son), his wife Leigh and son Paul, age 3, spent some time with Al and Jean recently. They flew to Orlando, rented a car and enjoyed Disneyworld before coming to Ocean Breeze. Several of us enjoyed little Paul. When asked what he saw at Disneyworld, he amused us by answering, "Mickey Mouse and French fries."

They left Saturday as Clifford had to be back at work Monday.

Mrs. James (Phyllis) Allen of Toronto is visiting Fred Peterkin. She arrived last Sunday via plane into West Palm and hopes to have a bit of sunshine while here. Phyllis and her daughter Norah visited Freda nine years ago. She is hoping that her plans to return to Toronto Saturday, July 3, will work out, that the plane strike will be settled – otherwise, she may have to take the bus from Buffalo to reach her home in Toronto.

Esther Themever reports that she met her daughter, Camille Wooster, near Disneyworld where they visited for the better part of a day after Camille's flight east.

She says they had a perfect trip west to Lake Havasu City, Arizona – no rain, perfect scenery and that she noticed that many trees there seem to have been slanted by winds as they grew.

Community Fund asks agency budgets

JENSEN BEACH–Agencies desiring to participate in the Jensen Beach Rio Community Fund drive for 1976-77 should submit their budget requirements to the community fund before July 16, according to Ginny Scranton, secretary.

Mrs. Scranton said that a decision has not yet been made on whether or not the local fund drive will participate in the Martin County United Way, so the board of directors is proceeding with planning the drive so that the merchants will be set up if the local drive is held.

We must find out just how much must be raised in Jensen Beach and Rio so that we can find out whether or not the agencies we have can be adapted to the organization of the United Way," Mrs. Scranton said.

Agencies interested in applying for participation in the Jensen Beach-Rio Community Fund drive should send budgets and information for consideration to Mrs. Scranton, 1220 NE Hillcrest Lane, Jensen Beach FL 33457.

FLAGS, FLAGS, FLAGS–Flags and kids help to make a patriotic parade a huge success and the Jensen Beach Park 801 Cub Scouts won first prize for the "most patriotic entry" in the Bicentennial Celebration July 4 Parade in Jensen Beach.

'antastic fireworks cap Independence celebration

BY DICK CAMPBELL

SEN BEACH–It was a day filled ngeantry, parades and a gigantic night picnic as Jensen Beach ated the bicentennial. But it was eworks finale that filled the night the stirring chills of patriotism.

thing was the "largest ever" in The parade, with more than 100 marched the two-mile route a hitch. The American flag was here in one of the best coordinated events in Jensen Beach history.

The only casualty of the day was the proposed two p.m. ringing of bells, but that event met with brief success as parade marchers realized that the time had come and began ringing bells to the accompaniment of boats beginning to line up in the Indian River.

It was a beautiful day made for the celebration. Hardly a cloud formed in the sky, and only puffs clouds showed on the western horizon.

The tribute to Bill Yurillo, creator of the Jensen Beach fireworks displays over the past ten years, was spectacular. Yurillo died two weeks ago, before he could see his greatest achievement. But the organization he formed carried through the exhibit without a hitch.

Bill had it all planned out, and it was almost flawless," said Frank Wacha.

Ground displays included a house on fire with a fireworks fireman putting out the blaze, a liberty bell, a pelican and turtle, and most spectacular of all, an eagle above two flags that spread across the raised bridge.

The shells filled the finale with light and bold reports as over 10,000 persons filling the causeway on both sides of the bridge, up and down Indian River Drive, Skyline Drive and A-1-A cheered and applauded.

More than 500 boats were anchored off the causeway and the Indian River looked like black velvet covered with diamonds as the boats moved south following the display. A quarter-moon shone through the evening haze, lighting the way for the boaters.

In anticipation of the crowds and the often visitors had arrived to get a place as early as Saturday night.

Campers and tents filled the causeway as early as 10 a.m. and the bicentennial revelers choked the causeway road as the parade marched past just after 1:30.

It was a time of flags and red, white and blue. The floats showed the thought and time consuming preparation it took to have Jensen's greatest parade.

Later in the afternoon children ran races, climbed greased poles and held a watermelon eating contests as the crowd began building for the fireworks.

The entire day was a tribute to an entire community, working together to accomplish something that will be remembered for many years.

Jensen Beach said: Happy Birthday, America," and everyone joined in the celebration.

Second prize in the float division went to the Optimist Auxiliary and Martin Mariners Barbershop Chorus float took third prize.

The Optimist cheerleaders won first place in the marching unit category with the William Yurillo Construction Co. Band taking top honors in the band division.

First place parade horse trophy went to Whipkeys with Little People's Place a Stuart nursery school getting first place for the business entry.

Hobe Sound Volunteer Fire Department entered the most patriotic motor vehicle and Park 801 Cub Scouts of Jensen Beach won the most patriotic entry award.

Pete Razzi won first place in the bike category. Billy Coward placed second and Dwayne Marsteller third place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Loffer won first place in the costume category, with Harvey Schlemmer as Uncle Sam taking second place.

And over on the Jensen Beach Causeway, under blazing hot sun, there were kids taking part in foot races, climbing greased pole and eating watermelon.

Nuke plant is on line

JENSEN BEACH–Florida Power and Light Co.'s FPL/St. Lucie Nuclear Unit No. 1 on Hutchinson Island has been placed into commercial operation, a company official announced last week.

St. Lucie has been undergoing tests since it initially supplied power to the FPL system on May 7, and the reliability of the unit to date justifies its addition to our list of operating power plants," said Robert A. DeLorenzo, project general manager.

Although the unit presently has an operating limit of approximately 90 percent power set by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, DeLorenzo said, "full power operation can begin as soon as certain technical and NRC requirements are met.

St. Lucie becomes the company's third operational nuclear unit, joining two units at Turkey Point.

The addition of St. Lucie's 802,000 kilowatt capacity is expected to bring the amount of nuclear generation to approximately one-third of FPL's total annual output.

FPL announced its intentions to build the unit on November, 1967. A 40 year operating license was issued by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in March, 1976. Total construction cost of the unit has been estimated at approximately $400 million. A second unit, St. Lucie No. 2, will be located adjacent to Unit No. 1 and is scheduled for completion in the early 1980's.

Street marking needs

Fading street markings should be brought to the attention of the Department of Transportation and the county road department. The two departments certainly are trying to keep up with the ever-expanding road repair needs, but a little help from the public would probably be appreciated.

Too often, persons driving the same road day in and day out get used to the fading lines along the streets, and know where to pass or not to pass, where to get in a fading left turn lane, and where to stop at a stop sign. They forget to remind their county road crews that a street divider needs repainting, because they drive the route and know it so well.

The Commercial Street lines from Indian River Drive to South Savanna Road are one example. At the intersection of Commercial Street and Indian River Drive, the left and right turn dividing lines are fading to nothing. The dividing lines at Commercial Street have faded as the black paint over the old yellow markers gets rubbed off, making excellent motorcycle lanes, but offering confusion to motorists. We have seen people turning left into Commercial Street and heading west in the east bound left-turn lane.

The divider for two-lane west bound traffic going up the hill to Skyline Drive needs repainting, along with the right-turn arrows in the right lane. The lines are so faded people are driving west straddling the two lanes.

The approach to South Savanna Road is the same, with lines fading to create potential accidents on the approach to the traffic light.

On Sewall's Point Road, striping should be done to prevent passing on the hill at FIT and the left-turn storage lane lines at the Outrigger should be renewed.

All of Ricou Boulevard needs restriping.

The above are offered as summertime suggestions to the road department of state and county. We are certain that citizens will add to the list.

Tell us what it costs

The governor has signed the "economic impact law" into law, and the fun has just begun.

No longer will it be possible for some obscure agency to issue some regulation that will cost the businessman or consumer a fortune to meet its requirements. Now that regulation will have to be accompanied by an economic impact statement telling folks what it is going to cost to implement the regulation.

Ofttimes the regulations took the place of laws in the past. More and more agencies took the legislation passed by the people in Tallahassee and added to the intent to the point that the law looked as if it was totally different from the original.

Most of the time, it cost money and time to meet the requirements that some desk-sergeant decided was a way to do something to make things easier for him.

The new law also requires the legislature to consider the cost of any bill it passes, though no law will be overturned for failure to consider costs.

We have endured the multi-form, multi-agency, multi-study government of bureaucrats too long, and this bill registers a protest for those bureaucrats to stop, and for the legislature to give deep fiscal thought to whatever bill it passes.

The people are getting tired of too much government. They are beginning to realize that for everything government does for us, they do something to us.

The new economic impact law is a small step forward, but a good one.

Time for politics

Candidates have just until July 20 to file their intentions to run for political office.

It looks like there will be a large number of candidates filing this year, and anti-government sentiment seems high.

For those who would like to take the leap into county or state politics, and do not know how, here are the requirements.

First, open a campaign bank account and appoint a campaign treasurer.

Second, go to the office of the county clerk in the county courthouse and file for whatever office you desire.

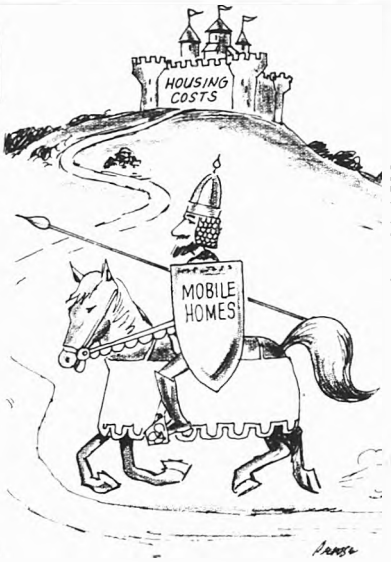
This year, there will be many choices on the ticket. Three county commission seats will be open, representing district one-Jensen Beach, district three-Hobe Sound, and district five-Indiantown, and all other constitutional officers.

The sheriff, clerk of circuit court, supervisor of elections, county judge, tax collector, property appraiser, superintendent of education, and school board seats, two-Stuart, and four Palm City.

Filing fees are five percent of the annual salary of the office the candidate seeks.

All expenditures must be made on official voucher forms.

Candidates running for a district office must reside in that district.



The last crusader

Dick Campbell

The 'sweetest' editor I know

Writing on an electric typewriter is the first step to madness, but I'm forced to write this column on one of those things.

I sat, sitting in the only swivel rocking leather upholstered office chair that is older than mine at a desk that believe it or not, is messier than mine, and writing on this blamed electric typewriter that is newer by about fifty years than mine.

I'm at the desk of Sonny Stalls editor of The Clewiston News. Clewiston is billed as "America's Sweetest Town" which I guess would make Sonny the "Sweetest Editor" in Clewiston. He is the only editor in Clewiston.

It all began at about eight on Tuesday evening. We had finished up the edition, shot the pages, and I had limped home, built a scotch and soda, had dinner, and settled back in the family room to watch "1776" on television.

The telphone rang. It was Dave Fleming, who prints our newspaper in his central printing plant at Lake Placid.

"I hate to say this, Dick, but we just had lightning hit the plant. It broke the doomajigger on the electronic panel, and we must fly a man and a part down from New York tomorrow to fix the thing. It will be tomorrow night before we can hope to get started again."

I commiserated with Dave said, "Do what you can," and went into mental panic.

To all newspaper people, the deadline is something that cannot be missed. Meeting notices for Wednesday and Thursday must get out on time. People want to read what happened at Tuesday meetings on Wednesday, or Thursday, not on Friday, and our advertisers want to get their messages before the people as soon as possible.

Also, if the newspaper is late, the phone rings off the wall with irate subscribers who paid their $7.50 a year to get a paper on time.

I put on my slacks and shirt and drove down to the office. On the spur of the moment I called Sonny at home and asked him if he could print The Mirror, explaining that Dave's plant had been hit by lightning.

Sonny didn't hesitate.

"Bring it on over. We'll make a special run at 7:30, and I'll call Dave and see if we can help with some of his other newspapers."

Newspaper people are like that. They will all pitch in and help a neighbor.

I left home at 5 p.m. and drove the grinding route out State Road 76 to Port Mayaca, and down the Lake Okeechobee dike to Clewiston. It was 6:45 when I pulled up at Glades Restaurant where Sonny holds court with coffee-drinking buddies from 6 to 7, learning what happened the night before, besides the meetings he covered.

About 7:30 we went over to the plant, and the crew started burning plates.

"Paper negatives, huh?" Sonny said. "Yep, I figure it saves 30 percent on regular negatives."

"Hummm," he said thoughtfully.

Biff Lampton, one of the best bass fishermen in Clewiston, and another editor walked in the presaroom.

"Paper negatives?"

"Saves 30 percent," said Sonny, raising his eyebrows.

"We'll have to look into that, Biff said.

"If this works, I'll buy you a steak dinner," Sonny said as they burned the first plate.

The plate turned out, and Sonny agreed to buy the steak. I'm going to suggest that if he or Jensen Beach, where I can take him and his wife to dinner.

"Make yourself at home. I've got to cover a county commission meeting," Sonny said, leading me to his office.

It took him a half hour to leave after he started out the door. He had three telephone calls, and one prospective candidate for the Lee County Commission to talk politics.

I glanced around the office, which reflects the serious and humorous of his life style.

On the serious side, there was a past president plaque of Kiwanis, a 25-year certificate as a member of the Masons, a meritorious service certificate from the Florida Highway Patrol, a Distinguished Service Award from the Jaycees, and a Distinguished Citizens Award from the Jaycees, a past president's plaque and a distinguished service award plaque from the Florida Press Association, an award from Faith School and a plaque from the Clewiston Police Department.

On the funny side there is a Snoopy greatest boss award, a framed column I once wrote about the time I came here and Sonny fought a fire in a restaurant, a Valentine doll from his wife, a stuffed bass, some wooden carvings that must have some meaning, a picture of himself taped to the desk, a stuffed alligator wearing a chastity belt and a broken softball trophy.

Beneath the stuffed bass there is a sign that says, "As soon as the rush is over, I'm going to have a nervous breakdown."

I feel right at home here. It reminds me of my office.

It's just weird for this new fangled blasted electric typewriter.

Third century

Here we go into the nation's third century, and do you think it will be more of the same? More people, more and bigger budgets and more "big brother" agencies to watch over us.

Will the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration continue, but under a new name? Same administrators with bigger budgets and more junk mail in duplication?

Will smoking continue drinking, U.S. Congressmen playing hanky-panky with secretaries continue?

It seems that the United States population continues to get older each year, fewer babies and more of us older folks so the vast majority who welcomed in the third century will not be among the quick and living in 2076.

So here we go into the election year of 1976 and the budget year of 1976-77, and smoking continues and junk mail pours in each day in duplication.

First the budgets.

Martin County Sheriff James Holt wants $2.1 million next fiscal year, a 16 per cent increase from his current budget.

Included in the whopping budget is $98,000 for new patrol cars. There are more people in Martin County than in previous years, but the land area is the same and not many more roads-especially in Jensen Beach.

A twin-engine plane confiscated by law officers after it was found to contain 1,120 pounds of marijuana apparently will become the property of the sheriff's department. The seizure gives the sheriff something he has wanted long time, an aircraft for surveil operations...

Now that he has a plane, he won't a helicopter and now he can buy a boat to use in his fight to halt drug t on our waterways.

Now consider different ways t school budgets in different counties.

In announcing his candidacy re-election, St. Lucie County Superintendent D.R. Seelinger that he saved the school system $230,000 by cutting administrative

When he became superintendent years ago, he didn't even appoi assistant superintendent, a job he held.

In Martin County, however, school principal Clara Fulton announ cutting 14 teaching positions, a mo reduce the new budget.

The money should be for teachers are in direct contact with the chil and not money for administrators s in offices shuffling papers.

And a final note:

Included in the junk mail this was a note from Sandra Kesaler American Lung Association from Palm Beach.

She had read one of my column smoking and said her associa "actively trying to do something a indiscriminate smoking in pu places."

And to start off the third century the election year of 1976, you migh your congressman if his secretaries type, and if he voted against cu down on the tobacco acreage.

Alice Hickey

I wonder why

It sometimes makes one wonder if county governments don't make a full fledged efforts to do their own thing, if and when the notion strikes them, regardless of public sentiment on the issue.

Above all considering the needs of the south county residents seems to be the last item on the agenda at all times.

There have been many examples of the south county area being some sort of step-child in St. Lucie County.

Aside from the City of Port St. Lucie an example of another area in the south county indicative of the lack of concern would certainly be South Hutchinson Island. While county officials permit more and more high rises and trailers in the area to generate additional county tax dollars, little concern has been forthcoming relative to the maintenance of A1A or the impact of those new residents, particularly in regards to traffic congestion in northern Martin County.

On what about such items as imbalance service, fire protection or even mosquito control in the south-eastern portions of the county?

As I recall, it hasn't been but a few months ago that the City of Port St. Lucie was denied a representative to serve on the county fire board. The current fire board consists of two representatives from the Co commission, two from the Port P City Commission, and one mem appointed by the governor.

On the other hand the City of Port Lucie financed their own fire statio outright; purchased their own ne vehicle.

But then, back to the county's need a landfill.

The proposed 225-acre site in northwestern section of Port St. has much to offer. Geographically centrally located being approxim six miles southwest of Fort Pierce site is adjacent to a paved road railroad siding as well.

According to a representative experienced in the field of solid management, the site, if man correctly, is sufficient to meet the n of Fort Pierce, Port St. Lucie, St. L County, and northern Martin Co including the Stuart area as well for next fifteen years.

But for some unknown reason recently as May 11, 1976, the Fort Pie City Manager Charles Jackson sen letter to the county engineer noting Port St. Lucie property did not appe the county's list of possible landfill under consideration.

I wonder why?

Marc Cianca files for county judge position

JENSEN BEACH–Marc A. Cianca has announced his candidacy for the county judgeship that has recently been vacated by the elevation of Judge Dwight Geiger to the Circuit Court.

Cianca, 39, ran in 1974 against Judge David Harper, only to lose the race by fewer than 400 votes.

"I feel that my years of experience give an added dimension to my ability to serve as judge," the lawyer and former assistant state's attorney said.

"I've had experience in investigating cases first-hand as a police officer and trying cases in court as a prosecutor and defense attorney."

"There are many citizens with many and varied problems who appear in County Court without attorneys. Their problems must be handled, not so much with scholarly erudition, but with the insight of common experience," he said.

Cianca has been in private practice in Martin County for three years, and a former assistant state attorney here and assistant county solicitor in Brevard County.

"My candidacy is based on the fact that I offer the voters of Martin County a person who can better appreciate their problems and give them a fair and common sense judgment," Cianca said.

MARC A. CIANCA

He attended grade school and high school in Hillsborough County and graduated from the University of Florida College of Law.

Prentice was awarded state and national honors as All American district commander in 1975 and was state community activities chairman during the past year.

JBFD FLAG–Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department Chief Randolph Spinney holds an American Flag similar to the one stolen from the Jensen Beach Bank flag pole this past weekend. The flag, with initials JBFD, was placed on the pole July 3, and was stolen sometime during the weekend. Chief Spinney said the flag rope was tied 15 feet above the ground.

CARRYING FLAG–Jensen Beach Volunteer fireman Steve Rebeiser carried one of many American Flags in the Jensen Beach July 4 parade.

Esther Kildea seeks school board seat

JENSEN BEACH–Esther Kildea has announced that she will be a candidate for District 4, Martin County School Board.

Mrs. Kildea, coordinator of the continuing and community education programs for the school system, said she will seek the position now held by Mrs. Mary Hyatt.

She has been a counselor-coordinator of the system's continuing and community program since coming to the county in 1968.

Mrs. Kildea has had 10 years experience in social service with the Wayne County, Mich., circuit court, and 20 years of further diversified experience in business, commerce and industry.

"Our school system is big business–a multi-million dollar business with millions invested in capital outlay, and a payroll which is one of the largest in Martin County. This is not a business for amateurs, for those who do not have the time, the energy, and the know-how to give to this important job," she said.

"I view the job of school board member as one requiring more than attendance at meetings," she continued. "A school board member should have the time and interest to study, analyze and be conversant with existing and proposed legislation pertaining to education."

Mrs. Kildea received her AB degree from Barry College, Miami, a degree at the University of Detroit and fulfilled requirements for state certification in administration and supervision, adult education at Florida Atlantic.

Martin County wins Mustang tourney

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH–The Martin County Mustang League All-Stars led by some great pitching and steady hitting won the North Area Mustang League tournament last week at Langford Park.

Fans who came to see the action were treated to some on-the-field fireworks as well as some that was not as exciting.

Meanwhile, the pre-tournament favorite Palm Springs was quickly surprised by the Martin Countians and although they rallied in game two of the finals, they could not stop the spirited locaters.

Both Martin County and Palm Springs won their first round games against Jensen Beach 18-1 and 18-0 respectively, thus eliminating the host team from the competition. Mike Uber went 1-for-4 against Jensen Beach, smashing a triple in the second inning to break up a 2-1 ball game, and turning it into a rout. Pepe "Pee Wee" Vazquez smacked a triple and a double against the Jensenites for Palm Springs as his team zonked the home team in only four innings.

In the first game of the finals Uber and Jeff Crable doubled in the second inning and later scored to get Martin County off to a quick 2-0 lead. Before long, MC had a 4-2 advantage a lead which proved to be enough. Palm Springs could get only two runs in the ninth, and lost 6-4.

Martin County seemed to have a lock on the title when, in the second game of the finals they held a 4-2 lead. But the Palm Springs fans, the most spirited to invade Langford Park in years, began their routine yelling and screaming, and injecting "something extra" into the ballgame. Martin pitchers Keith Spittler, Charlie Malfregeot and Laverne McFadden walked the first five Palm Springs batters in the final inning, forcing in the tying runs. Then, after Vazquez flied out, McFadden walked Shannon Mendenhall to score the winning run.

It is very hard to assemble the pieces of the story which then unfolded.

It is certain that Mendenhall stopped about halfway down the first base line when some of teammates mobbed him. Also, most observers feel that Scott Wright did touch home plate as he came in from third. Whether the other two runners touched their respective bases is not known.

In any event, MC Manager Tom Spittler charged onto the field, yelling "Hey, Mendenhall! out!" He ran out of the baseline. Indeed he did, but the rules state that he must loiter there long enough so that, in the umpire's judgment he is delaying the game, or he exits from the playing field neither of which occured.

After a lengthy discussion, it was decided that since there was one out at the time, the run would count because, according to the rules, the batterrunner, if called out, would represent only the second out, and any run scored because of the walk would count.

Manager Spittler was later quoted as saying that he is not "a rulebook coach," and that he did not have a chance to protest the game because of this.

After the second game, he also blasted the umpires and officials of the tournament, calling them "incompetent." However, contrary to his belief the umpires did a fine job throughout the entire tournament, and so did the officials, namely Roger Jackson, who put the whole extravaganza togeiher.

The next night, in game three, Martin County got off to their now traditional early lead. They scored twice in the first and five more times in the second inning. A double by Brendon McCarthy and costly Palm Springs errors highlighted the first two frames as the Martin Countians jumped in front, 7-0. But five singles and some MC errors cost the locaters five tallies in the third, as Palm Springs narrowed the gap.

After five innings, it was 12-7 and memories of the previous evening were forcing a postponement of any celebrations until the game was over.

There was no need for pessimism, however, because Jeff Crable did a job on the Palm Springs hitters. After Vazquez reached on an error, Crable retired three batters in succession, and the game was over.

"He really had the control," said jubilant Spittler, who was no longer concerned about the previous evening's events. "He was just great."

"They played a good series," said Spittler, "but our guys are just better."

Asked if he thought he had a chance against the kind of competition he'll be facing in Lake Worth beginning tonight, namely Lake Worth itself, he said, "With these guys, I would imagine so, if nobody — and team goes away on vacation."

In any event, the baseball season is almost over. All that remains is the Bronco League Regionals to be held later this month at Langford Park.

Jensen Beach will have their All-Star entered as they drew a bye in competition until then.

Martin County, meanwhile, will begin play in the District tournament in Lake Worth tonight (Wednesday), against Lake Worth.

Mexican youths at Academy

Howes-in-the-Hills--Como se llama will again ring through the halls of Howes Academy as touring youngsters from Mexico and Howes summer school students meet and want to know. What is your name?

Young seniors and senoritas ranging in age from 13-17 are spending July at central Florida college preparatory Howes for four weeks cultural enrichment. They have dual purpose to improve conversational English and to enjoy and summer camp experience.

Like the past two summer sessions when Howes began hosting such groups the Mexican youths will enroll in a conversational English class. And they will supplement classroom learning as they mix on campus with other Howes students from the U.S. and abroad.

Florida tourist attractions now familiar sights to many Howes students, take on renewed appeal when these oldsters "in the know" become tour guides to the Mexican students.

Alice Jensen, star spangled lady

PORT ST. LUCIE -- Happy Birthday America and "We hold these truths to be self evident" -- thus read the open-book birthday cake served during Saturday's festivities commemorating the 200th anniversary of United States independence.

Mrs. Robert Jensen baked and decorated the huge cake as well as the dozens of beautiful cupcakes and ginger cookies that delighted so many people at the Community Center. She gift wrapped the cake with blue tulle and red velvet ribbon, her star spangled birthday gift to her community.

Mrs. Santa Claus, in the bicentennial parade, Mrs. Jensen epitomizes the spirit of giving and community dedication every day, however not just on special occasions.

The canapes served at the tea dance which kicked off the Port St. Lucie bicentennial program were the product of her imaginative and creative way with food. A beautiful cake for the CESA Festival and a Christmas gift cake for the City of Port St. Lucie and all the workers were further examples of giving of her talents, her time, of herself.

Asked: How do you find time to do so much and, for that matter, why do you do it?" she replied, I come from a very large family, and at holiday times, I always seemed to get the job of gift wrapping.

"You don't get out of the habit of giving and I believe it comes back ten fold."

Among her many efforts in behalf of the city's birthday party were all of the artful posters that were seen throughout the area. And her work was evident in the parade as she created the costumes for the Statue of Liberty, Uncle Sam and the Minute Man in addition to appearing as Mrs. Santa Claus and making sure that everyone had some candy.

Alice Jensen is a member of the CESA Board of Trustees and worked diligently on the Charter Revision Committee.

In their devotion to the welfare of their community, Mr. and Mrs. Jensen attended a Solid Waste Convention in California last year, at their own expense to learn first hand the latest in laws, regulations and methods dealing with waste disposal.

And Mrs. Santa Claus doubles in the springtime as the Easter Bunny. She carries a big basket dispensing from it individually wrapped packages of goodies painstakingly created in her home to be attractive and appealing.

Floppy ears, fluffy cotton tail and all she has brought cheer in visits to hospitals, the Rehabilitation Center, Head Start, nursery schools and in appearances at St. Andrew Lutheran Church where the Jensens are active members.

Mr. and Mrs. Jensen have lived in Port St. Lucie for six years, coming from Chicago. She says she and Mr. Jensen have been going together "since she was four and he was five" and have worked shoulder to shoulder throughout the years.

You ask me why I do these things, Alice Jensen said. It gives me such great joy to bring just a little joy into the hearts of others.

What the south county community needs and the nation, too, more than anything else is more "star spangled ladies" like Alice Jensen of Port St. Lucie.

ommunity celebration as resounding success

ST. LUCIE--From sea to sea Americans celebrated their bicentennial.

Port St. Lucie, a lot of hard work and dedication by many residents added in a spectacular birthday for the community.

Jack Fradd, who headed up the Bicentennial Committee, pre- just last week that July 3 would be day in Port St. Lucie.

as very rewarding to see the s turn out," said Art Coulon who past two years has served as chairman.

love things like this. Perhaps I a hick at heart, but to me this is small town USA. It's just part this whole world is all about told the Mirror Monday.

he was quick to give credit to all the individuals and organizations who participated, he did express a special thank you to the Port St. Lucie Lions Club.

They were my right hand in assembling the parade at the Marina and directing traffic," Coulon said, adding it would be impossible to thank all those individuals who helped put the whole thing over.

Recalling the days that used to be, Coulon said the parade is in its 14th or 14th year and each year gets bigger and better.

Back when these first started it was nothing more than several cars driving slowly down the parade route and everyone waving. This year we had 70 floats entered in the parade," Coulon said.

The success of the chicken barbecue served during the afternoon by members of the Port St. Lucie Yacht Club could readily be evidenced by the 400 residents who enjoyed the meal.

It was just great," said Commodore Nelson Hawes, adding that well over $500 will be turned over to the Port St. Lucie Community Center as a result of the successful venture.

Hawes joined in praising the people of this south county community for their help and patronage.

The commodore gave credit to his committee and to George Jacobs and Herb Tschudy, both representatives of the Community Center, who helped coordinate the affair.

Those serving on the Yacht Club committee were Bob and Lillian Corcoran, Neta and Ward Davis, Maxine and Thornton Smith, Paul and Mary Sheehan, Mike and Lee Reeb, Robert and Grace Cusano, Jim and Betty Hall.

Aside from that we had several extras show up and give us a helping hand throughout the afternoon who deserve a big thank you," Hawes said.

Then there was the fireworks display held at Sportsman Park Saturday evening. For blocks surrounding the park there were hundreds and hundreds of spectators who brought blankets and lawn chairs for a relaxed viewing.

Although the firing squad comprised of Mel Broun, Henry Moore and Phil Roth experienced some difficulties throughout the two-hour show, the display was justifiably ranked as "the best ever."

As City Administrator Elmer Cox and Doug Stout, safety director, said Tuesday morning, "It takes a lot of courage to set fire to a fuse that is only about one inch in length. Those fellows deserve a lot of credit for their bravery."

And credit aside, the oohs and aaahs from all the shiny eyed children were reward enough for the dedicated men.

There is little doubt that the residents of Port St. Lucie celebrated their country's bicentennial year in grand style.

City supports GDC on water

PORT ST. LUCIE -- It was during a special meeting held Tuesday that the city council passed a resolution endorsing General Development Corporation's application now pending with the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District, FCD, for a permit to proceed with the development of East Port St. Lucie.

The resolution will be in the hands of the FCD prior to the public hearing scheduled for Thursday, July 8 at 10 a.m. in the Martin Board of Indian River Commissioners' Office.

The resolution was approved after council members listened carefully as city officials outlined and reviewed the proposed development of 4,300 to 5,000 acres with emphasis on surface water management.

AARP-Mirror project plans communications

PORT ST. LUCIE--The possibility of greater communications for members of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and the members of the fledgling group in Port St. Lucie was discussed last week in a meeting between the steering committee of AARP and Mirror editor Dick Campbell.

President Frederic Wiggin, Vice President Thomas Dolan, Maurice Arbuck, John Orange and Morgan Jones met with the editor at the Mirror offices to discuss planning for news coverage and project support.

The group will report back to the meeting of the AARP on progress that could include discount subscriptions to The Mirror for members of AARP.

"We recognize that The Port St. Lucie Mirror is the only legal newspaper published in Port St. Lucie for Port St. Lucie residents and if we are to make our community grow to the benefit of Port St. Lucie residents and AARP members, we must support our local newspaper," Wiggin said.

Campbell pledged that whether or not an agreement is worked out on circulation promotion through AARP, the newspaper will continue to offer full news and feature coverage of the activities of AARP including a regular column on the club prepared by an AARP publicity chairman.

Nergard proposes new legislative dates

JENSEN BEACH--As he steps down from ten years of service to the people of this area, Chuck Nergard is outlining his thoughts on what might keep some legislators in office and proposes streamlining the legislature as the answer.

Nergard told the Jensen Kiwanis Club Monday that fifty of the 120 members of the Florida House of Representatives will not run again this year, and cited the number of days away from home as the main reason.

"Over the past 9½ years, I have been away from home for 120 to 180 days a year. That is the number of days my children go to school. My wife and I felt that our children should have both a father and a mother at home," Nergard said.

He added, "The sixty day session is downright ridiculous. It doesn't properly serve the people of Florida."

The entire legislature boiled down to the last week of the legislature, when "too many bills are passed that we don't know anything about. They come so fast, and we can't properly read or debate them, much less tell the people at home about them."

Nergard said the state doesn't need a full time legislature, but suggested that the state constitutional revision committee to be named by Governor Reubin Askew next year, look into having the legislature meet in session one week out of every month, and three days in committee hearings during each month to accomplish the state business.

They could take off in July and December, and save more money, he said.

Such an arrangement would reduce the number of days from 180 days a year to 80 days a year. He suggested that the month of February be set aside for the budget, which would give the counties and the school boards enough time to plan their budgets with available funding.

Nergard outlined major legislation passed this year, and said of 4 000 bills introduced 577 were passed.

"Of those the people would probably be better off without 500 of them. I'd like to see us pass maybe 50 bills a year."

He said that the legislature made major steps forward in consumer oriented bills, passing an eyeglass advertising bill that should save consumers $10 million a year; a generic drug bill that should save up to $40 million to consumers a year, while protecting the right of physicians to specify a brand name drug; and a malpractice insurance bill that would both lower doctor malpractice insurance cost and the cost of medical services to the people.

His biggest disappointment, Nergard said, was in the failure of the district senators to support a millage rollback bill to hold local county, city and school board increases to ten percent of the previous year taxes.

"Any government body at any level shouldn't have more than a ten percent increase in any year," he said.

He called the budget of the state this year "conservative," with a seven percent increase projected with no new taxes. He said the income figure was conservative as April tax collections showed a fifteen percent increase over last year's April figures. He added that the state treasury should end up with a surplus this year.

Community Fund seeks opinions on joining with Martin County

JENSEN BEACH--The possibility of Jensen Beach-Rio Community Fund joining with the Martin County United Way will be discussed at a meeting of interested persons at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce building Monday at 7:30 p.m.

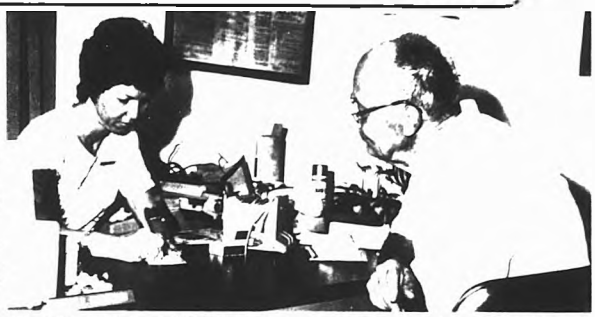
"We want the opinions and ideas of everyone, and any person who wants to give us input is invited to the meeting," said Gene Peer, community fund president.

Representatives of various local agencies are also being invited to attend and respond to debate on the future of the local drive.

Captains who participated last year in the fund drive are also invited.

"We want to have a meeting of the people of Jensen Beach so that we can get an idea of what the people want," Peer said.

The board of the community fund will be meeting with representatives of the Martin County United Way on Tuesday to discuss a possible merger.



SIGN HERE--Steve Salamon, 2631 N.E. Myrtle St., Jensen Beach, was one of 20 persons registering to vote last Saturday at the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce office. Elsie Hutton, deputy supervisor of elections for Martin County, was at the chamber office from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. registering voters in the area.

Samaritans start drive for funds

JENSEN BEACH--The Jensen Area Samaritans have started a fund drive to raise money to furnish the new Ambulance House.

The Ambulance House came to the Samaritans absolutely free of charge. Realtor Ransom Tilton donated the property in the name of Pine Lake Village, architect Paul Henderson prepared the plans, and Martin County provided $32,741 for Bois Construction, Inc. to erect the building. Completion is scheduled for early September.

The Samaritans have set a goal of $6,000 to completely furnish the facility. Needed are a stove, refrigerator, water cooler, two folding beds, TV, folding chairs, folding tables, blackboard, lawn mower, dishes, pouch, electric door opener, bulletin board, desk and chair, and other items.

The Samaritans provide free ambulance service to Jensen Beach, Rio, Sewall's Point, Ocean Breeze Park, South River Shores, Hutchinson Island, Eden and Walton.

Anyone wishing to make a tax deductible donation, send a check to: Building Fund, P.O. Box 182, Jensen Beach, FL 33457. Anyone wishing to donate any of the needed items, call the Building Committee Chairman at 334-1805.

For free ambulance service any time, day or night, call Martin County Civil Defense at 287-1577.

Development request is delayed

JENSEN BEACH--More discussion is required before approval is given to a proposed Planned Development, Martin County Commissioners decided Tuesday.

Developers of Indian River Plantation formerly Trees Bar, SE A1A and McArthur Estates and want preliminary development plan approval and zoning changes to get work under way.

However, commissioners were not satisfied with the plans presented and were concerned with setback lines and continued the hearing to the July 23 meeting.

Developers were seeking permits to get work started on their golf course and lake.

In other action, commissioners approved a request by Fred Stein to zoning changes for his business. Land Rio Marina B-2 and B-1 to B-2A to place the marina in the proper zoning classification.

Regional group moves on

JENSEN BEACH--Work on the formation of a new four county regional planning council is expected to begin soon.

Representatives of the state planning commission are making the circuit of the four counties now to discuss the groundwork that needs to be done, Martin County Administrator Jack Noble said.

Lt. Gov. Jim Williams approved creation of the new planning district which includes Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach Counties.

Noble said officials of the four counties are expected to meet soon to lay the groundwork for the regional planning district to take effect October 1.

"This group will have to study things like how to finance the regional planning staff, how to set up the planning council, and how many members it will have, and other related questions," Noble said.

He noted that the state of Florida will provide $34,206 of the budget and the remainder must be contributed by the four counties.

GDC project

Savannas water is approved

JENSEN BEACH--A water management plan by General Development Corp. (GDC), which covers 1,170 acres near the savannas, has been approved by the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District (FCD) board.

The company's plan has aroused the ire of some environmentalists who say it would damage the sensitive savanna area.

General Development officials said they have contracts for 2,600 homesites in the area to be known as East Port St. Lucie, which is in south St. Lucie County just across the county line from Martin County and east of U.S. 1 and south of Walton Road.

Work on the project is expected to begin as soon as possible so owners of the lots can start construction of homes, according to GDC officials.

The FCD board, meeting last week in Fort Pierce, accepted some of the modifications urged by environmentalists and FCD staff.

Arthur J. Harper Jr., vice president in charge of environmental regulations for GDC, said the modifications monitoring of water quality by the Department of Environmental Regulations and FCD, were largely refinements of the plan.

The water management plan calls for discharging surface water into the savanna area and the North Fork of the St. Lucie River.

GDC officials said the water management plan was designed to protect the savannas from damaging runoffs and to maintain the water quality.

Also, the plan provides for drainage into swale ditches or greenways rather than direct discharges into waterways.

Dr. Walter Stokes of Martin County, who was one of the leaders in the Save the Savannas movement, said the plan "is modified, is good."

More than a dozen representatives of the Martin and St. Lucie Counties conservation alliances attended the hearing.

The two conservation groups took opposing view of the permit application. The Martin County group gave conditional approval while the St. Lucie alliance opposed it.

The Indian River Trust Freeholders Association and some individual residents of Fort Pierce offered the bulk of opposition.

No quorum at meeting

JENSEN BEACH--There wasn't a quorum present for Monday night's meeting of the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors, but the ones present talked about the success of the July 4 activities.

And directors are going to start planning for next year's July 4 activities soon.

President L. D. Kirkpatrick appointed Walter Reshl director and accepted the resignation of Al Tomaszewski.

Candidates file entry

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County candidates for political office have until noon July 26 to qualify, and already 20 persons have tossed their hats in the ring.

The first primary will be Sept. 3 and the second primary will be held Sept. 28, and the voter registration books will be closed Sept. 24 for the primaries.

Candidates who have qualified include newcomers to the political arena, office holders seeking second terms and veterans.

One of the veteran courthouse office holders is Tax Collector Alvin Andrews, Democrat, who has qualified for a fifth successive term.

Andrews won a financial term in 1962 and was re-elected in three successive State-wide terms in 1964, 1968 and 1972.

Others who qualified by Tuesday July 11 include:

James Holt, Republican, sheriff; Ralph C. Ward, Sr., Democrat, sheriff; Frank Wacha, Democrat, District 1; Mack Worley, Democrat; Lavon Hagwell, Republican, District 1; Trudy Bethard, Republican, District 3; Thomas Kenny III, Democrat, District 3, all candidates for county commission.

James Navitsky, Republican, and Dr. A. F. Stewart, Democrat, both school superintendent candidates. David Cran, Jr., Republican, District 4; Esther Kibbee, Democrat, District 4; Steve Calvert, Democrat, District 2; Carolyn Lichty, Republican, District 2; Jon Maszkowski, Republican, District 2, all candidates for the school board.

Edmund Gaynor, Republican property appraiser; Sandy Randolph, supervisor of elections; Louise Isaacs, Republican, and Lettie Zarnits, Democrat, both candidates for clerk of the circuit court; Stewart Hershey, county judge.

Sea Turtle meeting is set

JENSEN BEACH--The Florida and Interregional Conference on sea turtles will meet at Florida Institute of Technology (FIT), Jensen Beach Campus, July 24-25.

Sponsored by the Florida Department of Natural Resources Marine Research Laboratory (MRL), more than 80 persons are expected to attend.

The goal of the conference is to evaluate interregional efforts to study, maintain and enlarge sea turtle populations and plan future work.

The field station of MRL at Jensen Beach has been actively involved in a program to sustain the threatened sea turtle population.

Eggs are removed from endangered nests hatched under controlled conditions, and the young turtles are then reared in pens for about one year. They are released into the sea from a protected beach.

He has worked more than 12 years in the insurance business and noted that insurance rates have become a problem of enormous proportions, whether you're a businessman with skyrocketing workmen's compensation premiums, a doctor paying $1,000 a year for malpractice protection or the typical motorist whose bill for compulsary liability coverage has increased an average of more than 30 per cent in just 18 months.

The final point is that despite it all insurance companies are having one of the worst years in their history in Florida. There is clearly something seriously and fundamentally wrong.

Airport noise survey is made

JENSEN BEACH—Grumman Aerospace Corporation is taking steps to implement noise abatement procedures at Martin County Witham Field.

In a report on its noise survey, Grumman notes the procedures recommended include use of preferential runways, changed flight patterns on take-off and suggested power profiles for jet aircraft on take-off.

Grumman made the noise survey at the request of the Martin County Commission.

The report found that jet aircraft "create a significantly higher noise level" than light aircraft, but noted the frequency of jet aircraft using the field is much lower than for light aircraft.

The flight patterns recommended for the jets will reduce the number of residents exposed to the higher noise levels, and will reduce the noise of these aircrafts to the minimum level that can be realistically anticipated.

Nergard proposes new legislative dates

JENSEN BEACH–As he steps down from ten years of service to the people of this area, Chuck Nergard is outlining his thoughts on what might keep some legislators in office, and proposes streamlining the legislature as the answer.

Nergard told the Jensen Kiwanis Club Monday that fifty of the 120 members of the Florida House of Representatives will not run again this year, and cited the number of days away from home as the main reason.

"Over the past 9½ years, I have been away from home for 120 to 180 days a year. That is the number of days my children go to school. My wife and I felt that our children should have both a father and a mother at home," Nergard said.

He added, "The sixty day session is downright ridiculous. It doesn't properly serve the people of Florida."

The entire legislature boiled down to the last week of the legislature, when "too many bills are passed that we don't know anything about. They come so fast, and we can't properly read or debate them, much less tell the people at home about them."

Nergard said the state doesn't need a full-time legislature, but suggested that the state constitutional revision committee to be named by Governor Reubin Askew next year, look into having the legislature meet in session one week out of every month, and three days in committee hearings during each month to accomplish the state business.

"They could take off in July and December, and save more money," he said.

Such an arrangement would reduce the number of days from 180 days a year to 80 days a year. He suggested that the month of February be set aside for the budget, which would give the counties and the school boards enough time to plan their budgets with available funding.

Nergard outlined major legislation passed this year, and said of 4,000 bills introduced, 577 were passed.

"Of those, the people would probably be better off without 500 of them. I'd like to see us pass maybe 50 bills a year."

He said that the legislature made major steps forward in consumer oriented bills, passing an eyeglass advertising bill that should save consumers $10 million a year, a generic drug bill that should save up to $40 million to consumers a year, while protecting the right of physicians to specify a brand name drug, and a malpractice insurance bill that would both lower doctor malpractice insurance cost and the cost of medical services to the people.

His biggest disappointment, Nergard said, was in the failure of the district senators to support a millage rollback bill to hold local county, city and school board increases to ten percent of the previous year taxes.

"Any government body at any level shouldn't have more than a ten percent increase in any year," he said.

He called the budget of the state this year "conservative," with a seven percent increase projected with no new taxes. He said the income figure was conservative as April tax collections showed a fifteen percent increase over last year's April figures. He added that the state treasury should end up with a surplus this year.

Work on the project is expected to begin as soon as possible so owners of the lots can start construction of homes, according to GDC officials.

The FCD board, meeting last week in Fort Pierce, accepted some of the modifications urged by environmentalists and FCD staff.

Arthur L. Harper, Jr., vice president in charge of environmental regulations for GDC, said the modifications – monitoring of water quality by the Department of Environmental Regulations and FCD were largely refinements of the plan.

The water management plan calls for discharging surface water into the savanna area and the North Fork of the St. Lucie river.

GDC officials said the water management plan was designed to protect the savannas from damaging runoffs and to maintain the water quality.

Also, the plan provides for drainage into swale ditches or greenways rather than direct discharges into waterways.

Dr. Walter Stokes of Martin County, who was one of the leaders in the Save the Savannas movement, said the plan, as modified, "is good."

More than a dozen representatives of the Martin and St. Lucie Counties conservation alliances attended the hearing.

The two conservation groups took opposing view of the permit application. The Martin County group gave conditional approval while the St. Lucie alliance opposed it.

The Indian River Drive Freeholders Association and some individual residents of Fort Pierce offered the bulk of opposition.

Where, but where?

Editorial Comment
BY ALICE HICKEY

PORT ST. LUCIE–Last year the parade chairman for the July 4 festivities was presented a resolution, signed by the Mayor, for his outstanding efforts in organizing the annual parade.

This year the same parade chairman, Art Coulon, organized an even bigger and better parade in honor of our nation's 200th birthday and was fired by the acting mayor of this south county community.

Where, but where, could this possibly happen other than in the City of Port St. Lucie?

Vice-mayor Frank Rose, who was acting mayor during the two week absence of Mayor Schuyler Sharpe, usurped the authority of that position to fire Coulon from the city's bicentennial committee.

Rose took issue over the fact that the mayor's car was assigned to the twenty-first position in the July 3 parade.

In 1975 Mayor Sharpe was in 12th position in a considerably shorter parade.

Regardless of the fact that the mayor's car was positioned to lead the city's entries in the parade, Rose maintained he should have been in one of the first three positions and considered the incident to be an "affront to the Mayor of the City and, indeed, an insult to the citizens."

Discounting the efforts to make the festivities a community affair, Rose was extremely critical that the Grand Marshal and the parade chairman resided outside the city and backed up his criticism by claiming the City of Port St. Lucie had paid all the expenses.

The only expense involved was the $1,000 advanced to the Committee by the city, an amount which was returned in full within a few months.

"The fact they (the bicentennial committee) returned the money to the city is beside the point. If the advance was made, that is all that matters," Rose claimed.

Rose has labeled the bicentennial parade as a "cheap political tactic" pulled off by Councilman Bill McChesney. In support of this claim, Rose cites the positioning of McChesney's convertible toward the front of the parade and was critical of McChesney for serving on the bicentennial committee.

Adm. John Fradd (USN Ret.), who was appointed to head the committee at its inception, has challenged Rose's authority and said, "Until such time as the City Council orders otherwise, I have asked Mr. Coulon to continue to serve on the committee."

Rose said in rejoinder, "I have the authority to fire Admiral Fradd should I see fit."

Whether or not the City Council will see fit to determine if the firing of a parade manager fell within the realm of authority assumed by the vice mayor remains to be seen, but meanwhile the City of Port St. Lucie has once again taken its place in the center ring.

Perhaps, after this matter is settled, the city will get to work on such items as the 1976-77 budget, local police protection, zoning and other matters of equal importance.

Regional group on

JENSEN BEACH–Work on the formation of a new four-county regional planning council is expected to begin soon.

"Representatives of the state planning commission are making the circuit of the four counties now to discuss the groundwork that needs to be done," Martin County Administrator Jack Noble said.

(St. Gov. Jim Williams approved creation of the new planning district which includes Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach Counties.

Noble said officials of the four counties are expected to meet soon to lay the groundwork for the regional planning district to take effect October 1.

This group will have to study things like how to finance the regional planning staff, how to set up the planning council, and how many members it will have, and other related questions," Noble said.

He noted that the state of Florida will provide $34,200 of the budget and the remainder must be contributed by the four counties.

In the summer, more than the temperature goes up. Here's something you can do about it.

You've probably noticed that the temperature isn't the only thing that rises in the summertime. There's also your electric bill.

The cold hard fact as to why, is your air conditioner. Your air conditioning costs could very well account for half of your summer bill. For example, last year the average electric bill in April came to about $24.75. That average bill increased to $41.23 in July.

In short, your summer bill increases primarily because you use more electricity to keep cool.

But there are some things you can do to help keep your bill down while the temperature goes up.

First and most importantly don't overcool. Set your thermostat as close to 78 degrees as is comfortable for you.

Weather strip your doors and windows. It's amazing how much warm air can seep in through even the slightest crack.

Shade your windows with awnings, shutters or reflective film.

Use light colors on your walls and roof to reflect the sun. The lighter the color the less the heat. The less heat the less your bill during the summer months.

Shade your airconditioning unit with shrubbery, but don't block the air flow. That way it'll operate more efficiently. At FPL we'd like you to know what can happen to your bill during the summer, because we'd also like you to know what you can do about it.

Former commissioner is candidate

JENSEN BEACH--Approximately 30 minutes before the noon Tuesday, July 20, filing deadline Dr. William G. Myers walked into Circuit Court Clerk Louise Isaacs' office and qualified for his old Martin County Commission seat.

Dr. Myers, 45, filed for District 3 post, the position he held from 1968 to 1972 when he did not seek re-election.

A Hobe Sound physician since 1961, he has been active in Martin County politics for several years, serving as chairman of the Martin County Republican Executive Committee from 1965 to 1969.

Asked why he has returned to the political arena, Dr. Myers said, "For the past two or three months I've had many individuals ask me to become a candidate."

He noted that in the past four years there have been a lot of county regulations imposed that are not necessary.

"I'm the father of county planning," Dr. Myers said. "We don't have to be a Ft. Lauderdale, a Miami, or even a West Palm Beach.

"We want to keep the quality of life here that we have," he said.

Two topics expected to arise at the session are the number of voting representatives for each county, and the representation of municipalities within the counties.

The new council, which is still unnamed, is due to start functioning in October.

Contributions by each county based on guidelines provided by state planners, include St. Lucie, $11,000; Palm Beach, $76,500; Indian River, $7,400; and Martin County, $7,600.

The state is expected to contribute $34,200, basing its funding at 16 cents per person in the four county area.

State planners, meeting with area officials recently, said the new council will have two planners, a secretary and a director.

Authority to create the new council came from Lt. Gov. James Williams, who ruled that the northern members, Martin, St. Lucie and Palm Beach Counties, withdraw from the South Florida Regional Planning Council, and Indian River County withdraw from the Central Florida Regional Planning Council.

While Martin and St. Lucie Counties were designated members of the South Florida Planning Council, neither have had representatives on the governing board, and have not paid dues.

Representatives of the four counties took their request for creation of the new council to Williams more than a year ago, but he only acted on it last month.

Representatives of the four counties will hash out the organizational details at the Martin County session.

$5.9 million bond

Toll on park bridge $4.30

JENSEN BEACH--Martin County's secondary road fund cannot support a bond issue to build a bridge to the St. Lucie Inlet State Park, according to the Department of Transportation (DOT).

If a bond issue were to be paid off by tolls on the bridge, each carload of visitors at the park would have to pay approximately $4.30 to get to the park by bridge, DOT bond development director Sam Draper wrote in his report to Commissioner Maggie Hurchalla.

The out of town tourists going to the park might pay that $4.30, but I'm not sure very many residents would pay that much to go to the park," Mrs. Hurchalla said.

At the request of the Rocky Point Homeowners Association, Mrs. Hurchalla wrote to DOT asking for information on the feasibility of a bond issue to build a bridge to the state park.

In his letter, Draper estimated that a $4.9 million construction and right of way cost for the bridge access would require a $5.9 million bond issue if it decided to rely on its state gas tax revenue for financing. He said the county's bonding capacity was impaired because of annual $279,000 payments from the gas tax fund to pay off a 1963 bond issue for bridges to Hutchinson Island.

A "somewhat referendum on a bond issue financed by tolls would not be feasible, Draper said, because engineering, traffic and other technical studies would require at least eight months to a year.

The minimum timetable for bond election, final design, bids and completed construction, assuming that the timetable starts with the beginning of the engineering studies, would be four years, according to Draper.

Draper said he made his calculations based on data supplied by Mrs. Hurchalla. He said that further traffic and revenue studies should be made to get a more accurate picture of toll needed to pay for a bridge.

When the 650 acre park was purchased by the state in 1969, at a cost of $2.6 million, plans were made to build a high level bridge over the Intracoastal Waterways to give the park access from the mainland.

The bridge was to span Great Pocket from the deadend of Cove Road in the Port Salerno area.

A consulting firm is expected to be selected and begin preliminary studies in four to six weeks, according to state officials.

The bridge vs. a ferry as a possible way of reaching the park has stirred up much controversy in the county.

Proponents of the ferry point out that the environment of the park is too fragile to permit access by automobiles.

However there is a lot of support for a bridge, especially since the state announced plans to hire a consulting firm to study the park property.

The Rocky Point Homeowners Association recently voted 93-3 in favor of a bridge as opposed to a ferry.

Community fund is joining Martin County United Way

JENSEN BEACH--Lack of interest, demands of the Samaritan Ambulance group, and a split in the Jensen Beach Rec. Community Fund board of directors is leading to the dissolution of the local driver in favor of combining into the Martin County United Way.

The Jensen group voted Monday night to continue in a split 3-2 vote on a resolution to merge into "the new professional United Way." Martin County United Way is raising a $12,000 per year professional fund raiser this year to supplant the drives according to Gerald Mellick, president.

It was the idea of the Samaritan Ambulance organization that dealt the final blow to the local drive. The Samaritans demanded, in a letter to Gene Peel, president of the fund drive, that the drive be independent from the county drive and that the Samaritans be allowed to keep any checks or donations sent directly to them, and not have the amounts deducted from the annual budget sum asked for by the Samaritans in the drive.

The Samaritans violated the local community fund regulations recently by holding its own fund drive for furnishing the new Samaritan ambulance building. Under the fund agreement with agencies, the fund drive is responsible for raising any monies needed by any agency.

Peel said Tuesday, "We have dissolved the old Jensen Beach Rec. Community Fund."

Samaritans get $1,000

JENSEN BEACH--Donations to the Jensen Area Samaritans building fund has reached $1,000, according to George Krauss.

Samaritans are seeking $6,000 to furnish the new Ambulance House which is being constructed on south Savanna Road.

"We are accepting donations and items that can be used at the house: stoves, refrigerator, etc.," Krauss, night shift superintendent, said.

"Donations may be sent to Building Fund, Post Office Box 182," Krauss said. "Anyone wishing to donate any of the needed items, call 334-1364."

The Ambulance House came in the Samaritans free of charge. Realtor Ransom Tilton donated the property in the name of Pine Lake Village, architect Paul Henderson prepared the plans, and Martin County provided $22,741 for Bob Construction Inc. to erect the building. Completion is set for early September.

Courtesy cards are available

JENSEN BEACH--Courtesy cards for residents of Martin County only for admission at the Gilbert's Bar House of Refuge from now until June of 1977 may be purchased at either the House of Refuge or at Elliott Museum.

The cost is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children 6-13, children under six are free.

Animal for adoption

JENSEN BEACH--Each week there are some special animals for adoption at the Animal Rescue League Shelter on A1A. This week is no exception.

There is a playful nine month old terrier female named Jackie and a good natured shepherd dog.

And there is a female collie mix that is nine months old and a two year old bloodhound named Casey.

There is a small gray poodle that shelter officials say is a "great lap dog." And there is a male sheep dog mix that would be a great pal for a young boy.

A male black and white house cat also is at the shelter.

BIG SAILFISH--J.O. Jones caught this seven-foot long sailfish last Tuesday in the Gulfstream while fishing aboard the Sundance with his son Britt and Merle Profitt. The party lost one big marlin, and saw thirty-foot whale sharks on the trip.

Enrollment is limited at Academy

Howey-in-the-Hills–Many Howey Academy summer school students will continue successful learning experiences by pre-enrolling for the fall term which begins September 13.

Academy officials urge immediate inquiry by all prospective students as enrollment for the September 12 term is limited.

Headmaster William Branyon said all recreational activities popular this summer will be continued in the fall, including field trips to Disney, Circus and Sea Worlds, Atlantic fishing, and picnics at state and national parks.

"Indeed, fall activities will be considerably expanded with the seasonal continuation of interscholastic sports for boys and girls, and renewed club activities for special interests ranging from hobbies and academics to religion and student government," he said.

Howey Academy stresses its academic curriculum which is geared to varying the preparation for college entrance to a range of student choices from large universities to small community and private colleges. Howey also offers a more general curriculum for students preparing for business and career schools.

aving lived in Martin County for 22 s I can't help but wonder where the ssive" attitude of the County mmissioners went.

ere was a time when if the general a majority of the people in the a wanted a project, the commis- ers would find ways to work it out. It s now that Commissioner Maggy halla enjoys finding new reasons the people should be deprived of wants and needs.

mmissioner Hurchalla has stated she will fight tooth and nail to see 1-95 is west of the turnpike by trying et the state to buy the Loxahatchee e Corridor. Yet, even though an whelming majority of the voters in district favor a bridge to the St. e Inlet State Park, she goes out of way to find reasons why a bridge ldn't be built.

e isn't fighting tooth and nail for e who elected her. She isn't fighting th and nail to find ways to give the ple what they want and need. Her th and nail fight is strictly for her nal interest group.

e have an election coming up this r. Unfortunately, Commissioner rchalla won't be on the ballot. We can, ever, make sure that those who do elected in November are the didates who will fight tooth and nail the people instead of fighting tooth nail against the majority's needs wants.

Venture Out

VENTURE OUT NEWS
BY WILLARD AUCH

Well, last week's request for some newsy news paid a small dividend. A nice letter from Toad and Luch Bowling reads:

"Lucy and I are 'grounded' for the summer. Two grandchildren from California for 3 months. And their mom and pop are due in the 18th for a month.

"The Florida 'estate' (pad) at V.O. is my project. The screen room, carpeting and furniture we installed this past winter was needed very much, so Lucy kept track of every penny spent. When we got back to Charleston, W.Va. on Sunday, April 18, she could hardly wait until Monday morning to start phoning carpenters, plumbers, electricians, painters and carpet companies. Her project is the house in Charleston. She had everything done in our basement she could think of. Keeping track of every penny cost. When her project was finally finished she matched expenses of the Florida outlay real close, she lacked 13 cents spending what I did on the pad, so I gave her a 13 cent postage stamp and borrowed it back so I could mail this letter."

A letter from Gloria and Derwood Dickinson up Michigan way gives us some news from that area.

"We certainly enjoy the Venture Out news, and decided it was about time we contributed our bit.

"We have had a very busy 3 months since we left Venture Out. We moved into another house on our farm, and had a sun-room built on the back of it. The room is all windows and reminds us of our porch in Florida. It's even the same size. We have also planted new shrubs, a few trees and flowers.

"In the farming, we have in over 500 acres of corn and 40 acres of oats, and have cultivated all the corn.

"A couple of weeks ago we were very pleasantly surprised to have Edna and Andy Wilston, from Huntsville, Ontario, visit us and spend the night.

"Our son Larry and wife Janet, from St. Louis, Mo., just returned home after spending a two week vacation with us.

"Hope you and Louise have a nice summer, and we will see you in the fall."

A word from Marnie Paynter tells us she is improving. Her voice had that wonderful, bubbly lilt to it, so we know she is well on the mend. Bet Curt is happy...he never did like housework and it's hard to imagine him in an apron.

Our niece and nephew, Becky and Mike Zimmermann, are spending their summer vacation with us. They are from northern Illinois.

Fran Tener reports:

Selma Valaro is enjoying her stay in N. Miami, visiting old friends and planning to locate in that area. She has been to some theatre productions and a concert. Misses all the Venture Outers and the beach, but now that I 95 is open almost all the way up, she says it will be a cinch to visit. Sends her best to everyone.

Yvonne and Bud Wiencke are in New Jersey working hard on their property and getting much pleasure from their children and grandchildren. The grandchildren enjoy swimming in the Wiencke's pool and we know they all will be very good swimmers using their grandparents as examples.

Thelma and Max Dickey are enjoying their summer in Indiana, and also at their place up in Michigan where they go for frequent weekends.

Dick and Edith Painter and glad to be back home. Said Florida weather and roads beat New England in all ways.

Kay and Bob Smyth came home on Friday from Virginia and have been busy getting yard and house back to usual perfect condition.

Glad to report that Howard Koepka is recovering very well from an operation. He was in hospital in Hialeah, Florida.

Edna and Allen Ryan and Una Webb drove up from Miami to visit the Shavers on Thursday and had lunch with them and Sally Peters of Rio.

Betty Jones, Fran Tener and Jessie Shaver made another day-long excursion visiting gift and craft shops to find ideas for the fall bazaar. This time they had lunch in Vero at the Driftwood.

Hope that others are coming up with ideas for the bazaar. Contact Betty Jones.

ity reviews 1976-77 budget

T. LUCIE--The first draft of 's 1976-77 budget got a thorough ver when it was presented to members at the Tuesday op session.

the $763,238.00 document nted an increase of $162,188.00 he previous year's budget. men lost no time in asking ns and trimming a few corners d there.

f the first items to be scrutinized $92,425 requested for Sportsman and Recreation. This figure nted a sizable increase over the the city budgeted for the facility 76. After going over the park request as submitted by the ion department, it took less than inutes for the council to trim the down to $40,000. In addition, the d again this year request $25,000 from the St. Lucie County-Fort Pierce Recreation Board for park improvements. (Last year, $25,000 was requested and $14,000 received.)

The $40,000 figure is more in keeping with the five year plan for improving the park facilities as recommended previously by the city's planning and zoning board.

The city will also file an application within the week to secure funding from the Department of Natural Resources to provide picnic tables, fireplaces, shelters and restroom facilities at the park.

The budget figures, as amended by the council, include such items as press box, storage area and restrooms at the Babe Ruth field, one groundskeeper, construction and fencing of two tennis courts with lights, resurfacing and enlarging two parking lots, purchase and installation of a flag pole, and payment of one-half of the electric bills for the Little League and Optimist baseball fields, and the mowing expenses.

Approximately $50,000 increase was attributed to services contracted with the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department. This increase includes the new patrol officer, the city's new police car and, while the latest figure submitted by Sheriff Lanie Norvell's office indicated an annual budget of $183,000, the figure is being negotiated.

All in all, councilmembers were able to find only minor discrepancies in the proposed budget and complimented the city administrator for a complicated job well done.

It is expected the next draft of the budget will be presented at the next regular meeting of the City Council July 27.

The deadline for submitting the completed budget is September 30, while the final date for setting the millage rate is August 1.

No problems are anticipated in meeting the deadline dates, according to Yaw.

VOLUNTEERS--Getting volunteers isn't the easiest project in town, but Mrs. Florence Dabney, right, apparently hit the jackpot Tuesday. Mrs. Ruth McDaniel and Mrs. Nina Keating volunteered to man the Port St. Lucie Community Center's snack bar while Mrs. Dabney arranged hats long enough to run the Tuesday bingo game at the Center.

RPC will meet July 28

PORT ST. LUCIE--Martin County will host the formative meeting for the newly approved District Regional Planning Council.

Representatives of the four county council--Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach Counties--will meet at 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 28, at the County Administrative Center, Stuart.

Two topics expected to arise at the session are the number of voting representatives for each county and the representation of municipalities within the counties.

The new council, which is still unnamed, is due to start functioning in October.

Contributions by each county based on guidelines provided by state planners, include St. Lucie, $11,000; Palm Beach, $76,500; Indian River, $7,000; and Martin County, $7,000.

The state is expected to contribute $34,500, basing its funding at 16 cents per person in the four county area.

State planners, meeting with area officials recently, said the new council will have two planners, a secretary and a director.

Top ranked stars enter junior vet tourney

PORT ST. LUCIE--Early entries in the 1976 Sandpiper Bay junior vet tournament next week indicate a full field of top ranked Florida players will participate, it was learned Tuesday.

Allen Quay, number two junior vet player in Florida of Fort Pierce, and Lex Hester, fifth ranked player, have already entered, and it is believed they will be facing the late entry of such leaders as Roger Pharr (6) and Tom Bartlett (1) in the match.

Other ranked players already entered include John Kopfle, Joliet entry (8), Charles Dunbar (5), and Bart Bissegger (4).

In the women's junior vet entries, third ranked Ruth Harnett of Palm Beach Gardens and Carol Harris (2) have signed up. It is possible that late entries will include Jean Evans (4), Diane Hughes (3), and Judy Colton (5), along with other ranked players.

Women's doubles should include state ranked teams including third ranked Judy Campbell and Jean Scibel.

An open mixed doubles event is planned.

Play will begin at noon on Friday, July 30, with finals on Sunday, according to Phil Ranger, pro.

Rec funds are sought by city

PORT ST. LUCIE--It is that time of year again when local officials take computers in hand and try to determine how much of the local tax dollar can be returned to their areas.

In keeping pace with the times, the City of Port St. Lucie has issued an appeal to the Fort Pierce-St. Lucie County Recreation Board in the amount of $25,000 for the continuing capital improvements at Spartman Park. Although the city requested the same amount for the current fiscal year, only $14,000 was allotted.

In urging that the request be granted, Mayor Schuyler Sharpe pointed out that the City of Port St. Lucie and General Development Corporation contribute handsomely to the ad valorem taxes collected by St. Lucie County.

In view of the sizeable revenue yielded by these two entities, we believe $25,000 is only a fair and reasonable appropriation to assist with the improvements of this important recreational facility," the Mayor said.

Auxiliary police start July 26

PORT ST. LUCIE--An eleven man team, all certified auxiliary deputies, will start their duties in the Port St. Lucie area July 26, according to an announcement made by St. Lucie County Sheriff Lanine Norvell during the Tuesday council workshop session.

The eleven man force will be loaned to Port St. Lucie by the Sheriff's Department.

The auxiliary force will serve in the area until such time as the local auxiliary members have completed the eighty four hour course in law enforcement.

According to Norvell, the local ten member force will start training on August 31 at Indian River Community College. They will attend school twenty hours a week for a four week period and will be ready to assume their duties by the end of September.

Seven of the ten men who will start training next month are local residents.

In accordance with the rules and regulations of the State Police Standards, the auxiliary police force will have primary duties and responsibilities in the field of prevention and detection of crime and the enforcement of the penal, traffic or highway laws.

The voluntary, part-time auxiliary force will function under the supervision of the St. Lucie County Sheriff's Department in cooperation with the city administrator and the director of public safety in Port St. Lucie.

Applications for the auxiliary force are still being accepted. For information, contact the Sheriff's office or the Port St. Lucie City Hall.

'Pride is almost tangible here'

BY ALICE HICKEY

JENSEN BEACH—"This is a beautiful place and the people are great."

"Pride is almost tangible here. You can feel it in the detail, the upperclassmen in charge, in everything they do and say. When you break your back pulling your chest out, stomach in, shoulders back, it's for pride."

"At first it seems a little ridiculous, but then, when the company commander says, 'Your squad is outstanding,' you can stand a little straighter still."

In brief, that is how Susie Fulton has summed up her first few weeks as a cadet at West Point.

Three weeks ago, Susie was a familiar figure here in Jensen Beach: a typical teenage young lady clad in slacks, a sloppy pullover, and either tennis shoes or a scuffed up pair of loafers.

Being among the first group of girls to be accepted at West Point, Susie's wardrobe and her lifestyle have changed tremendously.

Today, instead of the bright colored slacks and faded pullover she proudly dresses out in a crisp white blouse, grey slacks with the military stripe, and her black shoes are highly polished. Army fatigues and boots comprise the other part of Susie's wardrobe.

In a recent letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fulton, Susie described her limited wardrobe in detail, noting that "Our fatigues are absolutely sexy."

Mrs. Fulton, who admittedly finds her daughter's new schedule somewhat unbelievable, recalls the difficulty she encountered in getting Susie up before 10 a.m.

Now she tells us that she is not only up promptly at 5 a.m., but she and her two roommates have dressed, made their beds, cleaned their room, and are lined up outside the barracks for the first physical training session of the day by 5:30 a.m.

And this is all before breakfast.

Mrs. Fulton added in tones of disbelief: "The afternoon naps Susie enjoyed at home are out, and her sleep-in days are now confined to one a week."

"We get to sleep in on Sunday mornings. It is really great, we don't have to get up until 6:15 a.m.," she wrote.

As a matter of fact, to date Susie has had only two complaints. She would like more sleeping time, and she has experienced some difficulty in getting the shoe shine business down pat.

Along with the other cadets, Susie is undergoing a rigid eight week military training course which includes simulated combat missions with their M-16's, jungle warfare, breaking down and cleaning rifles, marches, drills, obstacle courses and bivouac.

She describes bivouac as being "loads of fun."

"I have learned to crawl under one barbed wire, I get dirty, sore, tired and scratched up, but it is just a great experience."

Commenting on the amount of jogging done at the academy, Susie said, "We certainly get plenty of exercise here, but the food is great and I feel just wonderful."

While there may be some dropouts, Susie and her roommate Camille Borasso of Tequesta, Florida, claim they are there to see it through.

At the end of the eight week basic training course the cadets will begin their academic year. All cadets will have a two week leave at Christmas and four weeks next June, both of which Susie is looking forward to.

Does she get homesick? Perhaps I might, but you see I really do not have time to think of it," she said.

Does Susie Fulton have any special requests?

Yes, boodles from home.

What are boodles?

With the West Point cadets, boodles simply mean packages of mom's homemade snacks, packaged in lots of twelve, because the squad believes in sharing.

Susie's boodles were mailed Monday.

00' wide 707A

SEN BEACH—A 300-foot wide or from U.S. 1 east to Indian River along SR 707A, Jensen Beach Road was called "planning by County Commission Chairman Kiernan Tuesday.

man's comment came during the sion on the North County sive Plan which was adopted ll be sent to the State Division of ing.

gain traffic flow was the major conservation, which has been the all of the several public hearings north county plan.

e were only minor changes, down high density to medium density in reas, and it was adopted much was presented to the County ission several weeks ago.

han a 300 foot strip on SR 707A reviewed by the planning staff with other traffic suggestions.

chairman pointed out that the all come when property will be ined and roads built that are suggested limited access on to A and called the wide corridor ning.

ning Director Kris Schenk ed commissioners that four l Commercial Street is not n at this time.

ays also pointed out that eral zoning on SR 707A would ost traffic through Jensen Beach arallel roads.

Commissioner Ross Philbrick's suggestion that a road from Commercial Street at the railroad tracks along Palmetto Street to the Causeway was workable by Schenk.

While the 300 foot strip with planned unit development (PUD) along the right of way is not going to happen in the next four years, Kiernan said, Commissioner Tom Higgins said a 200 or 300 foot strip is not going to solve the problem.

And Attorney Evans Crary, Jr., representing area property owners, reminded commissioners that the Port St. Lucie development is going "to put a tremendous amount of traffic on SR 707A."

Pointing to the area map, Crary noted the vast development at Port St. Lucie and asked where Port St. Lucie homeowners were going to look for access to the beach. He replied "down here," pointing to SR 707A.

Commissioners noted that the north county map with its various colors identifying proposed land use was not a planning map, and Kiernan pointed out that PUD is not a type of zoning but is an option that can be applied for by developers.

Schenk pointed out that there is sufficient commercial zoning in the area and people can apply for PUD.

Approval of the plan came after public hearings in Jensen Beach, Rio, North River Shores, and before the Planning Commission and County Commission.

3 beat vote deadline

SEN BEACH—If the number of registering to vote in any tion of the September primary the Martin County voters will go to lls in record numbers.

rday, July 24, was the final day to ter for the September primaries. Supervisor of Elections Sandra olph and her two staff members ered 183 persons before the ration books closed at 5 p.m.

registered about 600 people the week," Mrs. Randolph said. "We ave more than 25,000 persons ble to vote."

said that the final count will be known in a few days.

We have to certify the count with the state one week after the closing of the registration books," she said.

We purged more than 2,000 from the voter registration rolls several months ago," Mrs. Randolph said. "We have made that up and more."

Beacon 21 security charged

JENSEN BEACH—Paul B. Goodell, president of the Beacon 21 citizens security council, has been charged with battery in the July 17 incident in which a guest at the condominium was temporarily blinded at the condo laundry.

James A. "Tony" Fort, a stockbroker from Boulder, Colorado, was folding his laundry when he was attacked by Goodell who squired him with the chemical that blinded him.

Fort was visiting his brother John at his Beacon 21 condominium.

According to Fort, he and his brother Tony were talking business until about midnight. Tony Fort then went to the laundry to fold his already dry clothes and towels when Goodell came into the room, shined a flashlight into his eyes, said, "Read the sign," read the sign, and squirted him with the chemical.

Fort ran into the apartment in pain, according to John Fort, yelling, "I've been blinded."

Fort and a friend washed out the brother's eyes with water, called the hospital emergency room, and then the sheriff's office. The deputy answering the call knocked on several doors before finding Goodell, who at first denied the charge.

When identified by Tony Fort, Goodell said that he owned part of the laundry, and that he was trying to protect his investment. He said he was president of the A complex, Fort said.

Fort added that Goodell said the chemical he used "is what all officers carry."

He added that the laundry room was brightly lit and that Tony Fort was "just folding laundry."

Deputy Jim Barrett arrested Goodell and took him to the sheriff's department.

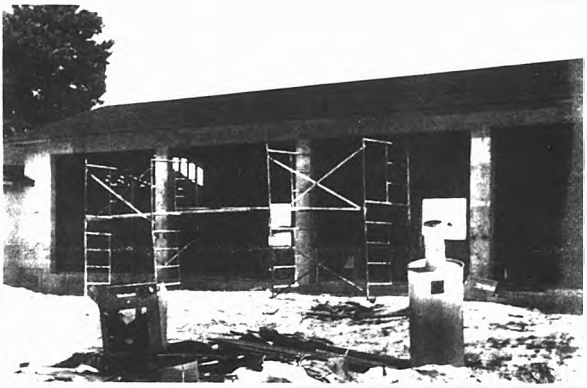
Goodell is to appear in county court charged with battery, on August 8.

Remember Rotunda?

JENSEN BEACH—A lawsuit authorized by the Martin County Commission two months ago has been filed against the Pal Mar Water Management District, formerly known as Rotunda, for alleged illegal evacuation.

The county has charged the water management district performed dredging operations without a permit. The suit seeks an injunction to prohibit further excavation and filling.

The work in question is on canals in the Palm Beach Heights subdivision in southwest Martin County.



AMBULANCE HOUSE. The new Ambulance House on South Savanna Road in Jensen Beach is taking shape and will be ready for occupancy in September. The Jensen Area Ambulance Samaritans, Inc. has a fund drive under way to furnish the new building.

Central operations base will aid in the Samaritan response

JENSEN BEACH—Expansion of the service area of the Jensen Samaritan Free Ambulance has brought demands on the volunteer service to expand its force and broaden its scope, Roger Hazel told the Jensen Kiwanis Club Monday.

Hazel said that the new Samaritan ambulance headquarters on South Savanna Road should aid in the quick response to calls. The new building is due for completion in September.

Hazel, who said the ambulance squad averages over two calls per day, told of the vast north county area covered, including all of Hutchinson Island south of Outdoor Resorts, west to North River Shores, south to include Sewall's Point and north to Walton.

He said the ambulance averages between four and six minutes to get to the emergency site. However with the central location that time will be improved.

"In a heart attack the possibility of brain damage comes within four to six minutes if the person is not treated. We'll be able to better handle the entire area with the new location. Our response time should be much more quick."

Hazel told Kiwanians that there was a problem with the new emergency room of the hospital in that the hospital radio was answered by a receptionist, not an emergency medical technician - EMT.

He added he hoped that the rescue squads would be able to get a volunteer to handle hospital calls in the future.

In the past six months volunteer Samaritans handled 372 calls, 54 in January, 56 in February, 82 in March, 75 in April, 45 in May, and 50 in June for an average of 62 calls per month, or more than two per day.

He said the non-profit volunteer group does not charge for its service and operates on donations and matching funds from the county, state and federal grants.

Samaritans have three ambulances, one being replaced this year because it does not meet federal requirements. The ambulances are paid for with 50 percent matching funds from the federal government, 25 percent from the county, and the remainder raised locally by the Samaritans.

"The expensive Electrons carried by volunteers, who spend eight or day while on duty listening for the sound a message sent by Civil Defense calling them to duty, are paid for with matching funds from the county.

Civil Defense handles all calls for ambulances, and residents calling the 287-5575 number get response from Samaritans in fast time as each on-duty Samaritan receives the message simultaneously.

"We are now allowed to use the red lights on our cars, so if you see a car with red lights flashing, move over. It is on the way to meet the ambulance on a call," Hazel said.

Hazel said that the Samaritans would welcome any one interested in serving on the squad.

Samaritans drive hits $3,955

JENSEN BEACH—The building fund of Jensen Area Samaritans, Inc. has reached $3,955 in gifts and donations, George Krauss said.

Krauss, building committee chairman, said items for the ambulance house include 50 folding chairs, 10 folding tables, dishes, flatware, desk and chair, rolling blackboard, large bulletin board and folding bed.

Along with these items we need money to make our $6,000 goal," Krauss said.

Anyone wishing to donate an item may call 334-1365 in the afternoon. We will pick up any item donated.

The ambulance house on South Savanna Road is expected to be open in September.

We plan an open house when it is completed," Krauss said.

Donations, tax deductible may be sent to Building Fund, P.O. Box 187, Jensen Beach 33457.

Jensen deputies get ax

JENSEN BEACH—Cuts in Martin County Sheriff James Holt's budget apparently has eliminated proposed additional deputies for the Jensen Beach area.

Sheriff Holt has cropped his budget request by $120,158, forfeiting his hopes for six new positions in the department.

After last week's budget meeting with the County Commission the sheriff said, "I certainly hated to cut those people away because I think they're needed. It's going to hurt the coverage in Jensen Beach."

Four additional deputies were planned to provide extra patrol for the Jensen Beach, North River Shores and Hutchinson Island areas while freeing the corporal now used in that area for assistance elsewhere, Sheriff Holt said.

Commissioners want the sheriff to bring in a budget only $100,000 more than last year's.

A budget increase of only $100,000 would represent an increase of five per cent compared to the 9.3 per cent increase in Holt's revised budget.

The elimination of the six new proposed positions represents the largest single decrease in Holt's original proposed budget.

Holt had originally proposed a $2.1 million budget.

The sheriff's budget, like most other government budgets has increased through the years.

an official of the National Marine ies Service (NMFS) reported that s underway to perfect a shrimp designed to keep shrimp in and rtles out.

number of sea turtles caught and ies killed in shrimp trawls was e of the numerous problems addressed by those attending the conference.

Wilber Seidel, of the NMFS, said the net will be designed to guide the turtle over the top by way of a tapered panel attached to the net. He said the number of sea turtles caught in shrimp trawls is large enough to be of concern to those seeking to protect and preserve the sea turtle population.

Peter Pritchard, of the Florida Audubon Society, said he feels the new territorial limits for coastal areas will be a major step forward in the management of marine resources including the protection and preservation of turtles.

Pritchard said there is an obvious partnership between the United States and Mexico on the management of the sea turtle population as the two countries share some of the same varieties of turtles.

"We have a strong interest in seeing [illegible] programs started," Witham said.

Witham, who has been in sea turtles for 20 years, noted that tag return data obtained by the local research programs indicated the United States shares common turtle stock with foreign countries.

A note from Betty Taylor tells us she is busy, busy as ever, and feeling A-1. She is working in the office to help son James. Her garden and flowers are at their peak, and she is especially enjoying all the fresh vegetables.

Irene and Harmon Fawcett say they had a good time but are glad to be back home in H.O.

Ann Rickenback and children are in the park. Always glad to have them here.

Some notes on Al and Peg Ray's travels:

After leaving their relatives and friends in Williamsburg, N.J., they drove to Beach Haven, N.J., and spent a week with Doris and Ray Noelks in their home between the bay and ocean. They all drove to Sear Isle City one day to pay a visit to George and Jessie Shute. George was recuperating from the flu, but Jessie was well.

On leaving Beach Haven, they enjoyed the drive through hills and curves to Bob and Grace Murphy's home in Vernon, Conn. They parked their trailer there, and the next day drove 30 miles and enjoyed lunch with Maurice and Vicki McKeever at their lake front home, so cool and lovely.

The following day, the McKeevers drove the Rays to Hartford where they boarded a bus to New York harbor. They say the bus is the only way to travel in New York City.

There they boarded the Statendam, unpacked and set sail on their Bermuda cruise.

They found Bermuda to be a tropical paradise, enjoying Elbow and Horseshoe Beaches with their pink sand. However, they found prices out of sight: watermelons at $7.00 each, carrots at 85 cents a pound. They were glad they were eating aboard ship, where they say they were served fantastic meals.

Arriving back in New York harbor they found the tall ships were still out to sea, but did enjoy sighting the Chanticleer sailing by with Frances Langford and family on board. Made them feel a little like being at home in H.O.

Robert and Grace Murphy met their bus when they returned to Hartford took them on to their home where a surprise dinner was held attended by Mr. and Mrs. McKeever and the Ilnicles, all of Holiday Out.

The Rays spent the Fourth there with the Murphy three, then over to Ashburnham, Mass. to visit with C.J. and Bert Ouellette and a large gathering of Hite friends, including the F. Gilberts, Wes and Ruth Arbo, Ed and Evelyn Frost, and the Widarks.

The Rays have returned to their second home in Tazel, Tennessee.

Here's some very good news!!

Marsette Brocklebank returned home Sunday from the hospital. Her daughter, Mrs. C. O'Brien of St. Louis, Missouri, is with her.

A letter from Lubee and Art Smith tells of Art's accident while in New York celebrating his birthday on the Fourth. Seems he closed the door on his finger, necessitating emergency treatment at a hospital: a 2½ hour stay for x-rays and 15 stitches.

They also let us in on a secret. Al and Peg Ray stopped by for a surprise visit and they found out Al plays the organ. He gave a very enjoyable recital for the Smiths.

The Smiths will be down in September to set up a new trailer and put up a new screen porch.

The Kiefabers are on their way to the west coast, following a visit to Las Vegas, where they say the weather reached 117 degrees, no wonder everyone stays inside so much there.

Heard from Cally and Les Ullmann from East Greenbush, N.Y., who say the weather has been ankle garden and flowers this year. They also give us the bad news: Carrie is in the hospital for surgery. Anyone caring to send cards may send them to Anna May Ullman, St. Peters Hospital, 315 S. Manning Blvd., Albany, NY 12208. She will be there 10 to 14 days.

Al and Merrill Webb are now the proud owners of a new trailer.

Austin and Mae Williams wrote that they are enjoying the relatively cool weather in San Diego, California, after the 110 degree temperatures in Las Vegas. Mae says she'll never complain about the heat in Florida again!!

They plan to return home by way of Phoenix, Houston and New Orleans, and should be back here sometime in August.

Bert and Arlene Maciorski spent the weekend in the park and their complaint was, as usual, that the time passes too fast. They enjoy it here so very much.

Nuke plant is shut down

JENSEN BEACH—The Florida Power and Light Co.'s St. Lucie I nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island will be shut down for an estimated five weeks to determine the cause of a slight power variance encountered in one section of the reactor core during routine test and startup operations.

FPL engineers described the problem as a "radial flux tilt," which means that one part of the core of the reactor has given indications that it is producing more neutrons than the other sections.

The shutdown was reported to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC) Office of Inspection and Enforcement in Atlanta.

NRC said the situation poses no threat to the health and safety of plant personnel or to the public. All nuclear power reactors in the United States are required by the NRC to perform a series of startup tests to check for deficiencies so that they can be corrected prior to full power operation.

St. Lucie I test and startup operations began April 22, 1976.

Meanwhile, FPL has appointed a committee to study the company's work force, setting the stage for possible layoffs as soon as next month.

An FPL spokesman said if layoffs occur, however, it will not affect construction of the St. Lucie II nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island.

Scheer said two years ago FPL experienced a significant dip in total growth.

The demand for electricity rose by less than 1 percent in 1974, compared to a 12 percent rise in 1973. The growth rate for 1975 was 4 percent.

The company spokesman said FPL had to revise its growth projections downward, prompting the study, which should be completed by mid-August.

'Pride is almost tangible here'

BY ALICE HICKEY

JENSEN BEACH– This is a beautiful place and the people are great.

"Pride is almost tangible here. You can feel it in the detail, the upperclassmen in charge, in everything they do and say. When you break your back pulling your chest out, stomach in, shoulders back, it's for pride.

"At first it seems a little ridiculous, but then, when the company commander says, 'Your squad is outstanding,' you can stand a little straighter still."

In brief, that is how Susie Fulton has summed up her first few weeks as a cadet at West Point.

Three weeks ago Susie was a familiar figure here in Jensen Beach – a typical teenage young lady clad in slacks, a sloppy pullover, and either tennis shoes or a scuffed up pair of loafers.

Being among the first group of girls to be accepted at West Point, Susie's wardrobe and her lifestyle have changed tremendously.

Today, instead of the bright colored slacks and faded pullover, she proudly dresses out in a crisp white blouse, grey slacks with the military stripe, and her black shoes are highly polished. Army fatigues and boots comprise the other part of Susie's wardrobe.

In a recent letter to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Fulton, Susie described her limited wardrobe in detail, noting that "the fatigues are absolutely sexy."

Mrs. Fulton, who admittedly finds her daughter's new schedule somewhat unbelievable, recalls the difficulty she encountered in getting Susie up before 10 a.m.

"Now she tells us that she is not only up promptly at 5 a.m., but she and her two roommates have dressed, made their beds, cleaned their room, and are lined up outside the barracks for the first physical training session of the day by 5:30 a.m."

"And, this is all before breakfast!" Mrs. Fulton added in tones of disbelief.

The afternoon naps Susie enjoyed at home are out, and her sleep in days are now confined to one a week.

"We get to sleep in on Sunday mornings. It is really great, we don't have to get up until 6:15 a.m.," she wrote.

As a matter of fact, to date Susie has had only two complaints. She would like more sleeping time, and she has experienced some difficulty in getting the shoe shine business down pat.

Along with the other cadets, Susie is undergoing a rigid eight week military training course which includes simulated combat missions with their M-16's, jungle warfare, breaking down and cleaning rifles, marches, drills, obstacle courses and bivouac.

She describes bivouac as being "loads of fun."

"I have learned to crawl under real barbed wire, I get dirty, sore, tired and scratched up, but it is just a great experience."

Commenting on the amount of jogging done at the academy, Susie said, "We certainly get plenty of exercise here, but the food is great, and I feel just wonderful."

While there may be some dropouts, Susie and her roommate, Camille Berasso of Tequesta, Florida, claim they are there to see it through.

At the end of the eight week basic training course, the cadets will begin their academic year. All cadets will have a two week leave at Christmas and four weeks next June, both of which Susie is looking forward to.

"Does she get homesick?" "Perhaps I might, but you see, I really do not have time to think of it," she said.

Does Susie Fulton have any special requests?

"Yes, goodies from home."

What are goodies?

With the West Point cadets, goodies usually mean packages of mom's homemade snacks packaged in lots of twelve because the squad believes in sharing.

Susie's goodies were mailed Monday.

ty pushes county
r landfill acquisition

ST. LUCIE–Once again city ve urged the St. Lucie County on to reexamine the proposed sanitary landfill site in the northwest sector of Port St. Lucie.

"When this is a common problem confronting every governing body in St. Lucie County, I think it is a waster of time and money for each separate entity to seek out their own solution," Mayor Sharpe said Tuesday, adding that the City of Port St. Lucie is certainly not interested in going into the sanitary landfill operation.

Both the local planning and zoning committee and the City Council favor the county taking over the proposed operation.

The mayor said that it is not even possible at this time to get a firm commitment from Waste Management or any other private enterprise in this field until it is decided just how many people the landfill will serve.

As outlined recently by Jerry Walker of Waste Management representative, the cost factor will be determined by the size of the area served.

The fewer people, the higher the cost per person, Walker said at a recent meeting with the local board.

Sharpe has suggested the Board of County Commissioners call a meeting of the elected and top administrative people from Fort Pierce, the Village of St. Lucie and the City of Port St. Lucie as well as the members of the Council of Governments to discuss not only the site, but the whole general problem of solid waste disposal.

In this way, Sharpe said, we can satisfy the critical needs of all our citizens and demonstrate a firm determination to cooperate with the State Department of Environmental Regulations.

"I believe your board will agree that we must now close ranks on this issue and decide upon the best and most practical, the most feasible, and the most economical method to at least ameliorate the solid waste disposal problem which has long since reached a critical plateau," the mayor said.

The site embraces approximately 225 acres owned by General Development Corporation. After conducting extensive studies of the area, Waste Management has stated the site is a suitable one not only because of its size but its location and the type of ground that could accommodate the solid waste requirements in St. Lucie County for at least the ensuing fifteen years.

AARP meeting days changed

PORT ST. LUCIE–The Port St. Lucie Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons, AARP, met Tuesday, July 26 at the North Port Marina with approximately 50 members in attendance.

President Fred Waggin opened the session, then asked Herb Tschudy to give the invocation and lead the membership in reciting the pledge of allegiance.

Treasurer Esther Thompson gave her report, announcing that the chapter has a total membership to date of 267.

After some discussion, the membership voted to hold the regular meeting on the third Thursday of each month at 1 p.m. at the Marina.

The meeting day was changed from Tuesdays so as not to conflict with Tuesday's Bingo at the Community Center.

Program chairman Maurice Arluck introduced the speakers for the meeting, giving interesting talks on the various services that provide for senior citizens were Rex Wolcott of People Minders, Inc.; Ruth N. Bay, Home Health Services, Inc.; Bruno Easter, Manor Nursing Home.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

Fred F. Waggin, president; Maurice Arluck, first vice president; Morgan J. Jones, second vice president; Esther J. Thompson, treasurer; Ethel Krall, corresponding secretary; and Geraldine Spencer, recording secretary.

The board of directors is comprised of Waggin, Arluck, Jones, Thompson, Krall, Tschudy, Jones, Thompson, Berbers (?), Tschudy, George Ludwig, Lillian Heemstad and James Kearney.

Alan Quay top seed in junior vet tennis

PORT ST. LUCIE–A full field of top ranked Florida players will take the courts at the Sandpiper Bay Resort this weekend to compete in the junior vet tournament.

Play will commence Friday, July 30 at noon and conclude with the final events played Sunday.

Participants of the tournament will be hosted by Sandpiper Bay at a cocktail party Friday evening.

On Saturday evening, Dick and Sally Campbell will host a cocktail party starting at 7:30 in the Evinrude Party Hut.

Free beer will be provided for the participants and members of the local club during the Sunday finals, according to local pro Phil Ranger.

Twenty three entries have been received thus far for the men's singles division. Alan Quay, number one junior vet player in the state of Port Pierce, Lex Hester, second ranked, King Thaxton, third ranked and fourth ranked John Kopf were among the early entries.

The mixed doubles event promises much action as the four top ranked teams compete.

They are, in order of rank, Jeff Ruday-Carol Coburn; Sewsankar and Wanda Maharaj; Jean Sochet-Chip Spiller and Ruth Barnett-Rick Rodbiel. All told the field includes fourteen teams.

In the women's junior vet entries are third ranked Ruth Barnett of Palm Beach Gardens and Carol Hanna (2).

It is expected that late entries in the women's division will include Jean Vines, Dawn Hughes (2) and Judy Gibson (2), along with other top ranked players.

Women's doubles should include state ranked teams pairing third ranked Sally Campbell and Jean Sochet.

Nuke plant is shut down

JENSEN BEACH--The Florida Power and Light Co.'s St. Lucie I nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island will be shut down for an estimated five weeks to determine the cause of a slight power variance encountered in one section of the reactor core during routine test and startup operations.

FPL engineers described the problem as a "radial flux tilt" which means that one part of the core of the reactor has given indications that it is producing more neutrons than the other sections.

The shutdown was reported to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (NRC) Office of Inspection and Enforcement in Atlanta.

NRC said the situation poses no threat to the health and safety of plant personnel or to the public. All nuclear power reactors in the United States are required by the NRC to perform a series of startup tests to check for deficiencies so that they can be corrected prior to full power operation.

St. Lucie I test and startup operations began April 22, 1976.

Meanwhile, FPL has appointed a committee to study the company's work force, setting the stage for possible layoffs as soon as next month.

An FPL spokesman said if layoffs occur, however, it will not affect construction of the St. Lucie II nuclear power plant on Hutchinson Island.

Schwer said two years ago FPL experienced a significant dip in total growth.

The demand for electricity rose by less than 1 percent in 1974, compared to a 12 percent rise in 1973. The growth rate for 1975 was 4 percent.

The company spokesman said FPL had to revise its growth projections downward, prompting the study, which should be completed by mid-August.

ART SHOP–These youngsters are enjoying the arts and craft program at Langford Park. They are among the many children taking part in the summer recreation program at county parks and playgrounds.

New Jai Alai players

FORT PIERCE–Two new players are being added to the roster at the Fort Pierce Jai Alai Fronton. Both are French national champions.

Irun, an 18 year old, won the French National Tournament playing front court. He has been playing jai ali since he was ten years old in his home town of St. Jean De Luz, where the World Jai Alai school is located, and has a reputation for skillfully outwitting his opponents.

Jan is a nineteen year old backcourt player who was raised on outdoor jai alai. He was the national champion in the sport of "grand chistua," which is similar to jai alai, only it is played outdoors and only a front wall is used. Jan played jai alai in the winter indoors, and is adept at both games, bringing some of the skill of the one wall game to the three wall jai alai sport.

The two young players would have joined the Fort Pierce Fronton roster earlier this year, but by mutual agreement were permitted to graduate from high school before coming here.

Island condo work starts

JENSEN BEACH–Developers of a 1,200-unit condominium development on Hutchinson Island got permission to begin clearing on the project, but County Commissioners Tuesday continued the hearing until Aug. 10.

The commissioners couldn't agree if Indian River Plantation (formerly Coot Bay) project plans were complete enough to warrant further county approval.

Developers William Maddox and Lloyd Dutcher have asked approval of their preliminary plans for the 195 acre project.

Clearing work which was approved will be on the property, including the road right-of-way for the new McArthur Boulevard.

Meanwhile, Commissioner Tom Higgins, whose district takes in the southern portion of Hutchinson Island where the big condominium complex is proposed, said he wants to determine if it is feasible for the county to get into the utility business by providing water to the island.

Currently, the only water available to the island is through a system operated by Southern Gulf Utilities, a firm which gets its supply from the City of Stuart.

Stuart Duplicate Club

STUART–The Stuart Duplicate Club met in regular session Wednesday, July 21, at the Youth Center. There were six tables in play and a Howell movement was used. The average was 48.

Winners were Ann Mooney and Louise Ressler, 58.

Venture Out

VENTURE OUT NEWS
BY WILLARD AUCH

This week we received an enjoyable letter from Mary Ellyn Meachum which reads:

"As I am enjoying your column so very much, I feel obligated to add my 2 cents so that you won't have to rely on 'Hot Air and Cold Potatoes'.

"My granddaughter Kelly and I had a marvelous 16 day trip to Hawaii. We both had a great time, sightseeing and going to all the dinner shows. I took some lovely photographs of the mountains, waterfalls and flowers which I hope to paint this fall and winter.

"I just returned from Brevard, S.C., spending a few weeks of square dancing. The Ramsays of Venture Harbour and three other couples from Jensen Beach and Stuart were there, too.

"Tuesday, Mary, my oldest grand daughter, left for the summer Olympics in Montreal. She and four friends, in a motor home, will then tour Canada and New England. Oh, to be young again!

"I would like to remind all lot owners of our bazaar to be held this fall.

"Betty Jones, chairman, has been working all summer to make this a huge success. Please bring something from home to donate – perhaps a knitted, crocheted or a hand made item. Also plan to do your Christmas shopping at the Venture III Boutique.

"Betty will be holding workshops for the bazaar as soon as we start returning for another busy season.

Well, from the above, much is being planned even this summer to provide an interesting fall and winter program with everybody getting into the act. There will be fun for all.

Got a card from Cora Lee and Ward Irwin in Plymouth Rock, showing pictures of the Rock and Columbus ship. They finally got on the road and are now touring the New England states, finding many things to do and see and eat.

They say the New England area is really God's country.

Venture Harbour

BY JESSIE SHAVER

There's news from several of our neighbors this week.

Card from Betty and Paul Drinkard saying they were leaving Victoria and Van Couver, British Columbia, where they had spent a week going on to Alaska by inland passage cruise. They are fulfilling a long time dream by visiting Alaska and having a wonderful summer. They send their regards to all Venture Harbourites.

Jean and Gil Van Willigen say their summer has been fine. They hosted their usual 4th of July picnic and had as guests Ann Van Willigen, the Stams of Holiday Out, and the Koedikes of Venture Out. Jean says she will be thinking of things she can make for our bazaar. She says they will be seeing us in early October and sends their best to all.

* * *

Pat and Larry Bell are working hard this summer and are looking forward to their return to the quieter life in V.H. They, too, send greetings to all.

Kay "Koepka" says Howard is improving but is not yet able to make the trip from Hialeah to Venture Harbour, so she has to come alone. Continued improvement is our wish for him.

The work on the Capra home is continuing and it gets prettier every day.

The Prices are making plans for their move to our beautiful Wahoo Street. They are closing the sale of their Miami home and hope to begin work on setting up their home here. The plans sound very lovely.

Edna and Allen Ryan of Miami, long time good friends of the Shavers, spent four days with them resting, talking and looking around for a place for the Ryans to move to in our area.

Sorry I missed birthday greetings to Thelma Dickey for July 24, but I'll send them along now, and also for Max on August 2.

Happy anniversary and congratulations to Gil and Jean Van Willigen on July 29, and to Walter and Vita Autenreith on August 4.

We are going to update our list of birthdays and anniversaries to include all our new neighbors and a few that were missed before, so be sure and give me that information as soon as you return, or mail it now.

* * *

Keep the bazaar in mind. Betty Jones is giving it a lot of time and effort. Let's make it a huge success.

Municipal officials would be appointed by the county commissions.

Each member of the council would have an equal vote on all matters. Terms would be for one year, but members could be reappointed.

The four county commissions rejected the request by the Palm Beach County Municipal League that four of its six county representatives be elected municipal officers instead. The steering committee proposed that four of Palm Beach's council seats go to county commissioners and that two go to municipal representatives.

And the steering committee rejected the proposal by Palm Beach Commissioner E.W. Weaver to guarantee that different geographic areas within the counties be represented.

I think that the rural section of South Florida and the agricultural areas, as well as the urban beach areas, should be very much involved in any planning, Weaver said.

If you don't take this into consideration you can be the ancestors of a damn disaster, Weaver added.

Also turned down by the steering committee was a proposal by Martin County Commissioner Tom Higgins to assign each county a certain number of members without specifying how many should be municipal or county officials.

Both St. Lucie and Indian River counties voluntarily dropped their recommendations for a larger council. St. Lucie had proposed a 20 member council. Indian River had suggested that each county be given a minimum of three representatives and one additional member for every 100,000 people in the county.

The steering committee composed of commission chairmen with Martin County Vice Chairman Maggy Hurchalla proposed that county governments foot the entire bill for the planning council, and that each county's annual dues be based on population distribution.

The four counties together would contribute $100,000 to the council's first year with another $24,200 from the state.

Palm Beach County will pay $76,000, St. Lucie County $13,000, Martin County $7,600 and Indian River County $7,400. The dues are based on each county paying 16 cents per resident.

The monies would be used to pay for a planning staff consisting of an executive director, two planners, clerical workers and equipment.

Condemning the densities of counties to the south, Dade and Broward, Palm Beach, Martin and St. Lucie Counties withdrew from the South Florida Regional Planning Council and joined Indian River County a member of a Central Florida Council in asking Ed Gov. Jim Williams to form a P.R.A. council.

Williams agreed to create this 11th regional planning council in June.

The new council will be in operation by October 1.

Committee reports on agenda

JENSEN BEACH–Several committee reports are on the agenda for the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce directors meeting Monday, August 9 at the Chamber building.

Some reports include traffic by John Heyburn and tourism by Al Epstein.

EASY SUNNER–The heat of the past few weeks finally caught up with these four sunsetters on the beach. What else is there to do? Curling your toes into the cool sand, baking your back to the deep tan of Florida and jumping up and splashing into the surf when the heat becomes unbearable is just the thing during the July weather. But where is the portable radio?

Demo-GOP split close in county

JENSEN BEACH–Voter registration in Martin County totals 26,406, an increase of 1,309 over this time last year, with registration in the two major parties totaling 12,793 Democrats and 12,210 Republicans.

When the registration books closed in 1972 for the primaries total registration was 17,967, Supervisor of Elections Sandra Randolph said.

While most voters are registered in one of the two major parties, about 1,400 persons are registered as independents or in other minor parties. Mrs. Randolph pointed out when she released the new registration figures.

Registration figures for Jensen Beach's two precincts No. 1 south of Commercial Street with voting at Langford Park Fieldhouse and No. 15 north of Commercial Street and Hutchinson Island totals this:

When the books closed for the September primaries in 1972 there were 2,255 registered in Jensen Beach Precinct 1, Mrs. Randolph said.

Precinct 1 was split several years ago creating Precinct 39 with voting at Jensen Beach Community Church for residents north of Commercial Street and the island.

Voter registration for Precinct 1 totals 2,235 with 1,103 Democrats, 957 Republicans, and 155 independents or other parties.

In Precinct 15 registration totals 5,346 with 944 Democrats, 55% Republicans and 86 independents or other parties.

Registration books for the September primaries closed July 24 and persons registering now will not be eligible to vote until the November general election.

Total registration according to Mrs. Randolph doesn't tell the full story of how many new voters have actually registered.

Since 1972 about 3,000 persons have been removed from the books in the regular purges of persons who failed to vote for at least two years, she said.

We average removing 50 persons a month from the rolls because they have registered in other counties or they have died, Mrs. Randolph said.

We probably registered 4,000 persons in the last four years.

Fire extinguishers are dumped

JENSEN BEACH–Seven fire extinguishers in a Hutchinson Island condominium complex were emptied last week, Jensen Beach Fire Department Chief Randolph Spinney said.

The extinguishers, filled with white powder, were emptied at the Beachwood Condominium and Chief Spinney said it costs about $10 to fill each extinguisher.

COMMISSIONER COMMENTS–Palm Beach County Commissioner Lake Lytal expresses his opinion on the new regional planning council. Lytal was one of several commissioners from the four-county area of Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach to give their views at the organizational meeting of the new council.

She speaks five languages, and enjoys jai-alai

BY ALICE HICKEY

Jake's Teriyaki steak heads her favorite foods. Maija-Riitta enjoys Bacardi cocktails, hamburgers to hotdogs, and like to live at the Hialeah race she finds the number of rentals on American television unbelievable a whose attractiveness is ded only by her intelligence, is a old bilingual Finnish exchange student staying in the Port St. Lucie area under the Lions International Exchange Program.

Her six week stay will be divided between her two foster families, Mr. and Mrs. George Hanna of 148 Naranja and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Strout of 612 Ash. Hanna and Strout are active members of the Port St. Lucie Lions Club.

Both families have coordinated their efforts and activities to insure that Maija visits as many state attractions as possible during her brief stay. The Strouts have toured the west coast, and the Hannas will host the east coast tour, which will include a stop at Disney World.

While Maija describes the standard of living in her country as being much the same as in America, she did note several differences.

"Cars in my country are probably as plentiful, but they are the smaller compacts rather than the larger cars I see here," she said, adding that since Finland has two official languages, all road signs are printed in both Finnish and Swedish.

Speaking of languages, Maija, a high school graduate who speaks English, German, Russian, Swedish and Finnish, teaches Finnish and history in elementary school, and teaches Russian to a class of eighteen-year-old high school students.

Miss Sarkka, who will begin her college studies in another year, was recommended by the director of schools to teach the Russian language. Because the school could not afford to pay the regular wage scale for a Russian language teacher for a class of only eight pupils, Maija, a top language student, will fill the position for a two year period before continuing her own studies.

"This arrangement is an exception rather than general practice," she was careful to point out.

She also expressed some surprise at the amount of emphasis that is placed on athletics in our school system, and questioned why American schools do not place more importance on foreign languages.

As an example, Maija said that English is taught in the second grade in Finland.

But probably the biggest surprise in store for Maija was the way Americans eat with a fork.

"The way you continually switch your fork from one hand to the other throughout the meal is so confusing to me," she said with a laugh.

The two major sports in Finland are baseball and football but, while the names are the same, the rules of the games vary considerably.

We place the emphasis in baseball largely on pitching skills, but in Finland the pitcher stands much closer to the batter, and the object is to pitch the ball so the batter can hit it. In this way, Maija pointed out, all the players are involved in very active competition and their baseball game is not nearly so dangerous.

Football in Finland is comparable to the American soccer game, she explained.

Maija, who is one of seven children, has a twin brother who she describes as being "two feet longer than me."

Comparing the telephone service between the two countries, she said that while their services are less expensive, they are considerably slower than ours.

One of the many highlights of Maija's trip thus far was the $25 she won at Jai-Alai last week. What foolproof calculations did she apply to come up with a winner so quickly?

"It was very simple," she said. "I just picked the boys with the prettiest eyes."

A fierce savage....a docile tourist!

This sketch from an old photograph shows the terrible Apache Geronimo in his quiet years, a pathetic shadow of his days as a fierce warrior terrorizing Arizona 25 years earlier.

And this 1905 Locomobile was his "horse" in his declining years.

Stuart Exchange golf tournament is set

STUART–The Second Annual Stuart Exchange Club Open will be held this year at the Eastpointe Country Club, located at 6454 Donald Ross Road, Juno Beach, on September 11.

The receipts of the golf tournament, which will feature the Callaway system of handicapping, will go to the Stuart Exchange Club youth activities in Martin County.

Last year's tournament, which raised over $1,000 for the club, was attended by more than 150 golfers. According to Bob Wasley, co-chairman of the event, "This year we will be playing on what many people consider the finest championship golf course in South Florida, and we hope to have one prize on the average for every five players."

Tickets for the event will be available at Stuart National Bank, the Condominium Center, Port Salerno National Bank, and at many local merchants. The entrance fee of $20 per individual covers green fees, carts and lunch.

A tennis tournament and other activities will also be held, according to Wasley.

Flash fire kills man at Pinelake Village

JENSEN BEACH–A 63-year-old man died at Martin Memorial Hospital last Friday afternoon following a flash fire at his residence in Pinelake Village Mobile Home Park on South Savanna Road, Jensen Beach.

He was identified as Carmon F. Wilson by Randolph Spinney, Jensen Beach Volunteer Fire Department chief.

According to Spinney, Wilson was using a flammable liquid for cleaning when the container apparently flipped over and fell off the washing machine in Wilson's residence.

"We don't know what caused the spark that ignited the fluid," Spinney said. "It could have been the metal container striking the concrete floor."

Captain Louie dies at House of Refuge

JENSEN BEACH—Captain Louie, the giant sea turtle which made his home at the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island for 20 years, sank to the bottom of his private tank last Sunday and never came up again to take a breath of air.

City ponders park acquisition

PORT ST. LUCIE—While city officials over two months ago approved the purchase of a 14.49 acre tract from General Development Corporation for the construction of a city hall, they were reluctant to take a stand on the developer's offer to donate Thornhill Park to the city in conjunction with that sale.

During a workshop session Tuesday, city officials took a closer look at the offer and discussed the pros and cons of the park acquisition.

Some what fearful of accepting a pig in a poke, officials agreed the city did not need to take on any more costly park improvement projects within the next few years.

Thornhill Park consists of 20.85 acres and is located near the intersection of Florent Drive and Thornhill Drive.

In the original proposal, General Development offered to donate the park site but the city must agree to improve, maintain and operate Thornhill Park on the following terms:

1. A 50-foot reservation for greenbelt or landscape use only to be established around the perimeter of the park property to protect present lot owners.

2. That the property be maintained and operated for passive uses only compatible to a residential area and that the operation of same would exclude night uses.

3. Cost of utilities, if and when needed, would be paid for by the City.

As long as Thornhill Park can be controlled within the city budget officials seem to favor the acquisition.

City Administrator Elmer Cox was instructed to contact GDC for more specifics in regards to the donation of the park site.

KNIGHTS MEET AUGUST 12

PORT ST. LUCIE—The Knights of Pythias Treasure Coast Lodge will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, August 12, at the North Port Marina.

15 members

First meeting of council

PORT ST. LUCIE—Representatives of the newly created regional planning council informally agreed last week that the council should have 15 members and be called the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council.

Meeting at the Martin County Executive Plaza building, the group's recommendations will be reviewed by the four county commissions: Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach Counties.

All the major issues involved in the make-up of the planning council were resolved at the Wednesday, July 28, meeting by a four-member steering committee.

The steering committee will take another look at the structure of the council on August 19. If there are no problems then it will be forwarded to a state agency for final approval.

The first point of agreement was the council's name, and the steering committee members also indicated that the Martin County administrative building might become headquarters for the council because of its central location.

Representatives of the four counties agreed for a 15 member council consisting of 10 county commissioners and five elected municipal officials.

Palm Beach County received high marks from representatives of the other three when expressed relief that the more populated county would not dominate the council.

"I think Palm Beach has done an extra good job of setting my mind at ease," Indian River County Commission Chairman W.W. Siebert said.

"As a member of a small county, Indian River County Commissioner Edwin Schmulker said, "I was afraid Palm Beach County would try and make a powerhouse of this. I am relieved that it didn't happen."

Being from virgin territory, we're proud to jump into bed with Palm Beach County," St. Lucie County Commission Chairman Ed Knox said.

Palm Beach County was allocated six of the 15 members in the council even though 75 per cent of the residents in the four county region live in that county. The other counties received three members each.

Each of the other three counties would have two county commissioners and one municipal official on the council. Municipal officials would be appointed by the county commissions.

Each member of the council would have an equal vote on all matters. Terms would be for one year, but members could be reappointed.

The four county commissions rejected the request by the Palm Beach County Municipal League that four of its six county representatives be elected municipal officers. Instead, the steering committee proposed that four of Palm Beach's council seats go to county commissioners and that two go to municipal representatives.

And the steering committee rejected the proposal by Palm Beach Commissioner E.W. Weaver to guarantee that different geographic areas within the counties be represented.

"I think that the rural section of South Florida and the agricultural areas as well as the urban beach areas should be very much involved in any planning," Weaver said.

"If you don't take this into consideration, you can be the ancestors of a damn disaster," Weaver added.

Also turned down by the steering committee was a proposal by Martin County Commissioner Tom Higgins to assign each county a certain number of members, without specifying how many should be municipal or county officials.

Both St. Lucie and Indian River Counties voluntarily dropped their recommendations for a larger council. St. Lucie had proposed a 20-member council. Indian River had suggested that each county be given a minimum of three representatives and one additional member for every 100,000 people in the county.

The steering committee, composed of commission chairmen with Martin County Vice Chairman Maggie Hurchalla proposed that county governments fund the entire bill for the planning council and that each county's annual dues be based on population distribution.

The four counties together would contribute $100,000 to the council's first year with another $54,200 from the state.

Palm Beach County will pay $76,000, St. Lucie County, $11,000, Martin County, $5,600, and Indian River County, $7,400. The dues are based on each county paying 16 cents per resident.

The money would be used to pay for a planning staff consisting of an executive director, two planners, clerical workers and equipment.

Condemning the densities of counties to the south, Dade and Broward, Palm Beach, Martin and St. Lucie Counties withdrew from the South Florida Regional Planning Council and joined Indian River County, a member of a Central Florida Council, in asking Lt. Gov. Jim Williams to form a new council.

Williams agreed to create this 11th regional planning council in June.

The new council will be in operation by October 1.

Captain Louie dies at House of Refuge

JENSEN BEACH–Captain Louie, the giant sea turtle which made his home at the House of Refuge on Hutchinson Island for 20 years, sank to the bottom of his private tank last Sunday and never came up again to take a breath of air.

Ross Witham, Jensen Beach marine biologist who hatched Louie from an egg found on the island in the summer of 1966, said Louie has been "sulking" and refusing to eat for the past few weeks.

Witham said Louie's behavior is typical of this time of year the mating season. After the breeding season, he'd always go back to normal. There had never been any problems in the past.

Internal woes

New council moving ahead

JENSEN BEACH–With four counties and many politicians involved, there is bound to be some unhappiness over the structure of the new Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council.

Some municipal officials want more voice on the council, and it appears that they will be heard at the August 19 meeting at the Executive Plaza Building in Stuart.

On the other hand, city leaders think the structure is "fair."

"I think the representation is fair," Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler said.

"I think the council is a fine thing and I believe the system of representation they have, while it may not please all the municipalities, is fair," Port St. Lucie Administrator Elmer Cox said.

Cox added, however, that he would like to see each county arrange for the cities to be represented on a rotating basis.

As it now stands, representation to the 15-member council will include two county commissioners and one municipal member from Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River Counties, and four county commissioners and two municipal members from Palm Beach County.

The City of Vero Beach attempted to gain voting membership, offering to pay $2,400 (6 cents per resident) but they were turned down by Indian River County commissioners. The mayor of Sebastian, Eugene Cragg, was selected as the city representative.

Charles Foster, mayor of Stuart, said he would like to see the City of Stuart represented on the council.

"Stuart is the biggest town in Martin County, and I think the representative should come from the most populated area," Foster said.

Municipalities in all the counties are expected to make their selection along with county commissioners prior to the August 19 session.

Palm Beach County Municipal League is unhappy with its representation, pointing out that 72 per cent of the county's population resides within municipalities. They want four of the county's six members.

We don't think rurally oriented commissioners should dominate a district where the root of the problem is in the urban areas," Palm Beach Town Manager George Frost said.

But the municipal officers appear to have little chance of winning their fight in either county. County commissioners seem to be in control.

County commissioners are moving ahead to sign interlocal agreements for council membership and naming their representatives.

Also, Martin County is expected to be the location of the new council headquarters, because of its central location.

Cox, who worked for the Fort Pierce-St. Lucie County planning council for more than three years, said he was one of the "pioneer movers for the new council."

When the four counties met in Palm Beach County Courthouse more than a year ago, I was one of the so-called interveners who spoke in favor of the new district because of the compatibility of the four counties," Cox said.

At the initial meeting of the new council last month, there was little disagreement among the representatives of the four counties.

There may be some internal strife in some localities, but it was internal bickering that helped create the Treasure Coast Council. Martin, St. Lucie and Palm Beach Counties pulled out of the South Florida Regional Planning Council complaining that their southern neighbors, Dade, Broward and Monroe, too often favored high density projects.

Indian River County pulled out of a central council to join with the three other coastal counties.

Budget on town agenda

SEWALL'S POINT–The 1976-77 budget is expected to be discussed at the 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, August 11, meeting of the Sewall's Point Commission, Mayor Ed Gluckler said Monday.

A tentative budget of $165,000 has been set, and Mayor Gluckler said he hopes to hold the tax levy at 2 mills.

The present budget is $150,663.

Adoption of the new budget is expected at the September meeting.

Other items on the agenda for the regular August meeting include the Moyer lot split, Evinrude dock, Florida League of Cities Convention, October 21-23, and the second reading of the burning ordinance.

"We hope that the people of Jensen Beach area will donate money and items to the drive to put it over the top," he added.

The drive will end August 31 and Samaritans plan an open house in early September. Located just east of South Savanna Road, the street address is 1250 N.E. Samaritan Street.

The Ambulance House came to the Samaritans absolutely free of charge. Realtor Ransom Tilton donated the property in the name of Pine Lake Village; architect Paul Henderson prepared the plans, and Martin County provided $32,741 for Bois Construction, Inc. to erect the building.

The Samaritans provide free ambulance service to Jensen Beach, Rio, Sewall's Point, Ocean Breeze Park, North River Shores, Hutchinson Island, Eden and Walton.

To donate one of the needed items or some other items residents think Samaritans might need, call 334-1365 and they will be picked up.

Absentee ballot requests at 200

JENSEN BEACH–If applications for absentee ballots are any indication of primary interest, then there should be a big turnout of voters in the September primaries.

Martin County Supervisor of Elections Sandra Randolph reported Friday that her office has received about 200 applications for absentee ballots.

We expect to have between 500 and 600 applications," Mrs. Randolph said.

But that will not be a record, she noted. "We had 900 applications in the 1974 primary."

PUDDLE PEDDLING–Finding a puddle of water to ride through Monday afternoon was no problem after the hard rain. Riding her bike through one of the many puddles along Commercial Street is Suzan Thorburn, 4124 N.E. Skyline Drive.

WATER, WATER, WATER–Hurricane Belle didn't hit Jensen Beach, but a hard rainstorm Monday afternoon left plenty of water on the area. Residents after a hard rain Ross Road and Indian River Drive had a small lake for cars to spray a wall of water.

Sewall's Point has water woes

SEWALL'S POINT–Town commissioners are unhappy with Southern Gulf Utilities, Inc., and they told a representative of the firm about their concern at last week's workshop session.

"I don't think you are taking care of the town too well," Mayor Ed Gluckler told Ed Vockins of SGU.

The Fire Department made some hydrant pressure tests out here and the nearby houses couldn't get a glass of water," Mayor Gluckler said.

"If we ever have a fire we're going to run out of hydrant water and every other kind of water," the mayor added.

Commissioners also complained about the water tank being allowed to overflow for several hours before anyone came to repair it.

"You're not taking care of the tank. I passed by here at 6 p.m. one night and again at 9 and it was overflowing into the street," Town Hall parking lot Gluckler said.

Residents have been plagued recently by having their water cut off without notice.

Commissioner John Williams said that one man wrote the company because his water bill jumped drastically so they cut his water off.

Commissioner Bob Russell said SGU's claim of a computer error is the oldest excuse in the books.

Vockins said he has no choice except to cut off the water when he receives orders from his superiors.

Martin County and Town officials have expressed concern for several years about the inadequacy of the SGU system and low water pressure. The utility firm, which gets its water supply from the City of Stuart, provides water to the town and Hutchinson Island.

A special island tax district to finance the purchase of the facility has been suggested by county officials.

Also at the workshop session, commissioners discussed construction of the South River Road with town engineer Richard Hellstrom.

Tourism talked at Chamber

JENSEN BEACH–Ways to promote tourism were discussed by directors of Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce Monday night.

"We are trying to compete with Stuart, an incorporated town," Al Epstein, Tourism Committee chairman, said.

"We are an unincorporated village," Epstein said. "We should advertise and sell the Village of Jensen Beach.

He said that events such as the turtle watch and Fourth of July fireworks should be promoted.

Epstein proposed "three or four packages of events" to bring in people to the area.

And he pointed out that the areas south of Orlando are "suffering" because that area is packaging events.

"I would like more response from motels and the entire community to get involved," Epstein said.

Chamber directors gave the Tourism Committee the go ahead with plans to promote the area.

JENSEN BEACH–The trial of Paul H. Goodell of Beacon 21, which was slated for a hearing in County Court, has been continued to August 20 at 9 a.m., the Martin County Clerk's office reported Monday.

The trial was continued at the defendant's request, the clerk's office reported.

Goodell was charged with battery in a July 17 incident at the Rio condominium.

James A. "Tony" Fiore of Boulder, Colorado allegedly was sprayed in the face with a chemical substance by Goodell. Information in the case was filed by the state attorney's office.

District budget is $177,639

JENSEN BEACH–Special taxing district A–Jensen Beach area's budget for the 1976-77 fiscal year is more than $177,000 and the millage is more than the current tax levy.

Jensen Beach area Commissioner Ross Philbrick said the new millage will be 8.332 with a budget of $177,639.

This compares to the present millage of 7.750 with a budget of $148,000.

Philbrick noted that one item in the new budget is payment of loan for the Jensen Beach Ambulance House on South Savanna Road. That totals $26,212.

Another large expenditure item on the new budget is $2,700 which, according to Philbrick, is for contract work at Langford Park.

Many of the other items in the budget are standard items that appear in each year's budget – materials, equipment and salaries for the district's two fire departments, Jensen Beach and Rio, and street lights.

The street light budget is always one of the larger expenditures and this year is no exception. Street light expenditures total $30,000, up $2,000 from the present expenditure.

Salary budgeted for the Jensen Beach Fire Department chief is $6,220, same as this year, and salaries for Jensen Beach volunteer firemen is $7,785, also same as last year.

At Rio, the chief's salary is $3,000, same as this year, and salary for Rio volunteer firemen is $4,000, same as this year.

Salary for the recreation director is $3,900 and $3,521 is budgeted for the property appraiser, and $2,875 is budgeted for the tax collector.

And $5,226 is budgeted for contingencies.

Merchandise display is offered

JENSEN BEACH–This fall, beginning August 30, Indian River Community College will offer a class in Principles and Construction of Merchandise Display. The class will meet every Monday, Wednesday and alternate Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and will be available for three credits.

The class is designed to instruct the student in the basic principles and fundamentals that must be followed in order to make an effective merchandise.

DING COMMITTEE–Members of the Treasure Coast ers Association Women's Auxiliary are shown at a house in Palm Lake Park. Some of the profits from the of the house will go to the non-profit auxiliary for scholarships and other worthwhile projects. From left are Julie Johnson, first vice president; Ginny Georgeff, telephone chairman; Arlene Signore, president; Velma Higbee, parliamentarian; Jean Rezzalle, membership; Mary Parrella and Joseph T. Quinn, and receiving 500 hour pins were Eliese Evans, Dorothy Garin, Robert D. Musson and Charlotte Robertson.

Top honors for the month went to Laura Bell and Hazel Kurns who earned their 1,000 hour pins.

Auxilians put in 5,547 hours in July

LETTER

To the Editor

So Captain Louie the loggerhead turtle finally escaped captivity by committing suicide. Hooray for him!

The years he lived imprisoned in a small tank within yards of the beckoning ocean must have been torture. When he surfaced to breathe did he hear and smell the sea and know that there were others of his kind nearby?

No matter, he satisfied the passing curiosity of humans. Maybe some did learn something by his being there.

Could it be pity?

Her first trip

If they don't get going, then I'm going home

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH—Frankie Silas stood first on one foot, then another. She concentrated on the engines of the Beechcraft Super King-Air turbo-prop plane, and seemed quite relaxed.

The only nervousness to be seen was her occasional clenching of her hands.

The pilots scurried back and forth to the office at Witham Field, filling out flight plans, and making the necessary arrangements for clear passage from Stuart to Greenville, S.C., Waukeegan, Ill., and Milwaukee.

It was Frankie Silas' first airplane trip.

"Are you nervous?"

"No. I'm not nervous. But, if they don't get going soon, I'm going right back home," she said firmly.

"What do you think of the plane?"

"It isn't as big as I am," she said.

Earl Paton, the pilot, loaded the giant suitcase in the luggage area, saying, "This is heavy. How much have you got in here?"

Frankie said, "I don't know what the weather is like up there. I've never been there, so I brought what I need."

"Let me ask you one question. How long have you been flying?"

Paton smiled.

Well, I began flying in 1936. I have about 30,000 hours in the air, and have been flying with Outboard Marine for 22 years."

Frankie seemed to relax at that comment. She boarded the plane and took a trial seat in the pilot's cockpit.

"Look at all those buttons," she marveled.

There's a complete set on both sides, one for each pilot."

Oh, that's nice. Then one can take a rest."

On her way to visit in Milwaukee and Chicago, Frankie Silas got comfortable in the lounge seat in the aircraft as the rest of the passengers boarded. She looked out the window, then straight ahead.

The big engines thundered to life, and the Beechcraft rumbled on to the runway.

Then, the plane took off into the air.

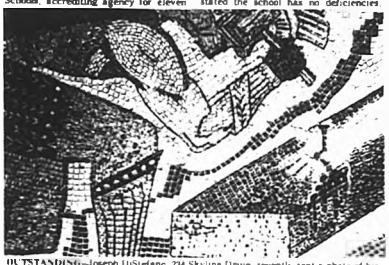
BOARDING—Frankie Silas stands beside the Beechcraft King Air before leaving on her first trip in a plane.

Academy gets top rating

Howey-in-the-Hills—Howey Academy has again received the highest accreditation rating provided by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, accrediting agency for eleven southeastern states.

Co-educational college prepatory Howey in central Florida received official notification of the rating, which stated the school has no deficiencies following a regular ten-year evaluation by a SACS committee last spring.

The committee commended Howey on the quality of its facilities, faculty and curriculum. The twelve-member team of educators recommended highest accreditation on both the junior high and high school levels.



OUTSTANDING—Joseph DiStefano, 234 Skyline Drive, recently sent a photo of his artistic tile work of a Roman centurion nailing the hands of Jesus to the cross to Oral Roberts. Roberts described the talent of DiStefano "truly outstanding" in a letter to the artist. "Be assured of my prayers for God to bless this talent." Roberts wrote. Each tile was fired and compiled in Jensen Beach by DiStefano and his wife, and the artwork is a part of a series of nine.

Jeff Eite passed and now has his novice license and, with Larry's assistance, he got on the air.

Now all of this has me confused for I know so little about it, but I know it must be important for two such talented men to be so enthused over it. Congratulations to both.

Larry also told me that they are keeping in close contact with their daughter, getting all progress reports on the new grandson.

The Atkins are looking forward to seeing the baby in September when he and his family spend some time in V.H.

D & M Mobile Park

BY MILDRED TICE STINNETT

We were all saddened by the news that Bob Brouillette, husband of Juanita, and brother-in-law of Darlene Patnaude, one of our neighbors, died at his home in Momence, Illinois. Bob and Juanita used to live in D & M and Juanita taught Art here.

Darlene and her husband Herman Patnaude went to Momence for the funeral, stayed a week, and now are home again.

Esther Gentry, who with her husband Andy lived here for a long time, was another casualty, passing away July 4th. Both Esther and Andy were well known in shuffleboard circles, here and in Stuart. Andy is presently a resident of Stuart Convalescent Center.

* * *

Then we learned of the sudden death of Keith Morley, husband of Dorothy, in Oneonta, New York.

We extend our sympathy to the families of these friends and neighbors.

Monday morning Marvin Wininger drove Doc Pruske to the Veterans Hospital in Miami for a series of tests. Doc's wife Kate is staying with friends in Miami, awaiting the results of the tests. Good luck, Doc; we don't want you to miss too much fishing.

Stopped in to have a chat with Verna Moran and she told me she had heard from the Merle Conklins and that Merle is not well.

On a more cheerful note, Agnes and Art Surreney came back from Madison, Wisconsin, yesterday, after a visit at the home of Agnes' brother John McBride who, with his wife Hannah, spends the winter months at D & M. Agnes said that part of the country is very beautiful, but home looks even better.

They had dinner one evening with my winter neighbors, the Lipperts, and then went to take a look at his law office. While they were all there a tornado hit, but, luckily, they were not in its path.

Our Banana King, Emil Twist, told me about some mangos he had grown, and when I stopped by his wife Alice showed them to me: each weighs two pounds!

"Pepper", Alice's talented parakeet, who ordinarily talks a blue streak, was not in the mood, and wouldn't even say "hello" to me.

Our bingo games on Tuesday evenings have been very well attended, and no wonder, with Adrian Snyder and Emil Twist doing the calling, and Paul Myhl taking over when winners' cards are read off, who could stay away.

Heard Fran and Bill Gehres found home a bit on the cold side when they left here, so cold that Fran, who is an avid golfer, couldn't play her favorite game until things warmed up.

Two of our Canadians, Jack and Olive Binns, are enjoying their summer home in Quebec Province, and we learned that Chris and Alice Willoughby, who live in Oshawa, had a bit of bad luck. Chris had to have surgery, but is well on the road to recovery.

While I was in Ft. Eustis, Virginia, with my daughter Jill, I was very happy to attend, with Jill and grandson Mark, the ceremonies during which my son-in-law Jim Harris was promoted to Sergeant First Class.

* * *

Mrs. H. M. Carter, mother of our Alice Twist, is going to celebrate her 91st birthday soon; so Alice is traveling to Clinton, Wisconsin, to be with her for that momentous occasion. Mrs. Carter resides there with Emil Sr. at D & M, and I couldn't help but be impressed with her vivacity and charm when I met her last winter.

There's some news, but believe I'll save some for the next time.

OPEN LETTER TO FREEZER OWNERS

I am planning on opening a small meat market in Jensen Beach featuring only imported Nebraska grain fed choice beef at super market prices. I've been told I would fail.

I would like to make a test run by offering this very top beef at only $1.29 per lb, which includes cutting, freezer wrapping and delivering. Also all steaks and roasts cut to your weight and specifications.

If your freezer will not hold an entire side, you may try a half a side or less at this same price per pound. A side will weigh approximately 210 lbs. before trimming.

You may phone me day or night or Sunday at 878-0694, which is a local call. No obligation.

Deadline nears for hobby show entrants

PORT ST. LUCIE—Only two days remain for registering entries in the second annual Youth Hobby Show to be held at the Port St. Lucie Community Center August 21.

All entrants must register in order to exhibit. Registration forms, available at the Community Center, must be completed and returned to the center prior to the 4:30 p.m. August 13 deadline, according to Mrs. Robert Butch Post, the center's youth coordinator.

The Youth Hobby Show, sponsored by the PSL Junior Woman's Club, will be open to the public Saturday, August 21, from 1 to 5 p.m. A small admission will be charged for adults. Children under 12 must be accompanied by an adult.

Refreshments will be served during the afternoon and the awards presentations at 5 p.m. will highlight the show. The exhibit will be open to all boys and girls who are residents of the Port St. Lucie-River Park area, or who live south of Midway Road in St. Lucie County.

According to the co-chairmen of the exhibit, Mrs. Robert Satchwill and Mrs. Wallace Harned, the entries will be divided into five age classifications: preschool, kindergarten through third grade, grades 4-5-6, grades 7-8-9, and for grades 10 through 12.

The four categories will include models, arts, crafts and collections.

Ribbon awards will be made in each category, and certificates will be awarded to all entrants. A special award for the best in each category and a $5 cash award for the best in each age classification will also be made.

Exhibits will be accepted on a first come, first served basis with entries limited to two per person.

To assist the children and young people in preparing for the show, the Junior Woman's Club sponsored craft classes at the Community Center during the summer.

From all indications, the second annual Youth Hobby Show promises many unusual and interesting exhibits for those attending.

Presidents' Council to change format

PORT ST. LUCIE—Cedric Benz, president of the Presidents' Council in Port St. Lucie, announced this week that, due to conditions arising the past couple of months and for the good of all concerned, he has appointed a special committee who will submit a report at the next council meeting, August 19, revising the by-laws of the organization. Under the new format the council will have only one formal meeting annually, and special meetings at the call of the president, or by petition signed by at least eight members of the council.

If approved, the amendment will be effective immediately.

The committee was comprised of Judd Reading, chairman; Ruth McDonald, Bob Carl, Tom Hultgas and Cedric Benz.

Community center to spearhead paper drive

PORT ST. LUCIE—Before the week is out, area residents will not only have a convenient way to dispose of their old newspapers and magazines, but they can take part in the nation's recycling movement and, at the same time, help their community center pickup a few extra dollars to defray the ever-increasing operating costs of the center.

A West Palm Beach recycling firm in conjunction with the Port St. Lucie Community Center will sponsor a waste paper drive in this south county community starting this week.

According to Dick Landin, president of the community center, arrangements were finalized with the Twin City Waste Material Co., Inc. of West Palm Beach to conduct the drive.

Twin City will place a large container adjacent to the center's parking lot on the south side for the convenience of area residents who wish to dispose of their neatly tied bundles of old newspapers and magazines. The firm agreed to replace the container when filled, deduct the $40 service charge and send the community center a check for the market price per hundred pounds within 24 hours of pickup. The current market price is $1 per hundred.

Landin said he is hopeful of obtaining the cooperation of the three homeowner associations to assist with the drive and arrange for pickups throughout the area in cases where the individual is unable to bring his collection to the center.

Others are asked to place their bundles inside and to the rear of the container.

Tina Spesato, a newly elected trustee, is chairman of the recycling committee and Werner Zugschwerdt is vice-chairman.

Twin City has guaranteed to buy the Port St. Lucie papers until May 1, 1977.

"This does not mean we will stop picking up the paper at that time," said the firm's president, adding, "We hope to continue the service as long as it is beneficial to our mutual interest."

...lew council moving

...ST LUCIE—With four counties ...ny politicians involved, there is ...to be some unhappiness over the ...s of the new Treasure Coast ...al Planning Council.

...municipal officials want more ...e control, and it appears that ...they will be heard at the August 19 ...meeting at the Executive Plaza Building ...in Stuart.

...On the other hand, city leaders think ...the structure is "fair."

..."I think the representation is fair," ...Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Glueckler said. "I think the council is a fine thing and I believe the system of representation ...they have while it may not please all the ...municipalities is fair," Port St. Lucie Administrator Elmer Cox said.

Cox added, however, that he would like to see each county arrange for the cities to be represented on a rotating basis.

As it now stands, representation to the 15-member council will include two county commissioners and one municipal member from Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River Counties, and four county commissioners and two municipal members from Palm Beach County.

The City of Vero Beach attempted to gain voting membership, offering to pay $2,600—16 cents per resident—but they were turned down by Indian River County commissioners. The mayor of Sebastian, Eugene Cragg, was selected as the city representative.

Charles Foster, mayor of Stuart, said he would like to see the City of Stuart represented on the council.

"Stuart is the biggest town in Martin County, and I think the representative should come from the most populated area," Foster said.

Municipalities in all the counties are expected to make their selection along with county commissioners prior to the August 19 session.

Palm Beach County Municipal League is unhappy with its representation, pointing out that 72 per cent of the county's population resides within municipalities. They want four of the county's six members.

"We don't think rurally oriented commissioners should dominate a district where the root of the problem is in the urban areas," Palm Beach Town Manager George Frost said.

But the municipal officers appear to have little chance of winning their fight in either county. County commissioners seem to be in control.

County commissioners are moving ahead to sign interlocal agreements for council membership and naming their representatives.

Also, Martin County is expected to be the location of the new council headquarters.

Cox, who worked for the Fort Pierce-St. Lucie County planning council for more than three years, said he was one of the "pioneer movers for the new council."

"When the four counties met in Palm Beach County Courthouse more than a year ago, I was one of the so-called interveners who spoke in favor of the new district because of the compatibility of the four counties," Cox said.

At the initial meeting of the new council last month, there was little disagreement among the representatives of the four counties.

There may be some internal strife in some localities, but it was internal bickering that helped create the Treasure Coast Council. Martin, St. Lucie and Palm Beach Counties pulled out of the South Florida Regional Planning Council, complaining that their southern neighbors — Dade, Broward and Monroe — too often favored high density projects.

ORDINANCE—If and when the city enforces its newly adopted sign ordinance, it appears that the St. Lucie County Sheriff could likely be among the first to be a violation.

NEWLY ELECTED. Nine new trustees were elected to the board of the Port St. Lucie Community Center last Friday evening when the group held its first meeting under a new format. For the first time, the trustees, with their spouses in attendance, held their meeting in the evening following a 6:30 p.m. cocktail and social hour. Thirty seven of the fifty one trustees were on hand for the session. Pictured above, left to right, are the newly elected trustees: Mrs. Roy Hampton, Mrs. Seymour Fleming, Donald D. Spesato, Mrs. Thomas Gates, Mrs. Wayne Gibson, Mrs. Richard Cook and Mrs. Carroll Everett. Also elected, but not present for the picture were: Mrs. Lewis Levinson and Mrs. Thomas Norton.

Swine Flu shots are planned for PSL

PORT ST. LUCIE—Dr. Fred S. Carter, chairman of the City's Health Committee, recommended residents avail themselves of the Swine Flu innoculations when the vaccine is made available in St. Lucie County.

Pointing out the Swine Flu vaccine is as safe or safer than other vaccines being used, Carter said anyone allergic to egg yolks, pregnant women and children under six years of age should not take the shots.

In making the committee's first presentation before the City Council Tuesday morning, Carter explained the government's goal is providing the vaccine through local health departments is to get sixty per cent of the population innoculated. Without enough susceptible people, the Swine Flue cannot reach epidemic proportions.

Except for what he termed "high risk" individuals—those persons, regardless of age, suffering from a chronic condition—Carter said that persons 65 years of age and older should receive two shots, those under 65, one shot. The amount of vaccine required is determined by the age of the recipient.

According to the local doctor, reactions to the innoculations are quite limited. One person out of ten will have a sore arm, one in twenty five will experience flu like symptoms for a day, and one person out of one thousand will be really sick for a period of four or five days.

Carter pointed out that persons coming down with the flu within a period of one week following the innoculations already had the virus prior to receiving the shot.

It was also suggested that, when the vaccine is available, residents obtain their shots from the free clinics which will be established in the county, rather than from their private physicians. Carter indicated one such clinic would likely be set up at the Port St. Lucie Community Center for the convenience of south county residents.

City adopts $763,238 budget

PORT ST. LUCIE—While the city fathers spent four sessions juggling the 1976-77 budget figures from one line item to another, the fourth and final draft was approved Tuesday morning by a 3-1 vote, with no change being made in the $763,238 total as presented in the original document.

Councilman Bill McChesney, who cast the only negative vote, has maintained throughout the sessions that the budget was overstated.

"I have no objections to building a surplus. However, I do feel these surplus figures should be labeled, not just lumped into a contingency fund year after year," he said.

Councilman Larry Kimmel eventually seconded the motion of City Treasurer and Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan to adopt the budget, saying he sincerely hoped the City would get down to business and start providing some of the services the people have been promised.

"If we are not going to get with these projects, such as establishing a city police force then I must agree with Mr. McChesney that the budget is grossly overstated," Kimmel said.

Vice Mayor Frank Rose is on vacation and did not vote on the budget.

Yachters will dine

The event will be held at the Elks Lodge in Stuart, with cocktails at 6 p.m. salad bar at 6:30 and a sit down roast beef dinner at 7 p.m.

The dinner dance will be limited to 200 members and guests, and the ticket deadline is August 18.

Tickets are available from chairmen Harold and Dorothy Hazell, their committee and any member of the board of directors.

Dress will be informal and music for dancing will be provided by The Four Yachtsmen.

Riverettes plan buffet luncheon

PORT ST. LUCIE—The Riverettes, alumni group of the Welcome Wagon Club, will hold a buffet luncheon meeting at the Home Port Inn on Monday, August 16, at 11:30 a.m.

Members and guests are invited to attend. Cards will be provided for those who wish to play until 4 p.m.

Host celebrates birthday with Gang

PORT ST. LUCIE—The host of the Friday Nite Gang celebrated his 39th birthday at last week's Gang session. Following a boisterous rendition of Happy Birthday, a treat of homemade cupcakes furnished by Frances Bernota, the Snooper, Frances Lee and Natalie Deible were enjoyed by all during the coffee break.

Besides reporting Benz's birthday, the Snooper came up with three visitors: Harold Hatcheler from Greensboro, Ga., visiting the Batsons, and Scott and Bryan Batson from White Plains, Ga., visiting their grandparents the Earl Campbells.

It was one of those nights when the play of the young folks far overshadowed that of the older, as it seemed that every other game was won by a youngster while the "old folks" just watched and grinned.

Grandmother Evelyn Walters took the final game of the evening, however, and took home the main prize.

Green turtle program increases nesting 100 percent

BY DICK CAMPBELL

JENSEN BEACH–Ross Witham has changed the expression "The chickens are coming home to roost" to the "green turtles are coming home to roost."

Witham who directs the green turtle conservation project in Martin County, recently told the Jensen Beach Kiwanis Club Monday that efforts to keep the green turtle from becoming extinct appear to be bearing fruit, or turtles.

Witham was found that the turtle nesting activities on that part of the Florida coastline in Martin County increased by 100 per cent.

Witham traced the turtle hatching program back to the beginnings of the program in 1955, when it was found that green turtles were in danger of extinction. He began digging up the green turtle nests and incubating and rearing the baby turtles in the House of Refuge museum.

In 1967, only one green turtle was found to have nested in Indian River waters, and in 1968 there was only one green turtle found on Hutchinson Island.

It was in 1971 that the state asked Witham to work on the project, and he moved 17 nests in the first year, hatching the eggs in captivity, raising the young turtles to a size that could insure the chance that the turtles would live, releasing them and releasing them in the ocean.

The project released 1,000 turtles in 1972, and 500 turtles in 1973.

Considering that the turtles mature in about 15 years, the timing is right to have the hatchlings returning to the beaches of Hutchinson Island to continue the cycle of life, digging the nests and laying the eggs.

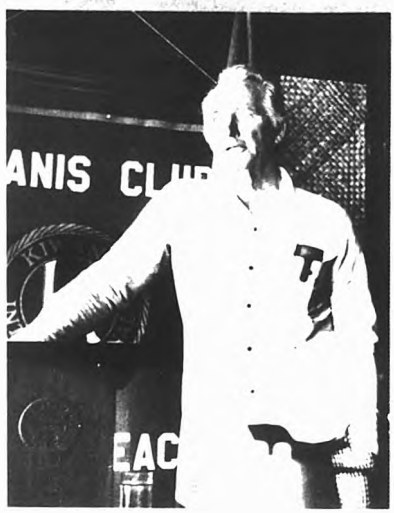
In that time, Costa Rican turtle eggs have been raised here, and released.

While the tag returns have indicated that this year is the year of the return of the green turtles to the area, Witham reported that cold water has reduced the number of crawls on Hutchinson Island, with only seven nests gathered and thirty "crawls" identified.

With facilities limited to the handling of only 1,000 turtles a year, Witham has reached out to private help and the Miami Seaquarium to get assistance. He distributes the young turtles to other areas for raising and release.

At present, Witham is negotiating with Florida Power and Light Company for turtle raising pens at the two nuclear power plants at Hutchinson Island and Turkey Point to expand the program.

"I like turtle meat. I hope that some day we can return to having the green turtle as a commercial food on the market," Witham said. The program hopes to make the green turtles available so that laws limiting the catching of the turtles can be removed and people can again enjoy the green turtle soups and steaks that were so popular.



WITHAM AND TURTLES–Ross Witham, director of the green turtle research and development project in Martin County, told Jensen Kiwanians Monday that his project seems to have proven that turtles raised in pens will return when reaching maturity.

Samaritans need donations

JENSEN BEACH–Jensen Area Samaritans, Inc., will end their fund raising campaign Aug. 31 and they are still short of their $6,000 goal to furnish the new Ambulance House, the Building Committee chairman said Monday.

The Samaritans have collected about $4,700, chairman George Krauss said. "We will end our drive Aug. 31 whether or not we have reached our goal."

Samaritans are seeking cash and furniture for the house now under construction at 1250 N.E. Samaritan Street, just east of South Savanna Road.

Tax deductible items may be sent to Building Fund, Post Office Box 182, Jensen Beach, 33457, Krauss said.

We hope that the people of the area will donate money and items to the campaign so put us over the top," he said.

The Samaritans provide free ambulance service to Jensen Beach, Rio, Sewall's Point, Ocean Breeze Park, North River Shores, Hutchinson Island, Eden and Walton.

Candidates attack bureaucracy

JENSEN BEACH–Government bureaucracy came under fire from Martin County political candidates at the first public meeting of the Property owners Political Action Committee (PPAC) last Thursday night at the Elks Club.

Feature speaker at the meeting, Attorney Evans Crary, Jr. led the attack against bureaucracy and county ordinances before candidates gave their two-minute talks.

Crary claimed that property owners constitutional rights are being violated by county regulations.

"The constitution provides that government cannot take property without just compensation," Crary said.

"It has got too expensive to pass you for your land, so now they let you keep but won't let you use it," he charged.

Crary, a frequent critic of the County Commission, said county regulations are not proper under the law, but they are not tested in the courts because "it is cheaper to knuckle under rather than stand up for your rights."

Some of the candidates echoed Crary's claims that property owners' constitutional rights are being violated by the county regulations.

County commissioner candidate Dick Scott charged the commissioners have developed a full time Washington type bureaucracy and paralleled the growth of cancer.

SPEAKER–Evans Crary, Jr., Martin County attorney, was the guest speaker for the first meeting of the Property Owners Political Action Committee.

Tax Commissioner candidate Dr. William Morris called for a government "receptive to the people," and commission candidate Ted Merlin added that "it is time to put government back in the hands of the people."

Lottie Zarnitz, democratic candidate for clerk of circuit court, said if she is elected she will reduce the clerk's salary $26,000 for all four years of her term.

Republican Jerry Lassiter, Beach Republican, said he isn't running for the money. I would not run for this job for a paid $10,000.

Next local appearance by candidates will be Sept. 22 at 8 p.m. at the Elks Club.

All of the candidates are invited to attend, Crary said.

Lassiter said he will research legal ways to limit legal research on attacking county ordinances.

Heather Bryan Dunton was chairman of the meeting, which was attended by most of the candidates and some 50 persons.

Sewall's Point budget is set

SEWALL'S POINT–An operating budget of $165,000 for the fiscal year 1976-77 is expected to be adopted at the September 8 meeting of Sewall's Point Commissioners.

Commissioners reviewed the proposed budget at its last week's meeting. It is only slightly higher than the present budget. $150,663 and will carry the same tax mills tax levy.

The road budget of $67,113 is the biggest expenditure for next year with $35,000 slated for South River Road. Another $25,000 is budged for road maintenance.

Salaries for town employees is the second highest proposed expenditure set at $36,526. The Police Chief's slated budget $11,461 with the patrolman getting $10,542. The Town Clerk is slated to receive $10,128, with the building inspector's salary at $4,400.

Engineering surveys and other related items total $9,000 and legal expenditures including attorney and judge totals $6,500.

Other items in the budget include building and grounds maintenance, contingencies, insurance and capital outlay.

A majority of the revenue will come from real estate taxes $74,784 with $18,500 coming from the franchise tax and a total of $37,957 in cash in the bank. State revenue totals $10,000 with federal revenue sharing at $4,259.

In other commission work last week they heard a report on water pressure called inadequate. By Martin County District 2 Fire Marshal John Hendry. Hendry said recent pump pressure tests varied from a low of 25 per cent at 9:30 a.m. to 55 per cent pressure at midday.

And commissioners discussed the possibility of a once-a-week rubbish pickup but decided it would be too costly.

Mayor Ed Gluckler said the plan would require raising taxes.

Plan Olympics slide show, sound track Friday

JENSEN BEACH–A one-hour color slide show backed by the original sound track of the Montreal Olympics, will be presented at the Lecture Hall in the administration building of Florida Institute of Technology Friday at 7 p.m. The show is the creation of Dr. Joan Tierney, chairman of the Communications and Arts Department of Concordia University in Montreal, who lives at Outdoor Resorts.

Dr. Tierney, who was born in Jersey City, N.J., has a hobby of photography and obtained the musical sound track of the Olympics composed by Andre Mathieu and adapted by Victor Vogel.

The 276 slides will feature scenes that are the flavor of the Olympics, showing the architecture highlights of the American swimming and women's gymnastics and a special feature with pictures of the royal British family at Headquarters site of the equestrian trials.

Questions and answers will follow.

Water study for island

JENSEN BEACH–The Martin County Commission last week authorized an engineering study to find a way to provide adequate water supply to Hutchinson Island.

The commissioners instructed consultant Jim Bishop of Tallahassee to prepare a study outlining alternate methods for water sources and cost. The study is to provide the study in 90 days.

The study represents the first step in the possible takeover by the county of a private system operated by Southern Gulf Utilities. The firm gets its water from the City of Stuart and supplies water to Sewall's Point and the island.

Even with the purchase of the water supplying water is difficult since the City of Stuart is currently under review by the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District.

The state agency has denied additional city well fields until adequate tests are made.

Gluckler picked for council

JENSEN BEACH–Sewall's Point Mayor Ed Gluckler will be Martin County's municipality representative on the 15-member Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council.

Mayors of the county's four cities met Monday and voted 3 to 1 to have Gluckler represent the municipalities on the newly formed council.

Charles Potter, Stuart mayor, was named alternate.

Martin County Commission picked Tom Higgins and Maggy Hurchalla as representatives.

The second meeting of the council will be at 8 a.m. Thursday, August 19 at the Martin County Administrative Center Executive Plaza and will elect temporary officers and appoint subcommittees.

The four county planning council – Martin, St. Lucie, Indian River and Palm Beach – held its original meeting last month and agreed on a name.

FUTURE STUDENT–Hundreds of Martin County High School students will be boarding buses this week as school opens at 7:30 a.m. Friday, August 20. Four year old Cassandra Gettings won't be on the bus, but she is reading her books at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gettings, 305 Spruce Ridge Road, Jensen Beach, preparing for future school bus rides.

STUART—The Stuart Recreation Department in cooperation with local racquet ball enthusiasts will sponsor basic instruction for interested residents.

The program will consist of five one hour classes and will include such topics as introduction to racquet ball, techniques, rules, type of equipment and so forth.

Jim McMahon, Superintendent of Recreation, emphasized the program is for beginners or persons with very little experience in the game. Students will have to furnish their own racquet and should wear tennis shoes. The Recreation Department will supply rule books and racquet ball.

Sessions will be held at the Stuart Racquet Ball courts located in Memorial Park on Georgia Avenue. Instruction for young people ages 10-16 will be held Thursday evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 and will cost $2.50.

Instruction for adults ages 17 and older will be Tuesday evenings 6:30-7:30 with a fee of $5 for the entire course.

Instructors will be Bill Scott, Ray Crowl and Dick Dungee. The first class will be held August 24 and pre-registration at the Stuart Youth Center on Flagler Avenue is necessary as classes will be limited.

FCD budget is set

JENSEN BEACH—No one appeared at a public hearing Friday to oppose, endorse or otherwise comment on the proposed $23,085,140 budget for the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control District (FCD). However, the governing board proposed that an additional $20,000 be included in the new budget as matching funds for the Kissimmee River Valley Restoration Council as required by US House Bill No. 31718 passed by the 1976 Legislature.

The Legislative act appropriated $100,000 from the General Revenue Fund to be set up as a separate account and required that the FCD match state funds equal to 20 percent of their allocation.

Robert Grafton, FCD attorney, said the legislative act made an interesting legal problem for the District in that it required that the District use ad valorem taxes for this purpose and under the Constitution the State is prohibited from levying an ad valorem tax.

After considerable discussion as to the purpose and objectives of the council John H. Mahin, executive director, assured the board that the newly formed council would review all studies made of the river and consider previous FCD proposed modifications for the river. The board voted to make a conditional approval to the final budget.

The funds appropriated will pay $45,000 for staff salaries and the remainder of the funds would be used for contract studies. Mahin also pointed out that the council will not only review the Kissimmee River but will include Taylor Creek and Nubbin Slough and when their studies are completed they will report back to the Legislature as to their findings and make what recommendations they feel are justified.

Venture Harbour

BY JESSIE SHAVER

Fading, fading, so little news to report.

Bob and Kay Smyth have gone to Virginia for a few weeks.

Shirley and Jack Britton, from Michigan, came in this past week in their motor home and will be getting their mobile home (former Gerard home) ready to move into Welcome to Venture Harbour.

Lee and Harriet Price have ordered their mobile home and it won't be too long before it will be here.

* * *

Joe and Millie Capra have certainly made a showplace of their new home. The shrubbery installed this past week makes it look like it has been there a long time as Joe had fully grown trees and bushes put in.

* * *

Al Jones reports that he heard from Stanley Clark and he and Barbara send their regards to all. Also sees that Betty and Paul Brinkard are home in Michigan from their Canadian Alaska trip. They also send regards to all.

* * *

Evan Turner talked to Todd Horne and they will make start their trip back to W Hy way 41 Alabama where they will visit Lula a Heather for a few days and then be on their way home.

* * *

The Monday meetings to discuss ideas and work on bazaar articles are still going on Betty Jones' Hope all the absent ones are thinking of and doing some work on ideas of their own.

Our granddaughter Sharon Heinrich of Morristown, Pa. is married with us. It is always nice to have her here.

No birthdays or anniversaries on us for the month of Sept. I guess I missed someone please let me know so that we can update our list.

A letter from Tena and Geoff Van Raay with good news. Geoff has recovered fully from his operation. They are now parked at Mitchells Bay, Canada, for the rest of the summer. Their neighbors there are Bill and Norma De Koning, and Bill and Petrea Chaisson have visited that park.

Seems the Chaissons had been to the Grand Canyon and had visited Dick and June Groves in Michigan, and been to Del and Mae Slam's trailer park at Tomahawk, Wisc., enroute. They left Mitchells Bay for Walkerton, Ontario, to visit Steve and Edie Pointon, then continue on to visit friends in Toronto. They will wind up in their home town in Massachusetts to visit relatives and friends before returning to H.O. the middle of October.

Frank and Bootie White made a surprise visit to the Raays also.

Lester Maxwell, lot 516, was in for a few days' vacation.

Al and Louise Schneider are now the proud owners of a beautiful motor home.

Heard from Naomi and Scherely Green of lot 166. They made a three-week trip around Lake Superior, traveling 1800 miles, accompanied by Edward and Eleanor Cadwallader and Arthur and Lillian Novotney. Seems the trailers have been put to good use with shorter trips to northern Michigan also. Now the Greens are looking forward to chinook fishing in the fall before they return to H.O.

Joan Byrne's father, Ben G. Barten of Jacksonville was a weekend guest on 217. He was very enthused with H.O.

Rumors are that Marvin and Evie Smith, after selling their lot to the Roys, will be spending some time in the vicinity this winter. He is completing their home in Virginia first, then will assist in winterizing the cabins in the camp for the children in the mountains before coming down.

The Langs and Byrnes started playing their dart game again. All were still very good, even though they hadn't played for many months.

Bob and Betty Leister and Homer and Polly Carlson enjoyed dinner and the show at the Manatee Saturday evening.

After a hard and tiring week working on the budget for the School for Exceptional Children in Ft. Lauderdale, the principal, Mrs. Jean Stanley, and daughter Lisa spent the weekend with coworker Betty Nagy, relaxing and resting. DING ROOM ONLY—It was indeed standing room only e Port St. Lucie City Hall Tuesday when area residents gathered to voice their objections to what has been termed an excessive budget and increased millage rate. Among those objecting were members of the Civic League.

PROPOSED CHARTER

Included in this issue is the proposed Port St. Lucie City Charter, as prepared by the eleven member Charter Revision Committee. Extra copies are available throughout the community in civic and governmental offices for distribution to the public.

Protests stall city budget, millage

PORT ST. LUCIE—The City Council approved the city's 1976-77 budget by a 3-1 vote last week, and while that decision was reversed by a 3-2 vote during a special session Tuesday when the ordinance adopting the budget and millage was presented, there is little doubt the same ordinance will appear again next week.

According to City Administrator Elmer Cox, the ordinance can be revised by a majority vote of the council, and that majority vote he does not have as yet.

A move by Councilwoman Lolita Kernohan to approve the ordinance adopting the budget and establishing the 2.2027 mills died for the want of a second.

It was Councilman Larry Kimmel who last week seconded the motion by Kernohan for approval, but that decision was reversed this week. Kimmel said he had observed certain things which to him indicated the city council had shown "A lack of appreciation for the excess funds."

"For one thing, I see here before me a city charter, drawn up by the Mayor at the city's expense," Kimmel said in voicing his disapproval of the ordinance.

"If we are going to pay for individuals to each prepare his own version of a city charter, then I will also submit one.

"On this basis, I cannot approve the budget and hereby make a motion to reduce the millage rate to 1.5 which will reduce the ad valorem taxes by approximately $80,000," Kimmel said, adding this would reduce the overall budget by less than 15 percent, an amount which would not meet any sacrifices on the part of employee raises, etc.

Before the standing room only crowd that packed City Hall, Kimmel pointed out the $80,000 could be taken from several places in the budget, including the contingency fund, capital outlay and-or capital reserve.

Even when Kimmel approved the increased tax levy and budget last week, he had done so with reservations. He told the council at that time that if they were not going to spend the money allotted for expanded services (police department, city hall, public works etc.) then he, too, would consider the budget overstated and excessive.

Councilman Bill McChesney, who until now has stood alone in claiming the budget excessive, did some fast figuring before agreeing with Kimmel that 1.5 mills would suffice.

During the morning session, several residents of the community, as well as representatives of the Port St. Lucie Civic League, were critical of the budget and millage figures. For the most part, the objections centered around today's residents paying for or setting aside money in the budget for services and street maintenance programs which probably won't be inaugurated within the next ten years.

As one resident put it, "When we need to maintain all the streets within the city, then there will be residents here to support the cost of that maintenance program."

Meanwhile, even more opposition is expected to attend the next council session when the ordinance will once again be brought up.

AARP to hear local attorney

Attorney Harold N. Goldman of Port St. Lucie will cover such items as wills, estates and other legal matters of interest to those attending the session. According to AARP President Fred Wiggin, a question and answer period will be included.

At a recent meeting of the AARP board, two new committees were established. James Kearney will chair the membership service committee and Fred Wiggin, who has been active in local health matters, will chair the newly established health committee.

Kearney has placed the establishment of a legal counselling service for AARP members as the number one priority of the membership service committee. Other services to be included will be financing and insurance.

Center is collecting for conservation and funds

PORT ST. LUCIE—In a move to focus attention on the conservation of energy and provide a service for area residents as well as to add to the revenue of its facility, the Port St. Lucie Community Center has made arrangements with the Twin City Waste Material Co., Inc., of West Palm Beach for the collection of newspapers and magazines from the Center.

Residents are urged to bring their waste paper and magazines, bundled together or separately, and deposit them in or at the container provided by Twin City. Bundles should be tied and held to a size easily carried by the donor.

Pick-ups will be made promptly by Twin City when the containers are filled, and new containers provided concurrently. Residents will have an orderly disposal of waste paper, and the Center will benefit monetarily from the sale of the paper.

The greatest advantage to all, however, will be a real contribution toward the conservation of energy through the re-cycling of these waste products.

Don Sposato is heading the recycling and waste management committee, while Werner Zugschwerdt is serving as vice chairman. All three area homeowners' groups are included on the committee. Zugschwerdt is investigating the possibility of adding waste aluminum to the collection for the purpose of recycling.

CESA President Dick Lundin said of the venture, "We consider this an opportunity not only to augment our operating revenues but to provide an outlet for waste paper and magazines that should completely divert them from the weekly trash pickups into recycling channels.

If everyone in the community will just cooperate, we can get this job done in a big way.

ER CONTAINER—A huge container was placed to the side of the Port St. Lucie Community Center parking lot storage of neatly tied bundles of newspaper and magazines. A hurricane closed access to the island

It wasn't until 1925 that Hutchinson Island was linked to Jensen Beach by a long, wood-plank bridge. The draw swung to the side, with two persons walking in a circle to move it.

In 1949, a hurricane blew out several spans, and the only way to keep access was to dredge a causeway. Step-by-step, the new bridge was built, and when completed in 1965 it was named the "Frank A. Wacha Bridge."

The first life insurance company was called "The Presbyterian Ministers Fund" and was organized in 1759.

By 1820, there were 17 stock life insurance companies in the state of New York alone.

A sense of unity and common purpose came from the battle at North Bridge

The Minutemen attacked the British at Concord's North Bridge, and the Revolutionary War was begun. Most were peasant farmers who would grab a gun and powder pouch in a minute to move against the British.

But it was the battle at Concord North Bridge that "fired the shot heard round the world," a battle that gave unity and common purpose to the American fight for liberty.

MARTIN COUNTY CHAPTER, AMERICAN RED CROSS

Here in Martin County the Red Cross has centered on in the tradition of Clara Barton for nearly 50 years giving assistance to our citizens. Locally funded as a United Way Agency and through membership drives, the Martin County Chapter provides assistance to Armed Forces personnel and families in case of emergencies, first aid and water safety instruction, sewing items for Veterans hospitals and setting up and staffing Burricane or other disaster shelters. Our local Red Cross Chapter depends on volunteers to do its community work having only one full time salaried employee at the Chapter House on F. 3th Street in Stuart. When you volunteer or give to your United Way, you are helping the Red Cross fulfill its duty to the people of Martin County.

A hurricane closed access to the island

It wasn't until 1925 that Hutchinson Island was linked to Jensen Beach by a long, wood-plank bridge. The draw swung to the side, with two persons walking in a circle to move it.

In 1949, a hurricane blew out several spans, and the only way to keep access was to dredge a causeway. Step-by-step, the new bridge was built, and when completed in 1965 it was named the "Frank A. Wacha Bridge."

The Conestoga wagon, the Surrey, the horse-drawn wagon were the 18th century means of getting around.

With the advent of the internal combustion engine at the turn of the century, a mad scramble arose to put it to use.

Motorcars were born, but none achieved the acceptance and success of those produced by Henry Ford. By 1926, the Ford Model T sold for $350, a price that millions of Americans could afford.

Mass on Florida soil

Over two hundred years before the founding of our Country, Christianity was brought to Florida. Priests had constructed an altar, and the Spanish Conquistadors gathered with Indians and sailors for the first mass.

It was on September 8, 1565, that the first parish mass in North America was said at St. Augustine.

Suits were manufactured in 1850

The first men's ready made suits were manufactured in Boston about 1850 by John Simmons, founder of Simmons College

Until that time, many items were meticulously made by hand but the ready made manufacturing principles revolutionized the clothing industry

Simmons began cutting cloth to standard sizes. Previous to the sewing machine, all stitching was done by hand, but the process opened the way for the development of stores selling a full line of clothing, ready-made in general sizes

The Viking Gods whispered to Ole Evinrude

Driven by the whispered messages of the Viking Gods in his heritage, Ole Evinrude worked for fifty cents a day to learn to run a machine lathe. He was self-taught in engineering in those early days, having reached only the third grade in school.

It was in April, 1909, that Ole Evinrude made his first outboard engine. With his wife, Bess, as a working partner, he built the first ten motors by hand. Bess coined the first, history-making slogan, "Throw the oars away."

The rest is history. With the help of his son, Ralph, Ole Evinrude followed the whispered words of the Viking Gods in establishing what is now Outboard Marine Corporation, dedicated to moving people on water.

Ben Franklin and the Press

In 1721 when Ben Franklin was thirteen, he served as an apprentice printer for his brother James, who founded the New England Courant. Eight years later, he began publishing his own highly successful newspaper, the Pennsylvania Gazette. He was also responsible for starting six or eight newspapers in other colonies.

Newspapers prospered, and by 1765 most of the newspapers in the large towns were being printed on folio, or crown, sheets. Advertising consisted of notices somewhat like today's classified advertising. There was no advertising art until 1765, when Milligan's Shoe Store ran a picture of a shoe with the store name wrapped around it.

in the Colonies

The early American home was the center of activity for the whole family. All the tasks of making the necessities of life were shared by everyone in the family group.

Henry Morrison Flagler...
Builder of the Gold Coast

Whitehall... the palatial home of Henry Morrison Flagler in Palm Beach, is now a museum, but it is not the legacy of the man who opened Florida to development by building a railroad. It is the Florida East Coast Railroad, "the railroad that died at sea," that is Morrison's gift to our lives.

At one time, Flagler had every available freight steamer flying the American flag under charter to build the railroad. It took 80 shiploads of crushed rock to build the railroad to the sea.

Flagler's battle with Sewall's Point land owners for the right to bring the railroad through the peninsula ended with Palm Beach being located where it is today, rather than in this area.

Thomas A. Edison, born in 1847, was an inventive genius in his own right.

His tinkering with electrical impulses along a wire led to the development, in 1879, of the incandescent lamp. The world responded, finding a new quality of life in what had been darkness.

The American scene and the railroad station

Every hamlet, every town and city in America at one time boasted a railroad station. Typically designed, they were all instantly recognizable for what they were, a central point of assembly for travel and mail.

But in Jensen Beach, the Florida East Coast Railroad station was more than that. It was unique in being the only poured-concrete station on the line. All the rest were frame construction.

Henry Flagler, builder of the railroad, made an agreement with R.R. Ricou, Mrs. W.B. (Anita) Tilton's father, a pioneer in Jensen Beach. Flagler would build the finest station on the line if Ricou would build a two-story building to house offices and stores. The Ricou building, built in 1909, still stands on Commercial Street at the tracks.

The station was razed in 1973.

All that remains is the station sign, repainted, on the Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce building.

Jensen school opens August 30

JENSEN BEACH–Approximately 650 students are expected for the first day of school, Monday, Aug. 30, at Jensen Beach Elementary School.

We expect to pick up some more students after Labor Day," principal Dale Clark said.

While August 30 is the first day of school for the students, teachers have been busy preparing for school opening this week.

Teachers have been holding workshop sessions on math, reading and "helping the slow learner."

Kindergarten and first grade teachers met Wednesday at Jensen Beach Elementary to discuss foundations for reading success sessions.

The Jensen Beach Elementary PTA held a lunch for Jensen Beach Elementary teachers Tuesday, August 24.

Clark said new staff members include Louis Rizzolo, assistant principal, and teachers Billy Kincaid and Ann Myszkowski, both fourth grade.

On Saturday, August 28, there will be an air tour of the county for new teachers hired since September 1975 at Witham Field.

Meanwhile, a $15.6 million budget requiring an 8-mill tax levy has been presented to the school board by Superintendent James Navitsky.

A public hearing on the proposed budget will be held Sept. 8.

Navitsky said that although the amount is about $1.3 million above last year's budget, most of the difference is in capital improvement projects not completed last year and carried over into the new budget.

...MES BEACH–Approximately 50 ... of the Martin County eligible ... are expected to cast their ballots ... Tuesday, September 7, primary ...

Anything over 50 per cent will be a good turnout, Supervisor of Elections Sandra Randolph said.

And Mrs. Randolph reminded voters that they cannot switch parties in the primary. "They must vote in the party in which they are registered."

Mrs. Randolph said the new precinct 19, south of Commercial Street and including Hutchinson Island, voting will be at the Jensen Beach Community Church. She said three machines will be used for the almost 1,200 registered voters in the precinct.

Four machines will be used at precinct 7 and voting will be at Langford Park Fieldhouse. We will have four machines at the Fieldhouse and there about 2,200 eligible voters in the precinct," Mrs. Randolph said.

There are about 600 registered voters in precinct 16 and voting will be at Sewall's Point Town Hall.

In the Rio area, precinct 15, two machines will be available at the Civic Club, and there are about 700 registered voters in that precinct.

Mrs. Randolph said there are some 300 registered voters in Ocean Breeze Park, and one voting machine is to be used.

There are several contests on the Democrat and Republican ballots, and the non-partisan ballot for judicial officers.

On the Democrat ballot, three candidates are in the 10th congressional district race. G.W. (Jerry) Bowers, Robert Culpepper and Bill Sikes.

Two candidates are seeking nomination in the State House of Representatives (Jensen Beach area) – Dale Cassens and T.J. Del Rosso.

Bill Gunter, Aubyn R. Hodges, and Roosevelt Jones are in the State Treasurer race, and Phil Brewer and Katie Nichols are vying in the Florida Public Service Commission race.

On the county level, W.B. Bill Kechlike, Jr. and Ralph C. Ward, Sr. are in the sheriff's race with M.E. Hurst and Robert Mellin in the District 3 County Commission race.

Seeking District 5 nomination for County Commission are John W. Holt, Jr. Thomas G. Kenny and Mack Worley. School Board candidates are Stephen B. Calvert and Peggy Robbins. District 2, and R.D. (Skip) Breeden, Jr. and Esther Kildea, District 4.

Planning board

Martin, St.Lucie commissioners head council

JENSEN BEACH–Commissioners of Martin and St. Lucie Counties were elected to head the newly-created Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council at its second meeting last week in Stuart.

Martin County Commissioner Maggy Hurchalla was selected chairman and Commissioner George Price was named vice-chairman. Acting mayor of North Palm Beach Merse McIntyre will be secretary-treasurer of the 15-member council.

Within 45 minutes, representatives from Martin-St. Lucie Indian River and Palm Beach counties signed the pact to form the council, appointed sub committees and elected their leaders.

Palm Beach County Commissioner E.W. Red Weaver was named to head a subcommittee handling transition from other regional planning councils.

Weaver said that some of the projects in limbo before the South Florida Regional Planning Council may have to be reheard by the Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council.

Martin-St. Lucie and Palm Beach counties were members of the South Florida Council and Indian River County was a member of the East Central Regional Planning Council before the four counties ask the state to form the new council.

Commenting on the speedy action of the formation of the new council an assistant planner with the state Department of Administration said:

"The council was formed so fast because it was an indigenous move. I think there is a lot of planning interest in this area."

Associate planner Lauren Stryker also noted that it has been only 62 days since Lt. Gov. Tom Williams made the announcement approving the new council.

The agreement to form the council signed last week should be approved within ten days by the state Attorney General's office, Mrs. Stryker said.

Council members decided to explore the possibility of receiving earth designation, which would allow the council to set policy for the region prior to official beginning date.

Subcommittees appointed by Mrs. Hurchalla will draft by-laws, transition of applications, budgeting and to determine a salary range for the executive director and to seek applications. Other councils pay the directors from $21,000 to $35,000.

All counties and municipal representatives of their alternates selected to serve on the council were present at the meeting except one, the municipal representative of St. Lucie County, who has not been selected yet.

The next meeting of the council is set for Sept. 16.

Football is underway at park

BY DONNIE WILKIE

JENSEN BEACH–There is no better word to describe the football practices being held at Langford Park than typical.

As the sun sank slowly into the horizon, players began to moan and groan at sure signs of the first practice of the year in pads.

Both the upper and lower division teams were on the field Monday night beginning their second week of practice. The lower division with some 30 players is in good shape while the upper with only 18 desperately needs more youngsters.

Any boy wishing to play can sign up at the practices weeknights at 5:30 p.m. Practice will continue in the weeks ahead.

Academy limits its classes

Howey-in-the-Hills Latin summer applications for the September 12 Howey Academy fall term are currently being accepted for classrooms needed for boarding and day students.

However, immediate applications are urged by officials of the Florida accredited junior college preparatory school for music classrooms and for dormitory space for grades 7-12.

Howey policy limits classroom rosters to 15 to 20 students in required subjects and separate boys and girls residence halls accommodate only two students per room.

Howey Academy has a small school atmosphere created by students from 16 foreign countries, 26 different states and 25 Florida cities. The academic program is fully accredited to prepare the student for studies on the university, community college or career level.

Supplementing academics are recreational and athletic activities.

LIBRARY WILL BE CLOSED

STUART–The Martin County Public Library at 701 E. Ocean Boulevard, Stuart, will be closed Thursday and Friday, August 26 and 27, while personnel settle new furnishings in new addition.

My appeal for news was not entirely wasted as I had the following letter from Hempstead, N.Y. My thanks to the good doctor and Emilie.

"The Santemmas - Doctor and Emilie - leave August 15 for three weeks vacation to Alaska and southern California. They will go as far north as Nome, Alaska, and south to San Diego, California, and while in Alaska will be cruising on Glacier Bay.

"We are looking forward to November when we hope to be back in our trailer overlooking the beautiful Indian River."

Lola and Clyde Bonar returned on Sunday, bringing Lola's mother, Bama Baley, with them. She will stay a couple of weeks. Granddaughter Kelly didn't come back with them, but she sent her love to all the friends she made while here.

Lola and Clyde spent 10 days with daughter Barbara Grames and family, and then the Grames family left for a vacation in Maine.

The Bonars stopped in Alabama on the way home to pick up Mrs. Baley, and who drove in the same day but Barbara, Eddie, Tammy and Tod Grames, and they had another few days together.

While in Michigan, Lola said they saw Evelyn and George Sterling. Evelyn went into St. Mary's Hospital in Lavonia, Michigan August 10 for surgery and was recovering very well. Evelyn and George are looking forward to their return to Venture Out.

+ + +

Millie and Jo Capra are suspending their labors on their new mobile home to take a trip back to former home of Van Nuys, California, for a short time, but will soon be back to finish moving into their lovely place.

A letter from Barbara Clark said they didn't get the full force of Hurricane Belle in Connecticut, but they did get some wind damage to trees and shrubbery and plenty of rain. She and Stan have enjoying their grandchildren who were staying with them.

Betty Jones reminds everyone to continue working or get started working on bazaar saleables. Here we meet every Monday and compare projects and come up with new ideas.

Rita Autenreith has been working with us and she has two very good suggestions she is working on. Edith Painter is doing a beautiful job on shell covered flower pots. I hope everyone has a sweet tooth because I have filled every small ½ pint jar I can find with jelly and jam, and Betty is making marmalade and jelly.

You will be surprised to see the many things we stay-at-homes have in the works, so bring back some new items when you return.

Junior women will host political rally Wednesday

STUART–The Junior Woman's Club of Stuart is hosting an old fashioned political rally Wednesday, August 25 (today) at 7:30 p.m. in the First National Bank and Trust Company Community Room.

All of the local candidates and most of the state candidates for this area have been invited and given the opportunity to speak for a few minutes.

There will be a question and answer period, and refreshments will be served.

Feeling that a non-partisan rally is one of the best ways to bring the candidates to the people, and vice versa, the Juniors are hoping for a good turnout. A spokesman said that all of the candidates notified have expressed delight at this opportunity to meet the public face to face.

Austin and Mae Williams enjoyed their summer trip and share their experiences with us, part of which we will include this week

"On June 14, we left Holiday Out for our second trailer trip to California and back. Our first one was in 1971

"After traveling the Florida pan handle and crossing into Mobile Alabama, we headed northwest to Hattisburg, Miss. and next day headed for the Texas panhandle. This is really the nicest part of Texas for us, rolling hills and green trees.

"We spent three days in Canyon, Texas, so that we could see a performance of the musical "Texas". The show takes place on the floor of beautiful Pala Duro Canyon no mikes, just the natural acoustics and fantastic sound effects.

"We traveled on into New Mexico and Arizona, where we went to see the Grand Canyon for the first time. No words or pictures can do it justice. On the road again to Bryce and Zion National Parks. Bryce has fantastic coloring and in Zion you reach the bottom of the canyon after riding a road with many switchbacks. Quite an experience pulling a trailer.

"We spent five very hot days in Las Vegas. It was dry heat so didn't mind it too much. Most of the time you spend in air conditioned casinos. We met June and Jack Magnum and their daughter Judy at the campground where we stayed and spent the five days doing the town with them.

THE DOLLAR SYSTEM- As Citizens Federal converts to the "Dollar System" an advanced electronic record keeping method, Debbie Chabot "Miss Dollar" presents customer Kenie Jones a Bicentennial Dollar Coin as Sheila Greenway, teller, looks on. The coins were distributed to dramatize the new system and to make up for any customer delays during the conversion.

Dollar System is ready to go

FORT PIERCE, Citizens Federal Savings and Loan Association of St. Lucie County, began operation of the Dollar System this week, a new, advanced electronic system for handling financial transactions and records.

To explain the new system, which permits instantaneous posting of all transactions into computer data banks, Association personnel distributed literature and bicentennial dollar coins to customers at the three Citizens Federal offices.

Anticipating that there might be some delays on the first day of conversion to the new system, officials decided to give away the dollar coins to customers who were the first to have their transactions handled by the system. By closing time, a total of 128 coins were distributed.

According to Beverly Chabot, assistant secretary and savings officer who directed the training program for personnel involved in the operation, the conversion went smoothly and delays were at a minimum.

The Dollar System will cut the average customer transaction time in half, as well as minimizing errors.

Citizens Federal is located on S. Fourth Street in Fort Pierce, and has branch offices in Port St. Lucie and S. end of the Commodore Plaza on South Beach.
